INSIDE THE BOOK

192 vocabulary entries / 128 reusable phrases
220 extended-dialogue turns / 11 transfer exchanges
Word banks and explained answer keys

Upper-intermediate to advanced (B2-C1). For producers, editors, creative teams, talent coordinators, distribution staff, and communications professionals.

2026 edition

Eight scenarios. Eight skills.

Eight production conversations: clarify a creative direction, repair a shooting schedule, check music rights, coordinate talent approval, compare distribution offers, explain audience results, respond to a sponsor change, and prepare a factual public statement.

01 Creative Briefs and Development Notes

4

What does premium and energetic actually mean? | Clarify creative adjectives through audience, references, observable choices, and delivery requirements.

02 Production Planning and Budget

13

The location move does not fit the call sheet | Explain a scheduling dependency, quantify the immediate gap, and separate a revised estimate from spending approval.

03 Rights, Clearances, and Licensing

22

A music receipt is not the release clearance | Compare intended music use with documented permission and explain a publication hold precisely.

04 Talent, Contracts, and Approvals

31

A delivery target arrives before the review window ends | Coordinate version-specific talent approval and explain a schedule conflict without assuming silence means consent.

05 Distribution and Windowing

40

The larger fee also sells a broader restriction | Compare distribution offers across fee, rights, territory, term, and exclusivity without inventing net value.

06 Audience Metrics and Performance

49

More completed plays, but a lower completion rate | Give a balanced performance readout using distinct counts, rates, and campaign objectives.

07 Sponsorship, Brand Safety, and Integration

58

One extra mention changes more than the running time | Respond to a sponsor change by separating scope, factual claims, disclosure, and approval.

08 Crisis Response and Public Statements

67

Confirm the production pause, not an unverified cause | Prepare a concise holding statement that separates verified facts, open questions, and the next update.

Be specific without flattening the creative idea

Creative work needs room for interpretation, but production commitments need precise language. These cases practice translating taste, deadlines, permissions, performance, and public claims into decisions that colleagues can act on.

Turn an adjective into an observable choice

Premium, energetic, and cinematic can suggest different things to different colleagues. Ask about audience, references, pace, framing, sound, and deliverables.

"Which part of that reference do you want us to follow: the pacing or the lighting?"

Separate a proposal from a cleared commitment

A schedule, music cue, talent appearance, or distribution deal may still depend on an approval. Name the actual dependency instead of saying everything is locked.

"The edit is ready for review; the music use is not yet cleared."

Compare the complete deal

Fees, territories, duration, exclusivity, platforms, and deliverables work together. A higher headline fee alone does not establish the better distribution outcome.

"The larger fee also restricts more rights for a longer period."

Preserve the boundary between fact and explanation

An incident can be confirmed before its cause is known. Public language should identify what is verified and what remains under review.

"Filming paused at 09:20; the cause has not yet been confirmed."

PROFESSIONAL BOUNDARIES

All productions, clients, performers, incidents, figures, and contract terms are fictional. This book teaches professional English, not legal advice or production-safety procedures. Rights, labor conditions, disclosures, and approvals depend on the actual agreements, uses, jurisdiction, and current requirements. No exercise authorizes publication, unsafe work, or use of uncleared material.

What does premium and energetic actually mean?

A Read the situation

Clarify creative adjectives through audience, references, observable choices, and delivery requirements.

Client Sora asks director Ellis for a video that feels premium and energetic. The request contains no target audience, reference examples, duration, aspect ratio, or release channel. In the meeting, Sora confirms adult first-time buyers, a 30-second main film for the brand website, and a 16:9 frame. She wants deliberate product close-ups and energetic editing, not flashing transitions. A shorter, 15-second vertical social cutdown is only a possible later request. Ellis must document the agreed direction without treating that possible extra version as included or fully priced.

PEOPLE / Sora: Client brand lead | Ellis: Creative director

CLARIFICATION IS PART OF CREATIVE WORK

A direct request for examples can sound like resistance if it is detached from the client's aim. Acknowledge the desired impression, then offer a concrete distinction. Confirm the chosen interpretation so that later feedback has a shared reference point.

Briefing checks

Circle one answer in each item. Use the briefing.

1. Who is the confirmed audience?

- A Adult first-time buyers
- B Existing trade distributors only
- C Children under ten
- D Every possible viewer equally

2. Which deliverable is confirmed?

- A A series of six television spots
- B A 30-second 16:9 film for the brand website
- C A 90-second cinema trailer
- D A completed vertical social cutdown

3. What remains only a possible later request?

- A Product close-ups
- B Energetic editing
- C The 16:9 main frame
- D A vertical social cutdown

Phrases you can actually use

C Notice the language / 1 of 2

ACKNOWLEDGE THE DIRECTION

"I understand that you want it to feel premium and energetic."

IDENTIFY THE VIEWER

"Who needs to understand the product after watching?"

PIN DOWN THE DURATION

"Is thirty seconds the confirmed main running time?"

