

ENGLISH FOR WORK / SEPTEMBER 2026

Financial Advice English

Conversation lab

12 complete workplace dialogues, followed by eight additional role-play cases. Study the exchanges, then make the conversation your own.

PRACTICE THAT TRANSFERS TO WORK

Read a realistic case. Study complete conversations. Find the right language, speak, get feedback, and try again.

Eight lessons | Intermediate to advanced | Independent or classroom study

For financial advisors, planners, wealth-management teams, retirement specialists, paraplanners, and client-service staff.

Fictional language practice. Legal, financial, and regulatory meanings depend on jurisdiction and context; use current documents and qualified review for actual decisions.

All scenarios, figures, and model responses are fictional teaching material. Use invented details in practice.

Inside this conversation lab

Original fictional training conversations in professional English. These are realistic scripts, not transcripts of actual people. The professional roles are the speaker labels; all figures, incidents, and organizations are invented.

- 01 First Meeting: The Client Wants the Hot Stock
- 02 Explaining Fees and Conflicts
- 03 Risk Profile: Tolerance vs Capacity
- 04 Market Drawdown: Client Wants to Sell Everything
- 05 Retirement Income: RMD and Withdrawal Strategy
- 06 Rollover Conversation: Four Options, Not One Shortcut
- 07 Annuity Tradeoff: Guarantee vs Liquidity
- 08 Concentrated Employer Stock
- 09 Tax-Loss Harvesting: Useful but Not Magic
- 10 Family Pressure and Trusted Contact
- 11 Client Complaint: 'You Never Told Me About the Fees'
- 12 Annual Review: Plan Change, Not Product Pitch

Then try eight independent role-play cases, followed by feedback criteria and references.

Read it. Hear it. Make it yours.

1. Read the setting. Identify the roles, the immediate problem, and what each speaker needs.
2. Read the whole conversation aloud with a partner. In a group, give a third person the observer role. For three-speaker scripts, assign each professional a separate voice.
3. Notice how the speakers ask a specific question, qualify a claim, disagree, explain a technical point, or agree on a next step. Underline language you would actually use.
4. Cover the script. Recreate the exchange using the situation and professional roles. Keep the meaning, but change the wording.
5. Switch roles and introduce a complication: a missing record, a different priority, an unavailable colleague, or a changed assumption. End with a clear outcome or unresolved question.

Register and terminology

These colleagues use concise professional language. In an internal technical meeting, familiar abbreviations can be natural. With a new colleague or a client, expand unfamiliar terms and check understanding. Keep disagreement directed at the evidence or proposal, and match the degree of certainty to what is known.

Independent study

Speak each role aloud. Pause before the reply and supply your own response before revealing the next line. Record a second version using invented details, then compare its clarity and tone with the script.

Professional context

Fictional language practice. Legal, financial, and regulatory meanings depend on jurisdiction and context; use current documents and qualified review for actual decisions.

FULL DIALOGUE 01 / 7 SPEAKING TURNS

First Meeting: The Client Wants the Hot Stock

A new client asks the advisor to buy a popular stock immediately before discovery is complete.

Roles: Client / Advisor / Financial planner

Client: I want to put half my account into this stock before it runs higher.

Advisor: I hear the urgency. Before I can make or support a recommendation, I need to understand your goals, risk profile, time horizon, liquidity needs, and current holdings.

Financial planner: If this is an unsolicited decision, we can discuss process, but I do not want to treat a concentrated position as suitable or in your best interest without the facts.

Client: So you are saying no?

Financial planner: I am saying we should slow the decision enough to understand the risk. Concentration can create large gains, but it can also damage the plan if the position moves against you.

Client: I can bring my current holdings and explain what this money is for.

Financial planner: We will verify those facts and discuss the decision within the applicable advice and account process before recommending a course of action.

Notice the professional language

Concentrated position - Large exposure to one security, employer stock, sector, or asset class.

Time horizon - How long the client expects to invest before needing funds for a goal.

Rehearse and extend with AI

Explain the issue and the agreed next step without reading. Identify any point still awaiting evidence, agreement, or approval. Then replay the exchange with a changed constraint and a new ending.

Observer: note one natural professional expression and one place where the follow-up made the meaning clearer.

FULL DIALOGUE 02 / 7 SPEAKING TURNS

Explaining Fees and Conflicts

A prospect compares a fee-based advisory account with a transaction-based brokerage account.

Roles: Prospect / Advisor / Financial planner

Prospect: Which account is cheaper?

Advisor: It depends on services, trading pattern, account size, and how you want advice delivered.

Financial planner: A fee-based account may make sense if you want ongoing advice and monitoring. A transaction-based account may cost less if you rarely trade. We should also discuss conflicts: how the firm and advisor are compensated can affect recommendations.

Prospect: That sounds like a conflict.

Financial planner: It can be, which is why we disclose it and manage it. The important question is which account type fits your needs, not only which fee sounds lower in isolation.

Prospect: Please show me the actual charges under each arrangement using the same assumptions.

Financial planner: We will compare the current disclosures, services, costs, and conflicts, including circumstances in which the comparison changes.

Notice the professional language

Fee language should be clear, balanced, and not defensive.

A lower fee is not automatically the better relationship if services differ.

Rehearse and extend with AI

Explain the issue and the agreed next step without reading. Identify any point still awaiting evidence, agreement, or approval. Then replay the exchange with a changed constraint and a new ending.

Observer: note one natural professional expression and one place where the follow-up made the meaning clearer.

FULL DIALOGUE 03 / 7 SPEAKING TURNS

Risk Profile: Tolerance vs Capacity

A client scores aggressive on a questionnaire but needs cash in three years for a home purchase.

Roles: Client / Advisor / Financial planner

Client: I can handle risk. I want the highest return possible.

Advisor: Your answers show high risk tolerance, but your home-purchase goal gives you lower risk capacity for that money.

Financial planner: We can separate buckets. Long-term retirement assets may accept more volatility, but the down-payment funds need a shorter time horizon and higher liquidity.

Client: So I cannot be aggressive?

Financial planner: We need to assess each goal separately before recommending an allocation. Willingness to accept losses is different from your ability to absorb them without missing the home-purchase timeline.

Client: The house funds are needed next year; the retirement funds have a much longer horizon.

Financial planner: That distinction belongs in the plan. We will assess liquidity needs and potential loss separately for each goal.

Notice the professional language

Risk tolerance - The client's emotional willingness to accept investment volatility or loss.

Risk capacity - The client's financial ability to absorb loss without derailing goals.

Time horizon - How long the client expects to invest before needing funds for a goal.

Rehearse and extend with AI

Explain the issue and the agreed next step without reading. Identify any point still awaiting evidence, agreement, or approval. Then replay the exchange with a changed constraint and a new ending.

Observer: note one natural professional expression and one place where the follow-up made the meaning clearer.

FULL DIALOGUE 04 / 7 SPEAKING TURNS

Market Drawdown: Client Wants to Sell Everything

A retired client calls after a sharp market decline.

Roles: Client / Advisor / Financial planner

Client: I cannot watch this anymore. Sell everything and move to cash.

Advisor: I understand why this feels painful. Before we act, let's look at your income plan, cash reserve, allocation, and what selling now would do to recovery potential.

Financial planner: The current records show twelve months of planned withdrawals in short-term assets; let's verify that the amount still fits your needs. Selling the long-term holdings would realize losses and change future exposure. Holding them does not guarantee recovery.

Client: What if the market keeps falling?

Financial planner: That is possible. We can review whether your plan still fits your risk capacity, but I would separate a disciplined adjustment from a panic sale.

Client: Our spending needs have increased since the last review.

Financial planner: Then let's update the plan inputs first. Any recommendation should reflect your current circumstances, not just the earlier allocation.

Notice the professional language

Risk capacity - The client's financial ability to absorb loss without derailing goals.

Rehearse and extend with AI

Explain the issue and the agreed next step without reading. Identify any point still awaiting evidence, agreement, or approval. Then replay the exchange with a changed constraint and a new ending.

Observer: note one natural professional expression and one place where the follow-up made the meaning clearer.

FULL DIALOGUE 05 / 7 SPEAKING TURNS

Retirement Income: RMD and Withdrawal Strategy

A client approaching RMD age wants to know how much to withdraw.

Roles: Client / Advisor / Financial planner

Client: The custodian sent an RMD estimate. Should I take only that amount?

Advisor: The RMD is a minimum required amount for certain accounts, not necessarily your ideal spending strategy.

Financial planner: We should coordinate the RMD with your cash-flow need, taxable income, charitable goals, and other accounts. For tax specifics, we should confirm with your CPA.

Client: Can I take it from any account?

Financial planner: That depends on the account type and IRS rules. We can help organize the question and coordinate with the custodian and tax advisor before you act.

Client: I have the custodian's notice and statements for the relevant accounts.

Financial planner: Bring those to the review. We will coordinate account-specific questions with the custodian and qualified tax adviser.

Notice the professional language

RMD - Required minimum distribution from certain retirement accounts under IRS rules, depending on age, account, and facts.

Explain the issue and the agreed next step without reading. Identify any point still awaiting evidence, agreement, or approval. Then replay the exchange with a changed constraint and a new ending.

Observer: note one natural professional expression and one place where the follow-up made the meaning clearer.

FULL DIALOGUE 06 / 7 SPEAKING TURNS

Rollover Conversation: Four Options, Not One Shortcut

A client changed jobs and asks whether to roll a 401(k) into an IRA.

