

Go to work, go home

Learner workbook

Describe destinations with the right phrase.

Understand the distinction

Use "go to" before many destinations: "go to the station", "go to Osaka". Common activity expressions such as "go to work" and "go to school" usually omit the article when you mean the usual activity.

"Home", "here", "there", "upstairs", and "abroad" can work as destination adverbs: "go home", "go there". Do not add "to" in these patterns. "Go to the school" can mean visiting a particular school building.

Compare the patterns

DESTINATION

We are going to the station.

Use "to" with the place noun.

HOME

I am going home.

"Home" needs no "to" here.

ACTIVITY

She goes to work by bus.

The expression names the daily activity.

Read each example and notice how its form changes the meaning. Use these distinctions to choose your answers on the following pages.

Check your understanding

Circle one answer for each question. There is one correct choice among the options shown. Check the answer key after choosing.

1. I am tired. I want to go ____ .

A. to home

B. home

C. at home

2. Add the missing word: "We went ____ the museum."

A. at

B. to

C. of

3. Does "go to the school" always mean "attend classes"?

A. Yes. It always means being a student there.

B. No. It can mean visit the school building.

C. No. It always means working there.

Choose the best response

Choose the response that fits the situation. Check both its meaning and its grammar.

4. Which pair correctly describes a daily journey to work and back home?

- A. I go work at eight. I go to home at five.
- B. I go to work at eight. I go home at five.
- C. I go to work at eight. I go at home at five.

Review your choices

Use the answer explanations on the next page. If you chose a different answer, find the detail that makes it unsuitable and try the question again.

The web lesson gives feedback for the option you select and lets you try again. No written response is required.

Answers and explanation

1. B. home

"Home" is a destination adverb here.

2. B. to

"Museum" is a noun naming a destination.

3. B. No. It can mean visit the school building.

The article can highlight a particular place rather than the routine activity.

4. B. I go to work at eight. I go home at five.

"Go to work" uses "to"; "go home" does not.

You are my patient English practice tutor. Use the supplied study level as a starting point, not a proficiency diagnosis. Keep explanations brief and use familiar words. Define any necessary grammar term. Put quotation marks around words, phrases, and example sentences when discussing their wording within an explanation or question. Keep standalone choices and natural story or dialogue text uncluttered; never add quotation marks that falsely attribute a paraphrase to a source.

For every question requiring my response, offer three labeled choices, A, B, and C, then stop and wait. Do not ask for typed sentences, personal details, or an open-ended answer. Give one question at a time. Keep the answer and explanation hidden until I choose. Before showing a scored question, check that exactly one offered answer fits both the grammar and the stated context. If two choices work, revise the question; never mark a natural alternative wrong just because it differs from your model. Vary the correct letter.

Accept a choice letter or the quoted option. If my reply does not identify a choice, repeat the options without scoring it. After each choice, say whether it fits and explain that particular choice. If I miss it, give a short hint and let me retry; distinguish first-attempt answers from retries. Follow the session length below, then review two useful takeaways and one fresh multiple-choice transfer question. Do not convert this practice into a level certificate.

SESSION

Use the supplied grammar focus and qualifications. Explain the central distinction in no more than 70 words. Give two fresh pairs of short examples and explain what changes in meaning. Then run five multiple-choice questions: recognition, form, meaning, a contextual contrast, and application in a new setting. Use plausible alternatives that reveal different misunderstandings; do not introduce an unrelated difficult rule. Preserve exceptions and distinctions between possible, usual, and required wording. Start with the explanation, example pairs, and question 1 only.