SPECIFY THE FRAME

"The confirmed aspect ratio is sixteen by nine."

REQUEST A CONCRETE DISTINCTION

"Do you mean faster pacing, more camera movement, or both?"

CONFIRM THE AUDIENCE

"We are addressing adult first-time buyers."

NAME THE DELIVERY CHANNEL

"The main film is for the brand website."

LIMIT THE REFERENCE

"Let us use the close-ups as a reference, not copy the entire film."

Do you mean

Offers interpretations without pretending the adjective is already precise.

Confirmed

Distinguishes the current agreement from an idea still under discussion.

As a reference

Uses an example to explain a quality, not authorize copying.

Phrases you can actually use

C Notice the language / 2 of 2

TRANSLATE THE ADJECTIVE

"We will use deliberate product close-ups and an energetic edit."

SEPARATE POSSIBLE SCOPE

"The vertical cutdown remains a possible later request."

CHECK THE ACTION

"What should the viewer do after the final frame?"

AVOID AN UNPRICED COMMITMENT

"I have not included a vertical version in this scope."

RECORD THE EXCLUSION

"Flashing transitions are not part of this direction."

ASK ABOUT THE MESSAGE

"What is the one product point the viewer must retain?"

CONFIRM THE REVIEW STAGE

"The treatment will come back for creative sign-off."

CLOSE WITH A READ-BACK

"I will circulate the audience, style, format, and outstanding questions."

Not part of

Makes an exclusion explicit and easy to verify.

Remains a possible

Prevents a tentative request from becoming an agreed deliverable.

The one ... point

Narrows the message so the team can prioritize the edit.

Choose the precise message

D Check your understanding

Circle one best answer for each item. Use the stated purpose and case facts, not the option that merely sounds most polite.

1. Which question best clarifies energetic?

- A Should we increase every shot's duration to match the reference exactly?
- B Can we add a vertical deliverable to demonstrate energy?
- C Do you mean faster pacing, camera movement, or flashing transitions?
- D Can we use premium as the final acceptance criterion without examples?

2. Which read-back preserves the agreement?

- A Every audience and every release channel are approved.
- B Thirty seconds, 16:9, website, adult first-time buyers; vertical cutdown unconfirmed.
- C Thirty seconds in every format at the same price.
- D Vertical social film only, with flashing transitions.

3. What is a useful reference-film instruction?

- A Treat every element as approved automatically.
- B Use the reference instead of specifying an audience.
- C Identify the particular pacing or framing feature to discuss.
- D Copy the entire reference without checking rights.

4. Which statement overcommits scope?

- A The website film has a 16:9 frame.
- B The treatment needs creative sign-off.
- C The vertical adaptation is included even though it is only a possible request.
- D We will scope the vertical version separately.

WORD + PHRASE BANK

target audience / running time / creative brief / pacing / close-up / reference film / creative sign-off / treatment / call to action / cutdown

- 01 Sora: The last film looked polished, but it took too long to get going. Can this one feel premium without losing that first burst of energy?
- 02 Ellis: That helps. Let us sharpen the ¹ _____ before we choose a style. Who should the film speak to, and what should they understand about the product by the end?
- 03 Sora: Adult first-time buyers. They will see it on our brand website, and they should quickly understand what the product is for.
- 04 Ellis: Then the ² _____ needs a clear introduction. We should not rely on the product knowledge that an existing customer might already bring.
- 05 Sora: I like deliberate close shots of the product. I do not want the film to look cheap just because the edit is energetic.
- 06 Ellis: We can use a ³ _____ to show important details and let the edit supply momentum. Faster does not have to mean flashing transitions or constant camera movement.
- 07 Sora: Exactly. No flashing transitions. The rhythm should be lively, but the product should remain easy to inspect.
- 08 Ellis: That makes ⁴ _____ the main tool for energy. Do you have a reference where the rhythm feels right, even if the subject is different?
- 09 Sora: I can send one. I want the team to discuss the editing, not reproduce its entire visual style.
- 10 Ellis: Good. We will label it as a ⁵ _____ for rhythm only. That avoids turning one useful example into an instruction to imitate every shot, color, or music choice.

E Conversations / turns 11-20

Continue with the word bank on page 10.

- 11 Sora: The main film needs to be thirty seconds. It will appear in the normal wide player on the website.
- 12 Ellis: I will record a thirty-second ⁶ _____ and a sixteen-by-nine frame. Those requirements help us judge how much explanation and product detail the edit can carry.
- 13 Sora: We may want a shorter, fifteen-second vertical version for social later. Please do not include it as confirmed scope yet.
- 14 Ellis: Then the ⁷ _____ stays outside the confirmed scope for now. Vertical reframing may affect the shots and text, so I will not describe it as automatically included.
- 15 Sora: Please show us the approach before you organize a shoot.
- 16 Ellis: I will prepare a ⁸ _____ with the audience, visual direction, pacing references, and main format. It will also show the questions we still need to settle.
- 17 Sora: We should agree what viewers are meant to do after watching. The final message needs some work.
- 18 Ellis: Yes, the ⁹ _____ is still open. I will flag it instead of filling the end frame with a message that no one has approved.
- 19 Sora: So the confirmed direction is deliberate product detail, an energetic edit, no flashing transitions, and a thirty-second website film.
- 20 Ellis: Correct. We will seek ¹⁰ _____ on that treatment. The optional vertical version and final action message will remain clearly separate until they are decided.