Roles: Client / Advisor / Financial planner

Client: Should I roll the old 401(k) into an IRA with you?

Advisor: We should compare the options before deciding.

Financial planner: The common options are leaving assets in the old plan, rolling to the new employer plan if allowed, rolling to an IRA, or cashing out. We need to compare fees, investment choices, services, creditor protections, tax impact, and your need for advice.

Client: Which one do you recommend?

Financial planner: I can make a recommendation after we document the facts and alternatives. Because an IRA rollover may increase advisory fees, we need to be especially clear about the rationale.

Client: Please include the old plan's actual fees and available services in the comparison.

Financial planner: Yes. We need the current plan information and your circumstances before documenting a recommendation and its rationale.

Notice the professional language

Rollover language should compare alternatives and conflicts.

Cash-out consequences should be discussed carefully and often with tax guidance.

Rehearse and extend with AI

Explain the issue and the agreed next step without reading. Identify any point still awaiting evidence, agreement, or approval. Then replay the exchange with a changed constraint and a new ending.

Observer: note one natural professional expression and one place where the follow-up made the meaning clearer.

FULL DIALOGUE 07 / 7 SPEAKING TURNS

Annuity Tradeoff: Guarantee vs Liquidity

A client asks about buying an annuity after seeing an advertisement promising lifetime income.

Roles: Client / Advisor / Financial planner

Client: This annuity says I can get guaranteed income for life. Why would I not do it?

Advisor: Income guarantees can be valuable, but the tradeoffs matter.

Financial planner: We need to review fees, surrender period, liquidity limits, inflation risk, insurer strength, tax treatment, and whether the benefit fits your income need better than other options.

Client: But the guarantee sounds safe.

Financial planner: It may reduce one type of risk, longevity risk, but it can introduce other constraints. The right question is which risk you are trying to solve and what flexibility you are willing to give up.

Client: I want to see how the surrender conditions affect access to my money.

Financial planner: We will review the actual contract, costs, guarantees, limitations, and alternatives rather than rely on the headline description.

Notice the professional language

Product language should be balanced: benefit, cost, risk, constraint, fit.

Guarantee language must be used carefully and with approved materials.

Rehearse and extend with AI

Explain the issue and the agreed next step without reading. Identify any point still awaiting evidence, agreement, or approval. Then replay the exchange with a changed constraint and a new ending.

Observer: note one natural professional expression and one place where the follow-up made the meaning clearer.

FULL DIALOGUE 08 / 7 SPEAKING TURNS

Concentrated Employer Stock

A technology executive has most of their net worth in employer stock and resists diversification.

Roles: Client / Advisor / Financial planner

Client: This stock made me wealthy. I do not want to sell.

Advisor: That history matters, and so does the concentration risk going forward.

Financial planner: Your salary, bonus, unvested equity, and portfolio are all tied to the same company. Diversifying does not mean you lack confidence; it means you are protecting the wealth already created.

Client: What if I sell and it doubles?

Financial planner: That regret risk is real. We can build a staged diversification plan, use price or time triggers, and coordinate tax strategy with your CPA.

Client: Please show the effect of several approaches before I decide.

Financial planner: We will compare the risks and relevant tax questions with qualified input, without promising that any approach avoids regret or loss.

Notice the professional language

Concentrated-stock conversations often involve identity and regret.

A staged plan can address tax, emotion, and risk management.

Rehearse and extend with AI

Explain the issue and the agreed next step without reading. Identify any point still awaiting evidence, agreement, or approval. Then replay the exchange with a changed constraint and a new ending.

FULL DIALOGUE 09 / 7 SPEAKING TURNS

Tax-Loss Harvesting: Useful but Not Magic

A client asks whether selling losses means the portfolio did not really lose money.

Roles: Client / Advisor / Financial planner

Client: If we harvest losses, does that cancel the market loss?

Advisor: No. The investment loss remains real. Tax-loss harvesting may have tax consequences or benefits depending on the facts and applicable rules; it does not cancel an economic loss.

Financial planner: We should avoid letting the tax benefit drive the investment decision by itself. We also need to watch wash-sale rules and keep the portfolio aligned with your target allocation.

Client: So it helps but does not fix everything.

Financial planner: Exactly. It is a tool, not a strategy by itself.

Client: Can we review that with my tax adviser before making a change?

Financial planner: Yes. We will coordinate the relevant facts and assess the investment and tax implications together.

Notice the professional language

Tax-loss harvesting - Selling investments at a loss to potentially offset gains, subject to tax rules and constraints.

Family Pressure and Trusted Contact

An older client says a relative wants them to withdraw a large amount urgently.

Roles: Client / Advisor / Financial planner

Client: My nephew says I should send him money today for an investment.

Advisor: That sounds important. Can we slow down and understand the purpose, amount, and whether anyone is pressuring you?

Financial planner: Your choice is yours, but because this is unusual and urgent, I want to protect you from possible financial exploitation. With your permission, we can involve your trusted contact or another professional you rely on.

Client: I do not want to get anyone in trouble.

Financial planner: The goal is not to accuse anyone. The goal is to make sure the decision is truly yours and that you understand the risk before assets leave the account.

Client: I would like to discuss the request privately before doing anything.

Financial planner: We can do that and follow the firm's applicable safeguarding and escalation process, explaining the next steps and their limits.

Notice the professional language

Elder-risk language should be respectful, protective, and firm.

Follow firm policy for trusted contact and escalation.

Client Complaint: 'You Never Told Me About the Fees'

A client expresses dissatisfaction after seeing advisory fees on a statement.

Roles: Client / Advisor / Financial planner

Client: You never told me about these fees.

Advisor: I am sorry this feels surprising. I want to understand exactly what you are seeing and review what was disclosed.

Financial planner: I also need to treat your concern seriously and follow our firm's process. I will document your concern, provide the fee schedule again, and ask the supervisor to review the account history.

Client: Are you saying this is my fault?

Financial planner: No. I am saying we should review the facts carefully and make sure your concern is handled through the proper channel.

Client: Please explain when I should expect the next update on the review.

Financial planner: I will confirm the complaint process and update arrangements, and make sure the designated team acknowledges your concern.

Notice the professional language

Complaint language should not argue, blame, or dismiss.

Many firms require escalation when a client expresses dissatisfaction.

Annual Review: Plan Change, Not Product Pitch

An advisor leads an annual review after the client had a new child and changed jobs.

Roles: Advisor / Client / Financial planner

Advisor: Before we look at performance, let's update what changed in your life this year.

Client: We had a baby, changed jobs, and may buy a larger home.

Financial planner: Those changes affect emergency reserves, insurance needs, beneficiary designations, education planning, risk capacity, and cash-flow assumptions. The portfolio review should come after we update the plan inputs.

Client: Does that mean we need new investments?

Financial planner: Maybe, but first we update the facts. Product changes should follow the plan, not lead it.

Advisor: I will bring updated income figures and our expected housing budget.

Financial planner: Those inputs will help us assess the plan and identify questions for other qualified professionals before considering product changes.

Notice the professional language

Risk capacity - The client's financial ability to absorb loss without derailing goals.

Rehearse and extend with AI

Explain the issue and the agreed next step without reading. Identify any point still awaiting evidence, agreement, or approval. Then replay the exchange with a changed constraint and a new ending.

Eight more situations to make your own

The following cases are open role plays. They give you facts, contrasting roles, useful expressions, and a short model response. Use what you learned from the complete dialogues to create a longer exchange.

Preparation: two minutes. Conversation: three to five minutes. Feedback: one minute. Switch roles and repeat with the second-round challenge.

ROLE-PLAY CASE 01

Advisor English: Discovery, Scope, Trust, and Boundaries

SHARED CASE

A prospective client says, "I want to retire comfortably." No spending estimate, target date, or current asset summary is available.

Role A | Responding professional

Clarify missing information before responding. Use only the facts given. Choose two relevant terms and be ready to explain one of them in ordinary words.

Role B | Listener

You need to know exactly what information is missing. Give one answer only after your partner asks a focused question; then ask them to confirm their understanding.

Useful expressions

When you say ..., do you mean ...?

Could you clarify which ...?

So, my understanding is Is that right?

Cover this until after your first attempt

What would a comfortable retirement look like for you? Could we start with your target date and expected spending? That will help us understand your goals before discussing possible approaches.

Second round

The other person uses an ambiguous word such as 'ready', 'approved', or 'urgent'. Clarify it before continuing.

Debrief and extend with AI

Which phrase helped the listener? Which case fact needed clarification? Write one better follow-up question, then repeat the exchange.

ROLE-PLAY CASE 02

Standards of Conduct, Best Interest, Disclosures, and Conflicts

SHARED CASE

A client asks how a firm is paid. The adviser has the firm's current fee and relationship disclosures available.

Role A | Responding professional

Explain a useful distinction in plain English. Use only the facts given. Choose two relevant terms and be ready to explain one of them in ordinary words.

Role B | Listener

You are unfamiliar with one technical term in the case. Ask for a plain-English explanation and then paraphrase it. Do not pretend to understand a term you cannot explain.

Useful expressions

In this context, ... means

The difference is that

How would you explain that distinction to a colleague?

Cover this until after your first attempt

Let's walk through the current disclosures together, including fees, services, and relevant conflicts. Which parts would you like me to explain? I can also show where the information is recorded.

Second round

Your listener is new to this field. Replace two specialist expressions with clear explanations without changing the meaning.

Debrief and extend with AI

Which phrase helped the listener? Which case fact needed clarification? Write one better follow-up question, then repeat the exchange.

