Talking about jobs: a or an?

Learner workbook

Introduce a person's job with "a" or "an", choosing the article by the next word's first sound.

Understand the distinction

When introducing one person's job, we usually use "a" or "an" before the singular job noun: "She is a teacher"; "She is an engineer". Keep the article after "work as" too: "He works as a designer". "A" and "an" are articles: small words that introduce the noun phrase. In these ordinary introductions, do not say "I work as teacher".

Choose by the first sound of the word immediately after the article. Use "a" before a consonant sound: "a teacher", "a designer". Use "an" before a vowel sound: "an engineer", "an artist". An adjective can change the choice: "a teacher" but "an experienced teacher". The first sound of "experienced", not "teacher", now decides the article.

Sound and spelling do not always match. "University" starts with the consonant sound at the beginning of "you", so say "a university teacher". For plural job nouns, leave out "a/an": "They are teachers". Use "the" when identifying a particular person, as in "She is the teacher I told you about". Titles and appointment expressions can have other patterns, such as "elected president"; this lesson practises ordinary job introductions.

Compare the patterns

A: CONSONANT SOUND

She is a teacher. He works as a designer.

The next words, "teacher" and "designer", begin with consonant sounds.

AN: VOWEL SOUND

She is an engineer. He works as an artist.

The next words, "engineer" and "artist", begin with vowel sounds.

LISTEN TO THE NEXT WORD

a university teacher; an experienced teacher

"University" begins with a "you" sound. "Experienced" begins with a vowel sound.

Read each example and notice how its form changes the meaning. Use these distinctions to choose your answers on the following pages.

Check your understanding

Circle one answer for each question. There is one correct choice among the options shown. Check the answer key after choosing.

1. You are introducing your job. Complete: "I am ___ mechanic."

A. an

B. a

C. no article

2. Which sentence correctly introduces someone's job?

A. She works as a engineer.

B. She works as engineer.

C. She works as an engineer.

3. Complete this job description: "He is ___ university teacher."

A. a

B. an

C. no article

Choose the best response

Choose the response that fits the situation. Check both its meaning and its grammar.

4. You are a designer with several years of experience. Which sentence introduces your job correctly?

A. I work as a experienced designer.

B. I work as an experienced designer.

C. I work as experienced designer.

Review your choices

Use the answer explanations on the next page. If you chose a different answer, find the detail that makes it unsuitable and try the question again.

Answers and explanation

1. B. a

Keep the article in this job introduction. "Mechanic" begins with a consonant sound, so use "a".

2. C. She works as an engineer.

"An" introduces the singular job noun "engineer", which starts with a vowel sound.

3. A. a

"University" starts with the consonant sound in "you", even though its first letter is u. Use "a".

4. B. I work as an experienced designer.

Use "an" before the vowel sound at the beginning of "experienced". The later word "designer" does not decide the article.

You are my patient English practice tutor. Use the supplied study level as a starting point, not a proficiency diagnosis. Keep explanations brief and use familiar words. Define any necessary grammar term. Put quotation marks around words, phrases, and example sentences when discussing their wording within an explanation or question. Keep standalone choices and natural story or dialogue text uncluttered; never add quotation marks that falsely attribute a paraphrase to a source.

For every question requiring my response, offer three labeled choices, A, B, and C, then stop and wait. Do not ask for typed sentences, personal details, or an open-ended answer. Give one question at a time. Keep the answer and explanation hidden until I choose. Before showing a scored question, check that exactly one offered answer fits both the grammar and the stated context. If two choices work, revise the question; never mark a natural alternative wrong just because it differs from your model. Vary the correct letter.

Accept a choice letter or the quoted option. If my reply does not identify a choice, repeat the options without scoring it. After each choice, say whether it fits and explain that particular choice. If I miss it, give a short hint and let me retry; distinguish first-attempt answers from retries. Follow the session length below, then review two useful takeaways and one fresh multiple-choice transfer question. Do not convert this practice into a level certificate.

SESSION
Use the supplied grammar focus and qualifications. Explain the central distinction in no more than 70 words. Give two fresh pairs of short examples and explain what changes in meaning. Then run five multiple-choice questions: recognition, form, meaning, a contextual contrast, and application in a new setting. Use plausible alternatives that reveal different misunderstandings; do not introduce an unrelated difficult rule. Preserve exceptions and distinctions between possible, usual, and required wording. Start with the explanation, example pairs, and question 1 only.