The location move does not fit the call sheet

A Read the situation

Explain a scheduling dependency, quantify the immediate gap, and separate a revised estimate from spending approval.

A revised shoot plan ends work at Location A at 12:00 and starts filming at Location B at 12:30. The company move takes 35 minutes, followed by 45 minutes of setup; these tasks cannot overlap in this plan. The earliest filming start is therefore 13:20, before any extra delay. The approved budget is $25,000. New transport costs $750 and added equipment costs $250; possible overtime remains unpriced. Producer Leena and first assistant director Grant must revise the plan without cutting required breaks or treating the new costs as approved.

PEOPLE / Leena: Producer | Grant: First assistant director

A PRECISE NO CAN PRESERVE THE SHOOT

Production teams may feel pressure to accept an optimistic schedule to keep a client happy. State the dependency and arithmetic, then offer a planning decision. Avoid making the crew absorb an impossible promise through skipped safeguards or undocumented overtime.

D Check your understanding

Circle one best answer for each item. Use the stated purpose and case facts, not the option that merely sounds most polite.

1. Which timing statement is accurate?

- A Filming can start no earlier than 13:20 under the stated plan.
- B The 35-minute move fits inside the 30-minute gap.
- C Setup can be ignored because the camera is already hired.
- D The 12:30 start is confirmed by the old call sheet.

2. Which cost statement is supported?

- A Known additions total $1,000; overtime remains unpriced.
- B All added costs are exactly $1,000 with no uncertainty.
- C The approved budget automatically becomes $26,000.
- D Transport is free because it is required.

3. Which wording distinguishes estimate and authority?

- A Missing prices should be entered as approved zero costs.
- B The revised estimate needs approval before it becomes an authorized budget change.
- C An estimate is the same as permission to spend.
- D The client deadline approves every extra cost.

4. Which response preserves the stated safeguards?

- A Remove required breaks to recover the fifty minutes.
- B Hide the location move from the crew.
- C Mark overtime paid before it is priced or approved.
- D Revise scene order and timing while preserving required breaks and conditions.

- 01 Leena: Can you sanity-check the second-location plan? We wrap at A at noon, but the client has put the first interview at B at twelve thirty.
- 02 Grant: That ¹ _____ does not fit the tasks. The move takes thirty-five minutes, and setup at B takes another forty-five. Those steps cannot overlap in this plan.
- 03 Leena: So the thirty-minute gap is not enough even for the move alone.
- 04 Grant: Correct. The ² _____ finishes at twelve thirty-five at the earliest. Then we still need setup. We should show the full dependency instead of compressing it into a travel note.
- 05 Leena: That makes the earliest filming start thirteen twenty, before any extra delay.
- 06 Grant: Yes. The ³ _____ cannot disappear because the client prefers the earlier slot. We need to revise the scene order or timing with the people responsible for the work.
- 07 Leena: I will ask about moving the interview. Meanwhile, should we flag the timing conflict before anyone distributes that call sheet?
- 08 Grant: Revise the ⁴ _____ once the plan is agreed, and flag the current conflict clearly in the meantime. The crew should not receive an impossible time as though it were settled.
- 09 Leena: The transport quote adds seven hundred fifty dollars, and the extra equipment adds two hundred fifty.

- 13 Leena: We also need to know whether Location B permits the later filming and exit times.
- 14 Grant: Check the ⁷ _____ and the relevant access agreement. Moving the interview may solve one conflict while creating another, so we should confirm the actual conditions.
- 15 Leena: Someone suggested using the crew's break to recover the lost time. I do not want that assumed in the plan.
- 16 Grant: Agreed. The ⁸ _____ and other required safeguards stay protected. We must solve the schedule within the relevant working conditions, not hide the gap in time the crew is entitled to.
- 17 Leena: I will present a revised timing option with the known costs and the overtime question.
- 18 Grant: Route the proposed ⁹ _____ through the approval process. A client request explains why the change is being assessed, but it does not make every consequence approved.
- 19 Leena: Once a decision is made, both the crew schedule and the financial record should reflect it.

1. Which sentence best identifies the mismatch?

- A The plan extends the documented channel, territory, and term.
- B The receipt proves worldwide perpetual advertising rights.
- C Canada is automatically included in United States-only wording.
- D Paid social is always the same as organic website use.