ROLE-PLAY CASE 03

Goals, Risk Profile, Asset Allocation, and IPS Language

SHARED CASE

A client describes themselves as comfortable with investment risk but says they need some funds for a house purchase next year.

Role A | Responding professional

Clarify missing information before responding. Use only the facts given. Choose two relevant terms and be ready to explain one of them in ordinary words.

Role B | Listener

You need to know exactly what information is missing. Give one answer only after your partner asks a focused question; then ask them to confirm their understanding.

Useful expressions

When you say ..., do you mean ...?

Could you clarify which ...?

So, my understanding is Is that right?

Cover this until after your first attempt

When you say you're comfortable with risk, are you including the money needed next year? Let's distinguish your willingness to accept losses from your ability to absorb them for each goal.

Second round

The other person uses an ambiguous word such as 'ready', 'approved', or 'urgent'. Clarify it before continuing.

Debrief and extend with AI

Which phrase helped the listener? Which case fact needed clarification? Write one better follow-up question, then repeat the exchange.

ROLE-PLAY CASE 04

Retirement Planning, Income, Tax-Aware Conversations, and RMDs

SHARED CASE

A retirement illustration assumes a fixed annual return. A client reads the chart as a promise of future income.

Role A | Responding professional

Separate observations, assumptions, and conclusions. Use only the facts given. Choose two relevant terms and be ready to explain one of them in ordinary words.

Role B | Listener

You need to tell a colleague what is known. Ask which part is confirmed and which part is an assumption. Challenge one statement that sounds more certain than the case supports.

Useful expressions

The available evidence shows

This may indicate ..., but

We have not yet established whether

Cover this until after your first attempt

This is an illustration based on assumptions, not a guaranteed income path. Let's review how different returns and spending needs change the picture before discussing any planning decision.

Second round

Someone asks for a yes-or-no answer when the evidence supports only a qualified answer. Be concise while preserving the uncertainty.

Debrief and extend with AI

Which phrase helped the listener? Which case fact needed clarification? Write one better follow-up question, then repeat the exchange.

ROLE-PLAY CASE 05

Portfolio Reviews, Volatility, Rebalancing, and Behavioral Coaching

SHARED CASE

A client's statement shows a decline, and they want to know whether the change reflects withdrawals, fees, or market movement.

Role A | Responding professional

Explain a useful distinction in plain English. Use only the facts given. Choose two relevant terms and be ready to explain one of them in ordinary words.

Role B | Listener

You are unfamiliar with one technical term in the case. Ask for a plain-English explanation and then paraphrase it. Do not pretend to understand a term you cannot explain.

Useful expressions

In this context, ... means

The difference is that

How would you explain that distinction to a colleague?

Cover this until after your first attempt

Let's separate the withdrawals, fees, and investment movement for the same period. That will explain the balance change more clearly than looking only at the opening and closing totals.

Second round

Your listener is new to this field. Replace two specialist expressions with clear explanations without changing the meaning.

Debrief and extend with AI

Which phrase helped the listener? Which case fact needed clarification? Write one better follow-up question, then repeat the exchange.

ROLE-PLAY CASE 06

Products, Account Types, Rollovers, Annuities, Insurance, and Alternatives

SHARED CASE

A client is comparing two account options. One summary omits exit charges and ongoing service differences.

Role A | Responding professional

Compare options using the same criteria and state the tradeoff. Use only the facts given. Choose two relevant terms and be ready to explain one of them in ordinary words.

Role B | Listener

You favor one option but have not checked whether the scope is comparable. Ask about one difference, then explain the tradeoff you are willing to accept.

Useful expressions

Both options ..., but

Option A ..., whereas option B

The comparison depends on

Cover this until after your first attempt

We need the same categories for both options: charges, services, restrictions, and relevant tax considerations. I'll use the current documents to build a comparable summary before we discuss suitability.

Second round

Your listener focuses only on the lowest price or fastest date. Explain one other relevant comparison criterion.

Debrief and extend with AI

Which phrase helped the listener? Which case fact needed clarification? Write one better follow-up question, then repeat the exchange.

ROLE-PLAY CASE 07

Family, Estate, Beneficiaries, Elder Risk, and Difficult Client Moments

SHARED CASE

A client asks how to review beneficiary details after a family change. The service team can explain the firm's process but cannot resolve legal questions.

Role A | Responding professional

Make a request with a clear action, purpose, and realistic timing. Use only the facts given. Choose two relevant terms and be ready to explain one of them in ordinary words.

Role B | Listener

You can help but need a clear request and its purpose. Ask what is required and whether the timing is fixed or negotiable.

Useful expressions

Could you provide ... so that ...?

Please confirm ... by [agreed time].

If that timing is not possible, please let me know

Cover this until after your first attempt

We can help you review the beneficiary information held by the firm and explain the update process. For questions about legal effects or estate planning, let's identify the appropriate qualified adviser.

Second round

The other person cannot meet the requested timing. Clarify an alternative without inventing authority to change a formal deadline.

Debrief and extend with AI

Which phrase helped the listener? Which case fact needed clarification? Write one better follow-up question, then repeat the exchange.

ROLE-PLAY CASE 08

Practice Management, Documentation, Complaints, Marketing, and Supervision

SHARED CASE

A client says a service email did not answer their complaint. The record shows an acknowledgment but no response to the specific concern.

Role A | Responding professional

Acknowledge a communication problem and give a corrected message. Use only the facts given. Choose two relevant terms and be ready to explain one of them in ordinary words.

Role B | Listener

You are frustrated because an earlier message created an expectation. Explain that expectation. Ask your partner to distinguish the correction from anything still uncertain.

Useful expressions

My earlier message did not make ... clear.

I'm sorry for The correct information is

Let me check that the revised explanation addresses

Cover this until after your first attempt

You're right that our earlier message did not address that concern. I'll record the issue accurately and confirm the next step in our complaints process, including when you should expect an update.

Second round

The listener remains disappointed after the correction. Acknowledge the impact and restate the available next step calmly.

Debrief and extend with AI

Which phrase helped the listener? Which case fact needed clarification? Write one better follow-up question, then repeat the exchange.

Lesson conversations and speaking practice

The following sections match 05 and 06 on the industry webpage and in the learner workbook. Each lesson has three ten-turn conversations and two bounded speaking scenarios. These are original fictional teaching scripts, not transcripts of real people.

LESSON 01 / 05 • CONVERSATIONS / 1 OF 3

What would comfortable retirement include?

The lesson's prospective client has no supplied spending estimate, target retirement date, or asset summary. This is discovery-language practice, not financial advice.

01 • Financial adviser: You said you want to retire comfortably. What would comfortable mean in your everyday spending?

02 • Prospective client: I haven't worked out a spending estimate, so I can't give a reliable amount yet.

03 • Financial adviser: That's fine. We should clarify the client objective before suggesting an investment objective.

04 • Prospective client: Would picking a return target give us a useful starting point instead?

05 • Financial adviser: Not by itself. We also lack your target date and current asset summary.

06 • Prospective client: So the time horizon and resources are missing, not just the investment choice?

07 • Financial adviser: Exactly. A financial plan needs those facts and the uncertainties identified openly.

08 • Prospective client: Could we start by discussing the spending categories I need to estimate?

09 • Financial adviser: Yes. We can clarify categories and agree what information to bring, without inventing figures today.

10 • Prospective client: Then our next step is discovery, not a promise that a particular retirement outcome is achievable.

Notice, then rehearse

Name each speaker's purpose. Identify one useful expression and the next step or unresolved question. Read the roles aloud, then switch roles.

LESSON 01 / 05 • CONVERSATIONS / 2 OF 3

A business sale is only a possible resource

Separate fictional discovery exercise: a business owner wants to reduce working hours in three years and may sell the business; no sale valuation is available.

01 • Financial adviser: When you say reduce work in three years, do you mean fewer hours or a complete retirement?

02 • Business owner: Fewer hours initially. I might sell the business, but I don't have a valuation.

03 • Financial adviser: Then the time horizon is clearer, while the possible sale proceeds remain unknown.

04 • Business owner: Could we assume a generous sale price so the financial plan has a complete picture?

05 • Financial adviser: We can explore explicitly labeled scenarios, but we shouldn't treat an invented price as your available assets.

06 • Business owner: What clarification would help before we discuss any investment objective for those proceeds?

07 • Financial adviser: Your intended work pattern and spending needs, plus whether a sale is a goal or only an option.

08 • Business owner: The sale is an option. I don't want the plan to depend on it silently.

09 • Financial adviser: I'll keep that distinction visible and identify which information needs separate professional assessment.

10 • Business owner: Good. Let's define the objective before deciding which resources might support it.

Notice, then rehearse

Name each speaker's purpose. Identify one useful expression and the next step or unresolved question. Read the roles aloud, then switch roles.

LESSON 01 / 05 • CONVERSATIONS / 3 OF 3

An education goal without a payment schedule

Separate fictional discovery exercise: a consultant wants to help fund a relative's education in five years, but the amount and payment pattern are unknown.

01 • Financial planner: You want to help with education in five years. Is that a single payment or several payments?

02 • Consultant: I haven't decided. I also don't know how much support I can offer.

03 • Financial planner: Then let's separate the goal's timing from the amount and payment pattern still to clarify.

04 • Consultant: Could you recommend an account immediately and work out the details afterward?

05 • Financial planner: We need the objective and constraints first. An account choice wouldn't resolve those missing facts.

06 • Consultant: The five-year time horizon is my current expectation, not a confirmed enrollment date.