2. What must be distinguished when checking this recorded track?

- A The underlying composition and the particular recording
- B A cue-sheet entry and an export setting, as the two rights grants
- C The invoice amount and track length, as proof of complete permission
- D The platform upload license and the editor's subscription, without checking the rights holders

3. Which item is not itself a rights grant?

- A A verified license covering the actual use
- B An authorized extension with the relevant scope
- C Permission from the appropriate rights controller
- D A cue sheet listing the music used

4. Which next action respects the release process?

- A Publish first and ask only if challenged.
- B Shorten the extract and assume it is cleared.
- C Relabel the file royalty-free without reading terms.
- D Seek the expanded permissions or verify a replacement before release.

A Read the situation

Coordinate version-specific talent approval and explain a schedule conflict without assuming silence means consent.

For campaign F29, the fictional talent agreement allows 48 elapsed hours after confirmed receipt of the complete review package. The package includes the main film and vertical version. It is received Monday at 10:00, so the full window ends Wednesday at 10:00; all times use the same time zone. The delivery calendar targets Tuesday at 17:00. Approval may arrive earlier, but none has yet been received and silence is not deemed approval under the stated terms. Coordinator Mina must agree submission ownership and a realistic delivery message with producer Joel.

PEOPLE / Mina: Talent coordinator | Joel: Producer

2. What must the complete package include here?

- A The main film and vertical version
- C Only the main film

- B Only a thumbnail
- D A verbal summary without files

3. What does silence mean under these terms?

- A It is not deemed approval.
- C Approval of every future version

The larger fee also sells a broader restriction

A Read the situation

Compare distribution offers across fee, rights, territory, term, and exclusivity without inventing net value.

For documentary North Line, Offer A proposes a flat $30,000 fee for exclusive worldwide video-on-demand rights for 24 months. Offer B proposes a flat $22,000 fee for nonexclusive advertising-supported video-on-demand rights in the United States for six months. Both proposed terms would begin on the same date, but neither deal is signed. Delivery costs, taxes, and other deductions are not supplied; available underlying rights still require verification. 2. Which offer is narrower in stated territory and duration?

- A A: worldwide, 24 months
- C Neither specifies a duration

- B Both are worldwide forever
- D B: United States, six months

3. Can both be accepted unchanged without examining overlap?

- A Yes; B's nonexclusivity overrides A automatically.

- 07 Mason: Then accepting A unchanged would conflict with the proposed B grant.

- 09 Mason: Could we ask A to leave advertising-supported viewing out of its exclusivity?

- 13 Mason: The summary labels the thirty thousand net income, but delivery and localization are still unpriced. Can we fix that label before it reaches the producer?
- 14 Priya: Then it should not label that ⁷ _____. We only have the flat headline fee here. Delivery costs, taxes, and other deductions are not supplied, so the net comparison is incomplete.
- 15 Mason: B specifically wants advertising-supported on-demand rights. Does that automatically include scheduled free streaming channels?
- 16 Priya: Do not assume so. ⁸ _____ names its stated service model. A scheduled FAST channel is a different format that needs its own rights description in the agreement.
- 17 Mason: We should ask each buyer for its technical package before estimating delivery effort.
- 18 Priya: Yes. The ⁹ _____ may include versions, captions, and localization. Those requirements affect cost and readiness even when the headline fee is fixed.
- 19 Mason: I will keep both offers unsigned in the comparison and show their actual restrictions, not just the money.

Two comparable reporting periods cover the same 30-second video on one platform. Period A records 1,000 eligible starts, 800 complete plays, and estimated reach of 900 accounts. Period B records 2,000 eligible starts, 1,200 complete plays, and estimated reach of 1,500 accounts. A complete play reaches the end; completion rate is complete plays divided by eligible starts. Reach and starts are different measures. Spend and business-outcome data are not supplied. WORD + PHRASE BANK benchmark / completion rate / eligible start / retention curve / reach / cost per completed view / repeat play / complete play / measurement methodology / business outcome

- 01 Dana: I have led with the larger reach and more finished plays. Before I send the success summary, is there anything in the retention figures I should bring forward?
- 02 Felix: We should qualify that. The ¹ _____ count rose from eight hundred to twelve hundred, but the proportion of eligible starts that finished fell. Both results belong in the summary.
- 03 Dana: The later period had twice as many starts, so the larger completion count does not mean the same rate.
- 04 Felix: Exactly. The ² _____ moved from eighty percent to sixty percent. Two thousand starts produced twelve hundred completions, while the earlier thousand starts produced eight hundred.
- 05 Dana: That is twenty percentage points lower. The complete-play count itself is fifty percent higher.
- 06 Felix: Correct. Keep the ³ _____ denominator visible. If we quietly switch to reached accounts, we are no longer calculating the completion rate defined in this report.
- 07 Dana: Reach rose from nine hundred to fifteen hundred accounts. Can I call those fifteen hundred viewers?
- 08 Felix: Preserve the report's ⁴ _____ definition: estimated accounts. We should not strengthen an account estimate into a verified people count. That qualification matters when the client compares audience numbers.
- 09 Dana: And twelve hundred finished plays may include someone watching more than once.
- 10 Felix: Yes. A ⁵ _____ can add another completion without adding a distinct account. Event counts and audience counts are useful, but they answer different questions.

- 11 Dana: What should we examine to understand the lower proportion finishing?
- 12 Felix: Inspect the ⁶ _____. It can show where playback drops off. We should not invent the cause from the aggregate rate, but we can identify a useful place to investigate.
- 13 Dana: The video is thirty seconds in both periods, so we are not comparing different lengths.
- 14 Felix: Good. Preserve that and the ⁷ _____ in the readout. If we later compare another platform, we must check its view and completion definitions before treating the figures as equivalent.
- 15 Dana: The client will ask what each completed view cost. Have we received the spend figures, or is that still a gap in the report?
- 16 Felix: We cannot calculate ⁸ _____ without spend. More completions alone do not establish better cost efficiency. The answer should identify the missing cost data rather than assume it improved.
- 17 Dana: They may also want to know whether the campaign increased sales.
- 18 Felix: That ⁹ _____ needs separate evidence and an appropriate attribution approach. Neither the reach increase nor the completion change proves a sales effect.
- 19 Dana: I will report more reached accounts and more complete plays, alongside the lower completion rate and the missing cost and sales data.
- 20 Felix: Then compare those results with the agreed ¹⁰ _____. A reach objective and a retention objective may receive different answers. We can be positive about the gains without claiming every objective was met.

- C The original ten-second mention automatically includes every later request.
- D The proposed mentions total twenty-five seconds, fifteen more than approved.

2. What does a clear disclosure not accomplish by itself?

- A It identifies a relevant commercial relationship.
- B It helps viewers recognize sponsorship.

Filming at Studio C paused at 09:20 following a technical interruption. That pause and time are verified. The cause remains under investigation, injury reports are unverified, and no restart time is confirmed. A draft statement blames a contractor and says nobody was hurt; neither claim is supported. Communications manager Farah and executive producer Luis must remove those claims. They can state the verified pause, say the situation is being assessed, and commit to an update at 11:00. Only the designated spokesperson may release the approved statement under the local process.

D Check your understanding

Circle one best answer for each item. Use the stated purpose and case facts, not the option that merely sounds most polite.

1. Which holding statement fits the facts?

- A Unverified reports prove the incident did not occur.
- B Filming at Studio C paused at 09:20 following a technical interruption. We are assessing the situation and will update at 11:00.
- C Contractor error caused the pause and nobody was hurt.
- D Filming restarts at 11:00 without further assessment.

08

2. What does unverified injury information justify saying?

- A Nobody was injured.
- B Every reported injury is confirmed.
- C Injury information is irrelevant to any later update.
- D Injury reports have not yet been verified.

3. Who may release the statement under the local process?

- A A department lead treating internal circulation as public approval
- B The communications writer before the text has completed review
- C The designated spokesperson, using the approved version
- D The executive producer using the unsupported earlier draft

4. If a published factual claim proves wrong, what is appropriate?

- A Silently change it and deny any earlier error.
- B Keep repeating it to preserve consistency.
- C Call every factual error merely a stylistic preference.
- D Acknowledge and correct the error visibly through the authorized process.

- 01 Luis: Who supplied the contractor-error and no-injury lines? They are in the draft, but I cannot trace either one to a confirmed source.
- 02 Farah: Then neither belongs in the ¹ _____. We have confirmed that filming at Studio C paused at nine twenty following a technical interruption. The cause and injury reports are still being checked.
- 03 Luis: We should acknowledge concern without presenting the draft's explanation as fact.
- 04 Farah: Exactly. Separate each ² _____ from the open questions. We can say the situation is being assessed and that we will provide an update at eleven.
- 05 Luis: Someone on the crew says the contractor was working near the equipment. Does that justify naming them?
- 06 Farah: That is not enough for a ³ _____. Being nearby does not establish responsibility. We need an adequate verified basis before asserting a cause or naming a party as responsible.
- 07 Luis: I have also seen social posts about injuries. We cannot confirm them yet.
- 08 Farah: Treat each as an ⁴ _____. That does not mean the report is false, and it does not justify saying nobody was hurt. We must preserve the actual verification status.
- 09 Luis: We can ask the appropriate people for confirmed information without releasing private details in the meantime.
- 10 Farah: Yes. A ⁵ _____ needs both accuracy and the proper disclosure basis. Concern for people should not become a reason to circulate names or conditions we are not authorized to share.