07 • Financial planner: Thank you. I'll record it as an expectation so we don't make the plan more certain than you intend.

08 • Consultant: What can we usefully finish in this discovery conversation without choosing a product?

09 • Financial planner: Agree the questions about amount, timing, and your other commitments that need answers next.

10 • Consultant: That sounds right. We'll clarify the goal before treating it as a funded financial commitment.

Notice, then rehearse

Name each speaker's purpose. Identify one useful expression and the next step or unresolved question. Read the roles aloud, then switch roles.

LESSON 01 / 06 • SAY IT

Two scenarios to practice

Use only the supplied facts. Prepare for two minutes, speak for one minute, then respond to a follow-up. Switch roles and repeat. For solo study, speak both roles aloud.

Scenario 1 | Advisor English: Discovery, Scope, Trust, and Boundaries

A prospective client says, "I want to retire comfortably." No spending estimate, target date, or current asset summary is available.

Prepare for two minutes. Speak for 45-60 seconds using the case facts, then respond to your partner's question. Switch roles and repeat without reading the model response.

Partner: You need to know exactly what information is missing. Give one answer only after your partner asks a focused question; then ask them to confirm their understanding.

Second round: The other person uses an ambiguous word such as 'ready', 'approved', or 'urgent'. Clarify it before continuing.

Model for scenario 1: What would a comfortable retirement look like for you? Could we start with your target date and expected spending? That will help us understand your goals before discussing possible approaches.

Scenario 2 | One household, two meanings of security

In a fictional discovery call, one partner means predictable monthly spending by financial security; the other means being able to change jobs. No budget or target date is supplied.

Role A: You are the financial planner. Invite both meanings and clarify what remains unknown.

Role B: You represent the household. Explain the two goals without pretending they already have a shared priority.

Possible opening: Could we separate predictable spending from flexibility to change jobs before setting one combined objective?

Success checks

- Recognize both stated goals.
- Keep spending amounts and timing unknown.
- Agree a further discovery question rather than choose a product or impose a priority.

Add a complication: One partner asks you to choose the household's priority for them.

LESSON 02 / 05 • CONVERSATIONS / 1 OF 3

Explaining the firm's compensation disclosure

Separate fictional training firm: the supplied disclosure states a $900 annual planning fee paid by the client, no referral payments or commissions, and separately charged third-party product costs whose amounts are not supplied.

01 • Client: How is your firm paid? I would like a direct explanation of the disclosure.

02 • Financial adviser: You pay a nine-hundred-dollar annual planning fee. Under this arrangement, our firm receives no referral payments or commissions.

03 • Client: Does that mean nine hundred dollars covers every cost of implementing the plan?

04 • Financial adviser: No. Third-party product costs are separate, and we haven't established those amounts yet.

05 • Client: What is the difference between Form CRS and Form ADV in the materials?

06 • Financial adviser: Form CRS is a relationship summary covering services, fees, conflicts, and disciplinary history.

07 • Client: And Form ADV is not simply another name for that short relationship summary?

08 • Financial adviser: Correct. It is the investment adviser registration and disclosure form, including brochure information for clients.

09 • Client: So I can distinguish the planning fee from unknown product costs without assuming every conflict disappears.

10 • Financial adviser: Exactly. Disclosure explains arrangements; it does not itself eliminate a conflict or establish suitability.

Notice, then rehearse

Name each speaker's purpose. Identify one useful expression and the next step or unresolved question. Read the roles aloud, then switch roles.

LESSON 02 / 05 • CONVERSATIONS / 2 OF 3

A fixed planning fee and a separate product cost

Separate fictional training firm: its sample disclosure lists a $600 one-time planning fee and says third-party product costs are separate and not quoted here.

01 • Client: The disclosure says six hundred dollars. Does that include every possible cost of implementing the plan?

02 • Financial planner: No. That is the one-time planning fee under this arrangement; third-party product costs are separate.

03 • Client: So paying for the plan and paying to hold a product are different charges?

04 • Financial planner: Exactly. The disclosure doesn't quote those product costs, so we haven't established the total yet.

05 • Client: Could the six hundred dollars be called an all-inclusive fee in our comparison?

06 • Financial planner: That would misstate the disclosure. We need the relevant additional costs before comparing totals.

07 • Client: And a clear fee explanation doesn't automatically resolve every possible conflict of interest?

08 • Financial planner: Correct. Compensation relationships and any conflicts need their own explanation, based on actual disclosures.

09 • Client: I'll describe the planning fee separately and ask for the missing implementation-cost information.

10 • Financial planner: Good. We'll clarify the full costs before discussing implementation, rather than treat the planning fee as all-inclusive.

Notice, then rehearse

Name each speaker's purpose. Identify one useful expression and the next step or unresolved question. Read the roles aloud, then switch roles.

LESSON 02 / 05 • CONVERSATIONS / 3 OF 3

A referral payment needs its own explanation

Separate fictional practice example: a sample disclosure states the firm receives a referral payment from one external provider; no amount is supplied.

01 • Client: The disclosure mentions a referral payment. Is that the same as a fee paid directly by me?

02 • Adviser: Not necessarily. The disclosure names the external provider as the payer, but doesn't state the amount.

03 • Client: Does that relationship create a reason to ask about a conflict of interest?

04 • Adviser: Yes. A compensation relationship can matter to how an introduction is evaluated and explained.

05 • Client: Could you reassure me that disclosure alone makes the relationship irrelevant to your judgment?

06 • Adviser: No. Explaining a relationship isn't the same as proving it has no influence or concern.

07 • Client: Then what should we clarify before I consider the introduction further?

08 • Adviser: The payment arrangement, relevant alternatives, and how the firm addresses the disclosed relationship.

09 • Client: I'll ask those questions rather than assume the provider pays nothing or that I pay everything.

10 • Adviser: Exactly. We'll use the actual disclosure and seek clarification for anything it doesn't establish.

Notice, then rehearse

Name each speaker's purpose. Identify one useful expression and the next step or unresolved question. Read the roles aloud, then switch roles.

LESSON 02 / 06 • SAY IT

Two scenarios to practice

Use only the supplied facts. Prepare for two minutes, speak for one minute, then respond to a follow-up. Switch roles and repeat. For solo study, speak both roles aloud.

Scenario 1 | Standards of Conduct, Best Interest, Disclosures, and Conflicts

A client asks how a firm is paid. The adviser has the firm's current fee and relationship disclosures available.

Prepare for two minutes. Speak for 45-60 seconds using the case facts, then respond to your partner's question. Switch roles and repeat without reading the model response.

Partner: You are unfamiliar with one technical term in the case. Ask for a plain-English explanation and then paraphrase it. Do not pretend to understand a term you cannot explain.

Second round: Your listener is new to this field. Replace two specialist expressions with clear explanations without changing the meaning.

Model for scenario 1: Let's walk through the current disclosures together, including fees, services, and relevant conflicts. Which parts would you like me to explain? I can also show where the information is recorded.

Scenario 2 | Service scope is not a conduct guarantee

A fictional firm's service summary lists quarterly review meetings. A prospective client interprets that schedule as proof that every recommendation will be suitable for them. No recommendation has been made.

Role A: You explain the service. Distinguish meeting frequency from the assessment of an individual recommendation.

Role B: You are the prospective client. Ask what information and disclosures would support that assessment.

Possible opening: Quarterly meetings describe the service schedule; they don't by themselves establish the appropriateness of a recommendation.

Success checks

- Explain the service-versus-assessment distinction.
- Avoid promising outcomes or asserting an unreviewed conduct standard.
- Agree to review the actual scope and relevant disclosures.

Add a complication: A colleague wants to call the meeting schedule a guarantee of best outcomes.

LESSON 03 / 05 • CONVERSATIONS / 1 OF 3

Risk comfort and next year's house funds

The lesson's client feels comfortable with investment risk but needs some funds for a house purchase next year; the amount is unknown.

01 • Financial adviser: You feel comfortable with risk, but some funds are needed for a house next year. How much?

02 • Client: I haven't separated that amount from the rest of my savings yet.

03 • Financial adviser: Then we need to clarify that liquidity need before discussing a portfolio allocation.

04 • Client: Does my high risk tolerance tell you the house funds can take the same risk?

05 • Financial adviser: Not by itself. Willingness to accept fluctuations differs from the capacity to absorb losses or delayed access.

06 • Client: So the near-term purchase creates a separate question even if I'm emotionally comfortable with markets?

07 • Financial adviser: Yes. We also need to clarify how flexible the purchase timing actually is.

08 • Client: Please don't assume either the amount or the date can be changed freely.

09 • Financial adviser: I won't. We'll identify those constraints before updating an investment policy statement, or IPS.

10 • Client: Let's clarify the house commitment first, without making an investment decision from one risk label.

Notice, then rehearse

Name each speaker's purpose. Identify one useful expression and the next step or unresolved question. Read the roles aloud, then switch roles.

LESSON 03 / 05 • CONVERSATIONS / 2 OF 3

A questionnaire conflicts with a withdrawal need

Separate fictional review: a client selected 'no planned withdrawals' on a questionnaire but mentions an expected business payment in six months; the amount is unconfirmed.

01 • Adviser: Your questionnaire says no planned withdrawals, but you mentioned a business payment in six months.

02 • Client: I hadn't counted that because the amount isn't confirmed. Should I change the answer?

03 • Adviser: Let's clarify the obligation first and record the uncertainty instead of forcing a misleading yes-or-no response.