- 11 Luis: Please make the eleven-o'clock line explicitly an update. I do not want crews or reporters reading it as a restart time.
- 12 Farah: Then distinguish it from ⁶ _____. Eleven is the next communication time. We do not have a confirmed restart time, and the statement must not imply one.
- 13 Luis: Who should send the public version? Several department leads are receiving media questions.
- 14 Farah: The ⁷ _____ will issue the approved text. We should brief the department leads on the same facts and route inquiries through the agreed process rather than improvise separate explanations.
- 15 Luis: Let us also keep track of when each fact was confirmed and by whom.
- 16 Farah: Maintain the ⁸ _____ with source information. That will help us update accurately as evidence develops and avoid confusing the time of a report with the time of the event.
- 17 Luis: If something we publish later proves wrong, we should not just quietly replace the text.
- 18 Farah: Correct. Issue a visible ⁹ _____ through the authorized process. A clarification can explain wording, but it should not be used to disguise a substantive error in what we said.
- 19 Luis: I will remove the blame and no-injury sentence. The remaining statement will give the pause, ongoing assessment, and eleven-o'clock update.
- 20 Farah: I will identify that ¹⁰ _____ for review and release. The public should receive the verified position, not the most reassuring draft. We can be clear, humane, and precise while questions remain open.

Loudness is not the peak reading

E More workplace conversations / 1-10

Discuss an audio rejection using the correct measurements and agree a testable delivery correction.

Fictional stereo delivery requires integrated loudness -23 LUFS and maximum true peak no higher than -1 dBTP. The complete exported program measures -19 LUFS and -0.2 dBTP. The team considers a uniform 4 dB reduction with no other processing change. Predicted readings must be checked on the final export; these are this delivery's requirements, not every outlet's.

- 01 Ravi: The delivery failed audio review. The note says minus nineteen LUFS and minus zero point two dBTP. Which of those should we fix first?
- 02 Marta: They measure different things. The ¹ _____ is four units above the target. The peak reading also exceeds the separate permitted maximum.
- 03 Ravi: Minus zero point two is higher than minus one, even though the number looks smaller without its sign. That explains the second flag.
- 04 Marta: Right. The ² _____ is zero point eight decibels above the ceiling. Do not relabel that reading as the program's loudness.
- 05 Ravi: Would reducing the entire mix by four decibels be a reasonable first pass, without changing the balance between speech and music?
- 06 Marta: Yes. Uniform ³ _____ should bring the loudness near minus twenty-three and predict a peak of minus four point two, if nothing else changes.
- 07 Ravi: That predicted peak is below the minus-one ceiling. We do not need to push it back up merely to touch the limit.
- 08 Marta: Exactly. A maximum is not a target we must hit. Raising the whole signal again would also raise loudness and could undo the correction.
- 09 Ravi: The current mix sounds balanced creatively. I would prefer not to squash the dynamics just because the delivery was rejected.
- 10 Marta: Then start with gain, not a new compression treatment. We have predicted ⁴ _____ below the peak ceiling after that reduction. Listen and measure before deciding whether further processing is needed.

- 11 Ravi: Will the final encoded file necessarily have exactly the same peak as the mix export?
Delivery will create another file.
- 12 Marta: Not necessarily. Export or encoding can affect the measured result. The prediction helps select a correction; it does not replace checking the actual delivered file.
- 13 Ravi: The first report covered the entire program, not only the loud introduction. I will make sure the new measurement uses the same intended content.
- 14 Marta: Also verify the ⁵ _____. A passing loudness number would not reveal that someone exported the wrong track pair.
- 15 Ravi: The requested version is stereo. I will compare the file identifier and delivery manifest so we do not measure the commentary mix by mistake.
- 16 Marta: Good. I will listen for dialogue intelligibility, clipping, and unexpected changes as well. Two passing numbers cannot certify every aspect of the soundtrack.
- 17 Ravi: Please keep the original failure report and the corrected file's results together. The distributor needs to know which version was rechecked.
- 18 Marta: I will attach the ⁶ _____ to that exact export. If either measurement still misses the requirement, we investigate before submitting again.
- 19 Ravi: Our proposed correction is four decibels down, preserving the mix balance, then a complete measurement and listening pass on the delivery file.
- 20 Marta: Agreed. Report the measured result, not the predicted one. That gives the distributor a traceable correction and keeps the creative and technical decisions separate.

- 02 Omar: V7 is the approved ¹ _____. I have it open now at twenty-five frames per second. Let us compare the same export before changing anything.
- 03 Lin: At three checked cues, the text appears eight frames before the corresponding speech. I have logged each cue number and its first spoken word.
- 04 Omar: That suggests a ² _____ at those points. It does not yet prove that one shift will fix the whole file; another section could drift or contain an edit.
- 05 Lin: At twenty-five frames per second, eight frames is zero point three two seconds. The checked captions would need to move later, not earlier.
- 06 Omar: Correct. Keep the ³ _____ with that calculation. Eight frames is not eight hundredths of a second, and another frame rate would change the conversion.
- 07 Lin: I will check the remaining cues before proposing a file-wide shift. Moving the whole video to match a caption file would change the approved master.
- 08 Omar: Agreed. The caption timing is what we are investigating. We should not alter the picture or audio synchronization to make an unchecked text file fit.
- 09 Lin: The more serious text error is in the sale discussion. The soundtrack says we did not approve the sale, but the caption says we did approve it.