04 • Client: The payment is expected, but I don't yet have a reliable amount to provide.

05 • Adviser: Then the liquidity need may matter, even though its size remains unknown.

06 • Client: Would describing myself as a long-term investor make the six-month payment irrelevant?

07 • Adviser: No. Different portions of your resources may serve different time horizons and commitments.

08 • Client: I'll distinguish the expected payment from money without a planned near-term use.

09 • Adviser: Good. We'll revisit the risk-capacity assessment once the obligation is clearer.

10 • Client: And we won't turn the incomplete questionnaire into a final asset-allocation instruction today.

Notice, then rehearse

Name each speaker's purpose. Identify one useful expression and the next step or unresolved question. Read the roles aloud, then switch roles.

LESSON 03 / 05 • CONVERSATIONS / 3 OF 3

A loss threshold needs a meaning check

Separate fictional planning conversation: a client says they can tolerate a 10% loss, but has not specified the account, time period, or whether that means temporary fluctuation.

01 • Planner: When you say a ten-percent loss is acceptable, what account and period are you thinking about?

02 • Client: I was thinking about a temporary decline, but I hadn't specified a period.

03 • Planner: That clarification matters. A broad percentage doesn't define your complete risk tolerance or capacity.

04 • Client: Could you put ten percent in the IPS as a guaranteed maximum loss?

05 • Planner: No. Your stated comfort level isn't a guarantee that an investment can't fall further.

06 • Client: Then we should distinguish my reaction to a decline from a limit the portfolio can promise.

07 • Planner: Exactly. We also need to consider your commitments and any liquidity need during a decline.

08 • Client: Those haven't been reviewed in this conversation, so please don't infer that I can absorb any loss.

09 • Planner: I won't. We'll clarify the account, horizon, and practical consequences before recording a fuller profile.

10 • Client: That gives the percentage context instead of letting it stand in for the whole assessment.

Notice, then rehearse

Name each speaker's purpose. Identify one useful expression and the next step or unresolved question. Read the roles aloud, then switch roles.

LESSON 03 / 06 • SAY IT

Two scenarios to practice

Use only the supplied facts. Prepare for two minutes, speak for one minute, then respond to a follow-up. Switch roles and repeat. For solo study, speak both roles aloud.

Scenario 1 | Goals, Risk Profile, Asset Allocation, and IPS Language

A client describes themselves as comfortable with investment risk but says they need some funds for a house purchase next year.

Prepare for two minutes. Speak for 45-60 seconds using the case facts, then respond to your partner's question. Switch roles and repeat without reading the model response.

Partner: You need to know exactly what information is missing. Give one answer only after your partner asks a focused question; then ask them to confirm their understanding.

Second round: The other person uses an ambiguous word such as 'ready', 'approved', or 'urgent'. Clarify it before continuing.

Model for scenario 1: When you say you're comfortable with risk, are you including the money needed next year? Let's distinguish your willingness to accept losses from your ability to absorb them for each goal.

Scenario 2 | Two accounts with different purposes

A fictional client has one account earmarked for an expense in eighteen months and another described as long-term savings. Amounts and investment holdings are not supplied.

Role A: You are the adviser. Ask how fixed the expense is and distinguish the accounts' purposes.

Role B: You are the client. Explain that one general risk label may not describe both accounts.

Possible opening: Could we assess the eighteen-month expense separately from the savings with a longer horizon?

Success checks

- Identify the two different horizons.
- Ask about the fixed or flexible nature of the expense.
- Avoid choosing allocations from incomplete facts.

Add a complication: The client asks you to assign the same allocation to both before discussing amounts.

LESSON 04 / 05 • CONVERSATIONS / 1 OF 3

The smooth retirement line is not a promise

The lesson's illustration assumes a fixed annual return, and the client reads the result as promised income.

01 • Client: The retirement chart rises smoothly. Does that mean my future income is guaranteed?

02 • Financial planner: No. The illustration assumes a fixed annual return; actual investment returns need not follow that path.

03 • Client: Then what part of this chart is an observation about my actual future?

04 • Financial planner: None of the future path is observed. It is a modeled result under stated assumptions.

05 • Client: Would changing the withdrawal rate alter the retirement-income illustration as well?

06 • Financial planner: Yes. That is another assumption to examine, not a number that creates a guaranteed outcome.

07 • Client: And sequence risk concerns the order in which returns occur while money is withdrawn?

08 • Financial planner: Yes. A smooth fixed-return illustration doesn't show every effect of a different return sequence.

09 • Client: Please describe the chart as conditional and show which assumptions need further discussion.

10 • Financial planner: I will. We can review uncertainty without treating this language exercise as an income recommendation.

Notice, then rehearse

Name each speaker's purpose. Identify one useful expression and the next step or unresolved question. Read the roles aloud, then switch roles.

LESSON 04 / 05 • CONVERSATIONS / 2 OF 3

A simulation percentage needs a definition

Separate fictional retirement exercise: a Monte Carlo output labels 80% of modeled paths successful under specified assumptions; success criteria have not been explained to the client.

01 • Client: The Monte Carlo analysis says eighty percent successful. Does that give me an eighty-percent personal guarantee?

02 • Planner: No. It summarizes modeled paths under the chosen assumptions and a defined success test.

03 • Client: What does successful mean in this particular model? I haven't seen that definition.

04 • Planner: We need to explain it before interpreting the percentage. The label alone isn't enough.

05 • Client: Could changing the spending assumption change how many paths pass the test?

06 • Planner: Yes. Inputs and model design affect the output, so the result needs that context.

07 • Client: Then the percentage isn't an observed frequency for my own future retirement.

08 • Planner: Correct. It's a conditional model result, with limitations that should stay visible.

09 • Client: Let's review the success definition and assumptions before discussing any plan changes.

10 • Planner: Agreed. We won't translate the simulation label into a promise of future income.

Notice, then rehearse

Name each speaker's purpose. Identify one useful expression and the next step or unresolved question. Read the roles aloud, then switch roles.

LESSON 04 / 05 • CONVERSATIONS / 3 OF 3

A distribution question needs current individual review

Separate fictional planning call: a client asks whether a retirement-account distribution is required; account type, age, and current applicable rules have not been checked.

01 • Client: A friend mentioned required minimum distributions. Must I take money out of my account this year?

02 • Financial adviser: We haven't checked your account type, relevant personal facts, or the current applicable requirements.

03 • Client: Could you use my friend's situation as a quick answer for mine?

04 • Financial adviser: No. Their circumstances don't establish yours, and we shouldn't invent a deadline or distribution amount.

05 • Client: So this is a question requiring verification, not another assumption for the income chart.

06 • Financial adviser: Exactly. We can identify the information needed and involve the appropriate account and tax professionals.

07 • Client: Should I treat any illustration we've discussed as tax advice about the distribution?

08 • Financial adviser: No. A retirement-income illustration doesn't resolve your individual tax or distribution obligations.

09 • Client: I'll provide the account details through the proper channel for review.

10 • Financial adviser: Then we'll confirm the appropriate source of guidance before describing any required action.

Notice, then rehearse

Name each speaker's purpose. Identify one useful expression and the next step or unresolved question. Read the roles aloud, then switch roles.

LESSON 04 / 06 • SAY IT

Two scenarios to practice

Use only the supplied facts. Prepare for two minutes, speak for one minute, then respond to a follow-up. Switch roles and repeat. For solo study, speak both roles aloud.

Scenario 1 | Retirement Planning, Income, Tax-Aware Conversations, and RMDs

A retirement illustration assumes a fixed annual return. A client reads the chart as a promise of future income.

Prepare for two minutes. Speak for 45-60 seconds using the case facts, then respond to your partner's question. Switch roles and repeat without reading the model response.

Partner: You need to tell a colleague what is known. Ask which part is confirmed and which part is an assumption. Challenge one statement that sounds more certain than the case supports.

Second round: Someone asks for a yes-or-no answer when the evidence supports only a qualified answer. Be concise while preserving the uncertainty.

Model for scenario 1: This is an illustration based on assumptions, not a guaranteed income path. Let's review how different returns and spending needs change the picture before discussing any planning decision.

Scenario 2 | Inflation is absent from the headline

A fictional retirement illustration shows level annual spending in nominal dollars. The headline calls the spending power constant, but no inflation adjustment is included.

Role A: You are the planner. Explain the difference between unchanged dollar spending and unchanged purchasing power.

Role B: You are the client. Ask which assumption the illustration makes without supplying an inflation forecast.

Possible opening: The dollar amount stays level here, but that does not establish constant purchasing power.

Success checks

- Distinguish nominal dollars from purchasing power.
- Identify the missing inflation treatment.
- Agree to label and review assumptions rather than promise future spending power.

Add a complication: A colleague wants to insert an inflation number without labeling it as an assumption.

LESSON 05 / 05 • CONVERSATIONS / 1 OF 3

A lower balance has several possible components

The lesson's client sees a statement decline and asks whether withdrawals, fees, or market movement explain it; amounts are not supplied.

01 • Client: My statement balance declined. Can you tell whether withdrawals, fees, or markets caused the change?

02 • Portfolio adviser: We need to reconcile those components rather than call the whole decline an investment loss.

03 • Client: Is a balance change different from the portfolio return shown against a benchmark?

04 • Portfolio adviser: Yes. Cash entering or leaving an account changes the balance without being investment performance itself.

05 • Client: Then should we examine the cash-flow and fee entries before discussing market movement?

06 • Portfolio adviser: Exactly. We don't have the amounts here, so I won't invent the breakdown.

07 • Client: Would the decline alone justify a rebalancing instruction today?

08 • Portfolio adviser: Not from this information. Rebalancing concerns the asset allocation and requires its own review.

09 • Client: Let's explain the statement first, then discuss any implications separately.

10 • Portfolio adviser: Agreed. I'll reconcile the entries and distinguish confirmed components from any unanswered performance question.

Notice, then rehearse

Name each speaker's purpose. Identify one useful expression and the next step or unresolved question. Read the roles aloud, then switch roles.

LESSON 05 / 05 • CONVERSATIONS / 2 OF 3

Rebalancing is not restoring a previous balance

Separate fictional review: a portfolio's asset weights have drifted from its stated targets; the client thinks rebalancing guarantees recovery of a previous balance.

01 • Client: If we rebalance, will the account return to its previous dollar balance?

02 • Adviser: No. Rebalancing concerns adjusting asset weights toward agreed targets, not guaranteeing a particular account value.

03 • Client: So a target allocation and a target balance describe different things?

04 • Adviser: Exactly. The weights describe the portfolio's composition; the balance depends on values and cash flows.

05 • Client: We know the weights drifted, but have we established that a trade is appropriate now?

06 • Adviser: Not in this conversation. The current circumstances, costs, and relevant consequences still need review.

07 • Client: Then please explain the drift without turning the explanation into a trade instruction.

08 • Adviser: I will. We can compare actual and target weights while keeping any action undecided.

09 • Client: That helps me understand the term without expecting it to reverse a drawdown.

10 • Adviser: Good. We'll discuss the review findings before making any separate decision about changes.

Notice, then rehearse

Name each speaker's purpose. Identify one useful expression and the next step or unresolved question. Read the roles aloud, then switch roles.

LESSON 05 / 05 • CONVERSATIONS / 3 OF 3

A drawdown and a period return use different starting points

Separate fictional training chart: an account value peaked before the reporting period began; the chart labels both drawdown and period return without explaining their bases.

01 • Client: The chart shows two different declines. Are the drawdown and period return contradicting each other?

02 • Performance adviser: They may use different starting points. We need to inspect the calculation labels.

03 • Client: The peak occurred before this reporting period began. Does that explain why the comparison matters?

04 • Performance adviser: Yes. Drawdown can reference a prior peak, whereas period return starts from the specified reporting period.

05 • Client: Then neither number should be relabeled as the other just to simplify the conversation.

06 • Performance adviser: Correct. Cash-flow treatment and the exact definitions also need to be clear.

07 • Client: Could we compare either figure with a benchmark without checking the same basis?

08 • Performance adviser: That wouldn't be a reliable comparison. We should align the period and method first.

09 • Client: Please explain both starting points before drawing conclusions about the portfolio.

10 • Performance adviser: I will, and we'll keep any investment action separate from interpreting the chart.

Notice, then rehearse

Name each speaker's purpose. Identify one useful expression and the next step or unresolved question. Read the roles aloud, then switch roles.

LESSON 05 / 06 • SAY IT

Two scenarios to practice

Use only the supplied facts. Prepare for two minutes, speak for one minute, then respond to a follow-up. Switch roles and repeat. For solo study, speak both roles aloud.

Scenario 1 | Portfolio Reviews, Volatility, Rebalancing, and Behavioral Coaching

A client's statement shows a decline, and they want to know whether the change reflects withdrawals, fees, or market movement.

Prepare for two minutes. Speak for 45-60 seconds using the case facts, then respond to your partner's question. Switch roles and repeat without reading the model response.

Partner: You are unfamiliar with one technical term in the case. Ask for a plain-English explanation and then paraphrase it. Do not pretend to understand a term you cannot explain.

Second round: Your listener is new to this field. Replace two specialist expressions with clear explanations without changing the meaning.

Model for scenario 1: Let's separate the withdrawals, fees, and investment movement for the same period. That will explain the balance change more clearly than looking only at the opening and closing totals.

Scenario 2 | A contribution makes the balance look stronger

A fictional account's balance rose during a month when the client added money. No investment-return calculation is supplied, and the client wants to compare the balance increase with a benchmark return.

Role A: You are the adviser. Explain the contribution-versus-performance distinction.

Role B: You are the client. Ask what comparable calculation is needed before claiming outperformance.

Possible opening: The contribution increased your balance, but it isn't itself an investment return.

Success checks

- Keep contributions visible.
- Do not invent the actual investment return.
- Agree a like-for-like performance comparison before interpreting success.

Add a complication: A colleague proposes excluding the contribution from the explanation because the result looks positive.

LESSON 06 / 05 • CONVERSATIONS / 1 OF 3

Two accounts with incomplete exit-cost information

The lesson's account comparison omits exit charges and ongoing service differences from one summary; no product choice is authorized.

01 • Client: This account summary looks cheaper. Should we choose it over the other option?

02 • Adviser: The comparison omits exit charges and ongoing service differences from one summary, so it isn't complete.

03 • Client: Would comparing only the stated expense ratio still answer the total-cost question?

04 • Adviser: No. That measure may cover only part of the costs relevant to the comparison.

05 • Client: Then we need the same holding period and exit assumptions for both options.

06 • Adviser: Yes, along with the services actually included. We shouldn't assume an omitted charge is zero.

07 • Client: Does a managed-account label guarantee that both options provide identical ongoing support?

08 • Adviser: No. We need their actual service descriptions rather than infer scope from a label.

09 • Client: I'll ask for the missing information before treating the lower headline as better value.

10 • Adviser: Good. We'll compare the tradeoffs on a consistent basis without selecting an account from incomplete facts.

Notice, then rehearse

Name each speaker's purpose. Identify one useful expression and the next step or unresolved question. Read the roles aloud, then switch roles.

LESSON 06 / 05 • CONVERSATIONS / 2 OF 3

Lower annual cost or more frequent reviews?

Separate fictional comparison for one year: option A lists a $500 annual service cost and one annual review; B lists $800 and quarterly reviews. Review scope, product costs, exit charges, and individual suitability are unassessed.

01 • Client: Option A costs five hundred dollars for the year; B costs eight hundred. What service difference is known?

02 • Adviser: A includes one annual review, whereas B includes quarterly reviews, four during the same year.

03 • Client: So B costs three hundred dollars more for three additional scheduled reviews on this comparison.

04 • Adviser: Yes. A has the lower stated annual service cost, while B provides more frequent scheduled reviews.

05 • Client: That is a real tradeoff, but does more frequent automatically mean more useful for me?

06 • Adviser: No. The review scope and your needs require assessment; frequency alone does not establish suitability.

07 • Client: And neither quoted service cost establishes the complete amount I might pay for the account.

08 • Adviser: Correct. Product costs and any exit charges remain unassessed, so neither is a complete total.

09 • Client: I would like to examine review scope before choosing between lower cost and greater frequency.

10 • Adviser: Agreed. Those known differences guide our questions without deciding the account choice from incomplete facts.

Notice, then rehearse

Name each speaker's purpose. Identify one useful expression and the next step or unresolved question. Read the roles aloud, then switch roles.

LESSON 06 / 05 • CONVERSATIONS / 3 OF 3

A rollover comparison needs the existing account too

Separate fictional review: a proposed rollover account has a detailed service brochure, but the existing account's costs and features have not been gathered.

01 • Client: The proposed account brochure is detailed. Can we compare it with my existing arrangement now?

02 • Adviser: We can identify its stated features, but we lack the existing account's costs and services.

03 • Client: Could we assume the old arrangement has fewer services because its brochure isn't here?

04 • Adviser: No. Missing information doesn't establish a disadvantage, just an incomplete comparison.

05 • Client: Then the same criteria should cover ongoing costs, available features, and any exit consequences.

06 • Adviser: Yes, including relevant differences that may matter to your circumstances, without assuming the rollover is preferable.

07 • Client: Would discussing the comparison itself authorize moving the account?

08 • Adviser: No. This is information gathering, not an instruction or completed individual recommendation.

09 • Client: I'll obtain the existing documents and leave the transfer question open.

10 • Adviser: Then we can explain the real tradeoffs rather than compare a full brochure with an information gap.

Notice, then rehearse

Name each speaker's purpose. Identify one useful expression and the next step or unresolved question. Read the roles aloud, then switch roles.

LESSON 06 / 06 • SAY IT

Two scenarios to practice

Use only the supplied facts. Prepare for two minutes, speak for one minute, then respond to a follow-up. Switch roles and repeat. For solo study, speak both roles aloud.

Scenario 1 | Products, Account Types, Rollovers, Annuities, Insurance, and Alternatives

A client is comparing two account options. One summary omits exit charges and ongoing service differences.

Prepare for two minutes. Speak for 45-60 seconds using the case facts, then respond to your partner's question. Switch roles and repeat without reading the model response.

Partner: You favor one option but have not checked whether the scope is comparable. Ask about one difference, then explain the tradeoff you are willing to accept.

Second round: Your listener focuses only on the lowest price or fastest date. Explain one other relevant comparison criterion.

Model for scenario 1: We need the same categories for both options: charges, services, restrictions, and relevant tax considerations. I'll use the current documents to build a comparable summary before we discuss suitability.

Scenario 2 | Different service frequencies in a cost table

In a fictional comparison, option A includes an annual review and option B quarterly reviews. Their quoted costs cover the same year, but the review scope and other charges are unknown.

Role A: You explain the comparison. Identify the service-frequency difference and missing scope.