- 11 Lin: I will preserve the spoken meaning and adjust the timing or line break within the delivery guidelines. The dialogue must not become a different claim.
- 12 Omar: There is also a reply from off screen. The current caption gives the words but leaves it unclear who is speaking in that exchange.
- 13 Lin: I will add appropriate ⁵ _____ using what the scene establishes. I will not introduce a character name before the story reveals it.
- 14 Omar: Good. And the doorbell is what makes the character turn toward the entrance. A viewer without the audio currently loses that reason.
- 15 Lin: That needs a concise ⁶ _____. I will identify the audible doorbell, not add a theory about who is outside or what will happen next.
- 16 Omar: Once the text is corrected, can we review it in the actual player? A valid file can still display badly against the picture.
- 17 Lin: Yes. I will check readability, placement, cue timing, and whether text covers important on-screen information. Successful import is only the start of that review.
- 18 Omar: I will keep V7 fixed and give the corrected caption file its own revision identifier. The old file will not remain the default attachment.
- 19 Lin: Then we can record which cues were checked and any remaining issues, instead of claiming the entire file passed after three timing samples.
- 20 Omar: Agreed. We will verify the whole corrected track against V7, including the negative sentence, off-screen reply, and doorbell, before sending the final package.

- 08 Anton: And retain the ⁴ _____. Playback and the presenter need the correct ending so we can move cleanly into the close.
- 09 Bea: With ninety for the interview, sixty for the package, and thirty for the close, we have exactly one hundred eighty seconds.

- 13 Bea: That matches. I will update the presenter notes to remove only the optional follow-up, not shorten the essential answer into a misleading fragment.
- 14 Anton: The closing script also needs to fit its allocated thirty seconds. We cannot discover during the show that it contains an extra uncounted link.
- 15 Bea: All links and transitions are included in these supplied durations. I will still check the revised script against that assumption before the show.
- 16 Anton: Good. And when you call ⁶ _____ for the package, make it clear that playback prepares but does not roll until the agreed execution cue.
- 17 Bea: Understood. I will use our established cue sequence and keep the production talkback separate from anything the audience should hear.
- 18 Anton: We also need confirmation that playback has actually loaded RIVER-60. A corrected rundown row alone does not prove the right file is cued.
- 19 Bea: I will collect that confirmation and brief the presenter on the shorter interview. Any later timing change comes back through this same coordinated update.

1. Who is the confirmed audience?

A. Adult first-time buyers

Sora explicitly identifies adult first-time buyers as the target audience in the meeting.

2. Which deliverable is confirmed?

B. A 30-second 16:9 film for the brand website

The confirmed duration, frame, and channel belong to the main website film only.

3. What remains only a possible later request?

D. A vertical social cutdown

The vertical version is not yet included, approved, or fully priced.

D Language checks / page 9

1. Which question best clarifies energetic?

C. Do you mean faster pacing, camera movement, or flashing transitions?

The correct question offers observable creative dimensions relevant to the ambiguous adjective.

2. Which read-back preserves the agreement?

B. Thirty seconds, 16:9, website, adult first-time buyers; vertical cutdown unconfirmed.

The accurate read-back retains the confirmed requirements and leaves the possible extra version unresolved.

3. What is a useful reference-film instruction?

C. Identify the particular pacing or framing feature to discuss.

A named feature makes the reference actionable without replacing the brief or authorizing copying.

4. Which statement overcommits scope?

C. The vertical adaptation is included even though it is only a possible request.

The possible later cutdown has not been included or fully priced in the stated scope.

1. creative brief. Turn 2. Creative brief turns the desired impression into a shared communication task with specific production requirements.

2. target audience. Turn 4. Target audience identifies the intended adult first-time buyers, guiding explanation and creative choices rather than assuming existing product knowledge.

3. close-up. Turn 6. Close-up is a tight shot of the product or a detail, matching the client's specific visual preference.

4. pacing. Turn 8. Pacing describes the perceived rhythm and speed; energetic editing can supply it without the excluded flashing transitions.

5. reference film. Turn 10. Reference film provides an example of a named quality; it does not authorize copying or adopt every creative element.

6. running time. Turn 12. Running time specifies the duration of the main film, which the client confirms as thirty seconds.

7. cutdown. Turn 14. Cutdown is a shorter adapted version; the possible vertical version remains a separate scope question rather than an included deliverable.

8. treatment. Turn 16. Treatment presents the proposed creative approach for review before the production team commits to executing it.

9. call to action. Turn 18. Call to action identifies the requested viewer response; it remains a message decision rather than an assumed element.

1. 45 seconds

Director: "The confirmed running time is 45 seconds."

Forty-five seconds is the duration explicitly agreed for the main film.

2. returning subscribers

Client: "The target audience is returning subscribers."

The briefing names returning subscribers rather than first-time buyers as the intended viewers.

3. 1:1

Director: "The confirmed aspect ratio is 1:1."