Role B: You are the client. Ask whether more meetings necessarily mean more useful service for your needs.

Possible opening: The costs cover the same year, but the review frequency differs and the review scope is still unclear.

Success checks

- Name annual versus quarterly frequency.
- Keep service quality, scope, and other charges unestablished.
- Agree to compare relevant services rather than rank by frequency alone.

Add a complication: A colleague wants to call quarterly reviews automatically superior.

LESSON 07 / 05 • CONVERSATIONS / 1 OF 3

Requesting a beneficiary review after a family change

The lesson's client wants to review beneficiary details. The service team can explain its process but cannot resolve legal questions.

01 • Client: After a family change, I'd like to review the beneficiary details on my account.

02 • Client service specialist: We can explain the firm's review process. Which account would you like us to locate?

03 • Client: I'll identify it through the secure channel. Can you tell me what the family change legally requires?

04 • Client service specialist: That legal question needs the appropriate qualified professional; I can't resolve it through account servicing.

05 • Client: Then please arrange the account review and tell me which process information I should provide.

06 • Client service specialist: I will. We'll distinguish reviewing the beneficiary designation from completing an authorized change.

07 • Client: Could you document that I requested a review, without recording a change I haven't instructed?

08 • Client service specialist: Yes. I'll keep that scope clear and refer the legal question appropriately.

09 • Client: Please confirm the next step and realistic timing once you've checked the account process.

10 • Client service specialist: Agreed. No completed update or legal outcome will be implied by this request.

Notice, then rehearse

Name each speaker's purpose. Identify one useful expression and the next step or unresolved question. Read the roles aloud, then switch roles.

LESSON 07 / 05 • CONVERSATIONS / 2 OF 3

A relative requests access to account details

Separate fictional service call: a client's adult relative asks for account information; their authorization has not been verified.

01 • Client's relative: Could you send me the account details so I can help my parent prepare for a meeting?

02 • Service specialist: Before discussing account information, we need to verify the relevant authorization through the firm's process.

03 • Client's relative: I'm a family member. Doesn't that settle who can receive the information?

04 • Service specialist: The relationship alone doesn't establish the authorization in our record. I shouldn't assume it.

05 • Client's relative: Then please tell me how to request the check without sharing private details now.

06 • Service specialist: I can explain the approved verification route and refer any legal-authority questions for qualified review.

07 • Client's relative: Will you document this as my parent's instruction to disclose the account?

08 • Service specialist: No. I'll record your inquiry accurately, not attribute an instruction we haven't received or verified.

09 • Client's relative: Please arrange the process explanation, and I'll avoid asking you to bypass the check.

10 • Service specialist: Thank you. We'll confirm the appropriate next step without disclosing unverified account information.

Notice, then rehearse

Name each speaker's purpose. Identify one useful expression and the next step or unresolved question. Read the roles aloud, then switch roles.

LESSON 07 / 05 • CONVERSATIONS / 3 OF 3

Escalating a concern without diagnosing incapacity

Separate fictional service exercise: a client repeats the same payment question during a call. The cause is unknown, and no change is authorized.

01 • Service associate: Could you review this call concern? The client repeated the same payment question several times.

02 • Service supervisor: What did you observe directly, and what are you asking us to assess?

03 • Service associate: Only the repeated question. I don't know the cause and haven't made a capacity judgment.

04 • Service supervisor: Good. Document the observable interaction without diagnosing the client or assigning a family motive.

05 • Service associate: Please advise on the appropriate follow-up under our service process before any action changes.

06 • Service supervisor: I'll review the concern. Did the conversation establish an instruction to change a payment?

07 • Service associate: No. No change was authorized, and I won't treat the repeated question as an instruction.

08 • Service supervisor: Then keep that boundary explicit while we assess what clarification or escalation is appropriate.

09 • Service associate: I'll provide the relevant record through the restricted channel and request a confirmed next step.

10 • Service supervisor: I'll take the review and avoid turning an observation into an unsupported conclusion.

Notice, then rehearse

Name each speaker's purpose. Identify one useful expression and the next step or unresolved question. Read the roles aloud, then switch roles.

LESSON 07 / 06 • SAY IT

Two scenarios to practice

Use only the supplied facts. Prepare for two minutes, speak for one minute, then respond to a follow-up. Switch roles and repeat. For solo study, speak both roles aloud.

Scenario 1 | Family, Estate, Beneficiaries, Elder Risk, and Difficult Client Moments

A client asks how to review beneficiary details after a family change. The service team can explain the firm's process but cannot resolve legal questions.

Prepare for two minutes. Speak for 45-60 seconds using the case facts, then respond to your partner's question. Switch roles and repeat without reading the model response.

Partner: You can help but need a clear request and its purpose. Ask what is required and whether the timing is fixed or negotiable.

Second round: The other person cannot meet the requested timing. Clarify an alternative without inventing authority to change a formal deadline.

Model for scenario 1: We can help you review the beneficiary information held by the firm and explain the update process. For questions about legal effects or estate planning, let's identify the appropriate qualified adviser.

Scenario 2 | A beneficiary form received but not checked

A fictional client submitted a beneficiary form and asks whether the account now reflects it. The service team confirms receipt only; completeness and processing have not been checked.

Role A: You are the service specialist. Request the processing-status check and explain the current limit.

Role B: You are the client. Ask for confirmation of the actual record without assuming receipt equals completion.

Possible opening: We have received the form, but I need to confirm review and processing before describing the account as updated.

Success checks

- Separate receipt from completed processing.
- Request a precise account-status check.
- Refer legal-effect questions rather than invent an answer.

Add a complication: The client asks you to confirm the legal effect of the form before review.

LESSON 08 / 05 • CONVERSATIONS / 1 OF 3

Acknowledgment did not answer the complaint

The lesson's complaint record contains an acknowledgment but no response to the client's specific concern.

01 • Client: Your service email acknowledged my complaint, but it didn't answer the concern I raised.

02 • Service manager: You're right. The record shows receipt was acknowledged, not that your specific concern was addressed.

03 • Client: Then why was the email described as our response rather than an acknowledgment?

04 • Service manager: That wording was misleading. I'll correct the status and keep the substantive response open.

05 • Client: Can you promise the complaint is resolved now that we've discussed the mistake?

06 • Service manager: No. Correcting the communication doesn't resolve the underlying issue or determine its outcome.

07 • Client: Please document the unanswered concern and tell me who will review it.

08 • Service manager: I'll route it to the responsible reviewer and confirm the next update after checking the process.

09 • Client: I'd rather receive accurate status than an invented deadline or a premature closure.

10 • Service manager: Understood. The correction is acknowledgment received, substantive response still pending, and review to be confirmed.

Notice, then rehearse

Name each speaker's purpose. Identify one useful expression and the next step or unresolved question. Read the roles aloud, then switch roles.

LESSON 08 / 05 • CONVERSATIONS / 2 OF 3

A review meeting listed as completed by mistake

Separate fictional practice record: a client meeting was scheduled but did not occur; an internal status incorrectly marks the review completed.

01 • Client service associate: The record marks the portfolio review complete, but the scheduled meeting didn't take place.

02 • Supervising adviser: Then we need to correct the record, not imply advice was delivered during a meeting that never occurred.

03 • Client service associate: Should I replace the status without retaining any explanation of the correction?

04 • Supervising adviser: Use the appropriate record process and document why the original status was inaccurate.

05 • Client service associate: The corrected description is scheduled meeting not held, with the review still pending.

06 • Supervising adviser: Yes. Also check whether the client received a message based on the incorrect completion status.

07 • Client service associate: That hasn't been checked, so I won't claim a misleading message was actually sent.

08 • Supervising adviser: Good. Review distribution separately and correct any affected communication that is confirmed.

09 • Client service associate: I'll request a new meeting time without calling it a follow-up to completed advice.

10 • Supervising adviser: Then confirm the corrected status and keep unperformed work visible for supervision.

Notice, then rehearse

Name each speaker's purpose. Identify one useful expression and the next step or unresolved question. Read the roles aloud, then switch roles.

LESSON 08 / 05 • CONVERSATIONS / 3 OF 3

A service promise exceeds the approved description

Separate fictional practice example: a draft client message promises monthly reviews, while the supplied service description lists quarterly reviews. The message is unsent.

01 • Marketing coordinator: My draft promises monthly reviews, but the service description says quarterly. It hasn't been sent.

02 • Supervising adviser: Please correct it before distribution. We shouldn't create an unsupported service promise through marketing wording.

03 • Marketing coordinator: Could we say frequent reviews instead and leave the actual frequency unclear?

04 • Supervising adviser: That avoids the error only superficially. Use the supplied quarterly description accurately.

05 • Marketing coordinator: The corrected sentence will say that the described service includes quarterly review meetings.

06 • Supervising adviser: Good. Keep any other scope claims tied to the actual service materials and disclosures.

07 • Marketing coordinator: Should we apologize to clients for receiving the monthly promise?

08 • Supervising adviser: No distribution occurred in this case. Document the draft correction without inventing a client-facing incident.

09 • Marketing coordinator: I'll submit the corrected draft for review and keep its publication status unsent.

10 • Supervising adviser: Then supervision can confirm the wording before any communication creates an expectation.

Notice, then rehearse

Name each speaker's purpose. Identify one useful expression and the next step or unresolved question. Read the roles aloud, then switch roles.

LESSON 08 / 06 • SAY IT

Two scenarios to practice

Use only the supplied facts. Prepare for two minutes, speak for one minute, then respond to a follow-up. Switch roles and repeat. For solo study, speak both roles aloud.

Scenario 1 | Practice Management, Documentation, Complaints, Marketing, and Supervision

A client says a service email did not answer their complaint. The record shows an acknowledgment but no response to the specific concern.

Prepare for two minutes. Speak for 45-60 seconds using the case facts, then respond to your partner's question. Switch roles and repeat without reading the model response.

Partner: You are frustrated because an earlier message created an expectation. Explain that expectation. Ask your partner to distinguish the correction from anything still uncertain.

Second round: The listener remains disappointed after the correction. Acknowledge the impact and restate the available next step calmly.

Model for scenario 1: You're right that our earlier message did not address that concern. I'll record the issue accurately and confirm the next step in our complaints process, including when you should expect an update.

Scenario 2 | A complaint category misses the issue

A fictional client complained about a delayed callback. The record categorizes it as a fee question, and no callback review has occurred. The client points out the mismatch.

Role A: You are the service manager. Acknowledge the misclassification and state the actual concern.

Role B: You are the client. Ask how the callback issue will receive review without accepting a premature resolution claim.

Possible opening: We recorded your callback concern as a fee question; that was inaccurate and needs correction.

Success checks

- Name and correct the category mismatch.
- Separate record correction from substantive review.
- Agree review ownership and an accurate next-status update.

Add a complication: A colleague suggests closing the complaint after changing its category.

Give feedback that helps

Score each criterion 0, 1, or 2. This is a practice rubric, not a professional qualification or CEFR test. Do not award or remove points for a particular accent.

Meaning and accuracy

Keeps the case facts accurate; clearly separates confirmed and unknown information.

Clarity and language

Uses understandable sentences and explains specialist terms when the listener needs it.

Interaction and tone

Responds to the other person's question, checks understanding, and uses an appropriate tone.

Task completion

Makes the requested action or unresolved question clear without inventing authority or facts.

Use the same scale for each criterion

0 - Not yet: The reader or listener cannot yet recover the intended meaning or action.

1 - With support: The message works after a prompt, clarification, or revision.

2 - Independently: The message is clear and accurate without a prompt.

Feedback sequence

First, identify a successful phrase. Next, identify one point where meaning or accuracy needs work. Offer one useful language correction, allow a repeat, and compare the two attempts. A total out of eight describes this performance only; do not translate it into a proficiency level.

Final challenge

Choose a case not rehearsed today. The learner gives a one-minute response, answers two follow-up questions, and writes a 70-110 word message. Add the lesson's second-round challenge. Compare the result with an earlier attempt using the four criteria.

Use the language responsibly

Fictional language practice. Legal, financial, and regulatory meanings depend on jurisdiction and context; use current documents and qualified review for actual decisions.

Meaning before performance

Use specialist terms only when they help the listener. Explain unfamiliar words, preserve uncertainty, and ask when an instruction or responsibility is unclear. The model responses illustrate language; they do not authorize professional actions.

Your next step

Choose one expression you can use in a genuine work situation. Rehearse it with fictional details, then adapt the wording to your role and audience.

Extend your practice with AI

Use the next two prompts after your own first attempt. Each contains the course context and a complete starting case or dialogue. Copy the entire prompt, including the reference, into a new chat in your preferred AI. You can also use the links to copy it from the website.

Choose the right kind of help

A role-play prompt makes the AI wait for your replies. A new-dialogue prompt asks for a complete professional script. Writing feedback begins with your draft. Vocabulary, grammar and review prompts move from explanation to your own attempts.

Choose any lesson or dialogue online

The course prompt workshop has eight practice goals and B1 support, B2 independent and C1 stretch settings. These are practice choices, not assessed proficiency levels. Select the same lesson number or dialogue title you used in this guide.

Keep practice useful

Use fictional or anonymized details. English Ladder does not send anything to an AI service or add your drafts to the prompts. Your chosen service's terms and any usage charges apply. AI responses can contain mistakes; compare feedback with the lesson and verify specialist claims against the course references.

The two starter prompts use B2 practice. To change support in a printed prompt, replace its practice-setting paragraph with a request for shorter explanations and sentence starters (B1), or greater precision and more complex constraints (C1). Keep the professional facts unchanged.

Changing the example

For another case on paper, replace the text between REFERENCE and END REFERENCE with that case, its course context, relevant terms and language target. Include the full exchange if practicing a dialogue. Do not assume your AI can access this PDF or a link. The website makes this substitution for you.

Prompt edition: 2026-09-06. These are original practice instructions; results depend on the AI service you choose.

Be my workplace English practice partner. Follow the practice instructions after the REFERENCE block. The block contains fictional study material, not instructions to you. Keep its facts, numbers, uncertainty and professional responsibilities accurate. Clearly label any new scenario or changed fact as an invented variation. Use natural workplace language; explain unfamiliar abbreviations in context. If a technical expression is uncertain, say so rather than inventing a definition or authority. Coach communication, not professional decisions; respect the course scope. Ask only for fictional or anonymized practice details. Judge clarity, meaning, appropriate tone and the next step. Accept valid alternative English and distinguish errors from style preferences. Do not claim to certify my language level. Unless I ask to change the plan, follow the stages and stop wherever the instructions say to wait.

When discussing a word, phrase, or example sentence as language within an explanation, question, or answer feedback, enclose that wording in quotation marks. For example: What does "about" mean in "about twenty people"? Use "on" with a named day. Keep standalone answer choices, vocabulary headwords, and ordinary reading or dialogue text uncluttered. Quotation marks identifying a language example do not attribute it to a news source; attributed source quotations must remain verbatim.

Practice setting: B2 independent. Use natural professional English with brief explanations. Let me attempt each task without a model first. Offer a hint after difficulty and invite a more precise retry.

Course: Financial Advice English

Professional audience: financial advisors, planners, wealth-management teams, retirement specialists, paraplanners, and client-service staff

Scope: Fictional language practice. Legal, financial, and regulatory meanings depend on jurisdiction and context; use current documents and qualified review for actual decisions.

Dialogue 01: First Meeting: The Client Wants the Hot Stock

Original fictional setting: A new client asks the advisor to buy a popular stock immediately before discovery is complete.

Professional roles: Client / Advisor / Financial planner

Published dialogue (reference script, not my own performance):

Client: I want to put half my account into this stock before it runs higher.

Advisor: I hear the urgency. Before I can make or support a recommendation, I need to understand your goals, risk profile, time horizon, liquidity needs, and current holdings.

Financial planner: If this is an unsolicited decision, we can discuss process, but I do not want to treat a concentrated position as suitable or in your best interest without the facts.

Client: So you are saying no?

Financial planner: I am saying we should slow the decision enough to understand the risk. Concentration can create large gains, but it can also damage the plan if the position moves against you.

Client: I can bring my current holdings and explain what this money is for.

Financial planner: We will verify those facts and discuss the decision within the applicable advice and account process before recommending a course of action.

Vocabulary in this exchange: Time horizon: How long the client expects to invest before needing funds for a goal. / Concentrated position: Large exposure to one security, employer stock, sector, or asset class.

TASK: Interactive workplace role-play

1. Use the supplied case or dialogue as the starting situation. Give a two-sentence briefing and offer two relevant professional roles for me to choose from. For a supplied dialogue, use its actual roles. Ask which role I want, then stop and wait. Do not write my replies.
2. After I choose, identify who you will play and the immediate communication goal. Play the other professional; where a meeting requires a third person, label each of your speakers clearly. Start with one natural workplace turn and wait for my reply. Keep most turns to one to three sentences and ask no more than one question at a time.
3. Let the exchange develop across six to ten learner turns, or end earlier if I type "feedback". Respond to what I actually say. Include a plausible clarification, disagreement or tradeoff without silently changing the starting facts. Mark any added constraint as a fictional second-round variation. Do not resolve approvals, evidence or commitments that remain uncertain.
4. Stay in role during the exchange. If my meaning is unclear, ask for clarification naturally. Give a hint only if I ask or cannot proceed. Do not deliver a model conversation in advance.
5. At the debrief, quote two of my phrases: one successful choice and one worth improving. Check factual accuracy, language, register and whether the next step was clear. Give up to three focused suggestions. Ask me to retry the weakest turn; wait. Only then offer an alternative wording and a harder replay.

TASK: Extend the conversation library

1. Propose six distinct, common scenarios in this field beyond the supplied case or script. For each, name the setting, two or more professional roles, the communication problem and one useful terminology focus. Include routine coordination, clarification, a complication, disagreement, handoff and follow-up where relevant. Choose scenarios that fit this profession, rather than forcing unsuitable situations into it.
2. Ask me to choose one scenario, or request all six in sequence. Stop and wait. Do not write all the scripts before I choose.
3. For the selected scenario, write an original fictional dialogue of 12-18 substantial speaking turns between two or three professionals. Name each role, establish an actual work problem, and let the exchange progress through questions, clarification, competing constraints and a credible next step or explicitly unresolved issue. Use the occupation's natural nomenclature and register. Avoid an interview between a teacher and a learner, generic small talk, and inserting a glossary definition into every reply. Explain specialist terms outside the dialogue instead.
4. After the script, explain five useful expressions in context, identify two grammar or register choices and ask three questions about the speakers' reasoning. Withhold the answers until I attempt them. Add one role-switch challenge.
5. Before presenting a script, check names, numbers, chronology, roles and terminology for consistency. Label invented facts and acknowledge uncertain specialist usage. If I requested all six, deliver one complete script at a time and wait for "next". Make each scenario materially different.