One to one is the square frame specified for this main version.

4. six-second teaser

Client: "The unconfirmed later version is a six-second teaser."

The teaser remains a possible later request and must not be treated as included scope.

Production Planning and Budget

A Briefing checks / page 13

1. What is the earliest filming start at B on the stated assumptions?

A. 13:20

Thirty-five minutes of movement plus forty-five minutes of setup after noon gives thirteen twenty.

2. How much known additional cost has been identified?

B. $1,000

Transport of $750 plus equipment of $250 totals $1,000 in identified additions.

3. Which cost remains unpriced?

D. Possible overtime

The briefing explicitly leaves possible overtime unpriced rather than assuming it costs nothing.

D Language checks / page 18

1. Which timing statement is accurate?

A. Filming can start no earlier than 13:20 under the stated plan.

Consecutive movement and setup require eighty minutes after noon, making thirteen twenty the earliest stated start.

2. Which cost statement is supported?

A. Known additions total $1,000; overtime remains unpriced.

The two priced additions total one thousand dollars, while possible overtime is explicitly unresolved.

3. Which wording distinguishes estimate and authority?

B. The revised estimate needs approval before it becomes an authorized budget change.

Estimating the cost does not supply the separate authorization required for changing the budget.

4. Which response preserves the stated safeguards?

D. Revise scene order and timing while preserving required breaks and conditions.

A schedule revision must address the real dependency without relying on skipped safeguards or invented approvals.

1. 60

Producer: "The total move-and-setup time is 60 minutes."

Twenty-five minutes of movement plus thirty-five minutes of setup totals sixty minutes.

2. 11:00

First AD: "The earliest filming start is 11:00."

Sixty consecutive minutes after ten o'clock gives an earliest start of eleven.

3. 550

Producer: "The known additional cost is 550 dollars."

Four hundred dollars of transport plus one hundred fifty of equipment totals five hundred fifty.

4. approval

First AD: "Those additional costs still need approval."

The briefing expressly states that the priced additions have not yet been authorized.

Rights, Clearances, and Licensing

1. Which use is described in the available document?

D. Organic brand-website use in the United States, 1 June to 31 August

The available document states a limited channel, territory, and term that do not match the whole planned campaign.

2. Which planned use extends beyond that description?

A. Paid social in Canada through 30 November

Paid social, Canada, and the later end date exceed the available document's stated scope.

3. What is the local publication status?

A. On hold pending confirmed rights or an appropriately cleared replacement

The release process requires confirmed scope or a cleared replacement rather than assumptions based on payment or duration.

D Language checks / page 27

1. Which sentence best identifies the mismatch?

A. The plan extends the documented channel, territory, and term.

The planned paid social, Canadian territory, and November end date exceed the described grant.

2. What must be distinguished when checking this recorded track?

A. The underlying composition and the particular recording

The musical work and its recorded performance can involve distinct permissions and controlling parties.

3. Which item is not itself a rights grant?

D. A cue sheet listing the music used

A cue sheet records use and details, but listing the track does not itself grant permission.

4. Which next action respects the release process?

D. Seek the expanded permissions or verify a replacement before release.

The stated process requires actual clearance of the intended use rather than a labeling or duration shortcut.

Rights, Clearances, and Licensing

E Dialogue gaps

Pages 28-29

- 1. license scope. Turn 2. License scope defines permitted uses; a receipt alone does not show the required channel, territory, term, and rights coverage.
- 2. paid media. Turn 4. Paid media involves purchased advertising placement or amplification, which is additional to the organic website use described in the document.
- 3. territory. Turn 6. Territory specifies the geographic permission boundary; the document names the United States, while the plan also includes Canada.
- 4. license term. Turn 8. License term is the authorized period; the available August end date does not establish permission through November.
- 5. musical composition. Turn 10. Musical composition is the underlying work, distinct from the specific sound recording used in the edit.
- 6. master-use permission. Turn 12. Master-use permission concerns the particular recording, so composition permission alone cannot be assumed to cover that recording.
- 7. release hold. Turn 14. Release hold blocks publication under this production's process while the intended-use permissions remain unconfirmed.
- 8. replacement cue. Turn 16. Replacement cue is an alternative selection; it still needs permissions matching the actual planned use before release.
- 9. clearance log. Turn 18. Clearance log preserves documents, scope decisions, and unresolved questions so the release team can trace the actual permission basis.
- 10. cue sheet. Turn 20. Cue sheet records music use and details; it supports documentation but is not itself the permission to use the music.

1. France

Editor: "The documented territory is France."

France is the territory explicitly described in the available document.

2. Germany

Coordinator: "The new territory needing review is Germany."

Germany is added by the proposed use and is not established by the French territory description.

3. 30 September

Editor: "The documented end date is 30 September."

Thirty September is the available permission's end date, not the proposed later date.

4. 31 December

Coordinator: "The proposed end date is 31 December."

Thirty-one December is the intended campaign end, which needs rights review beyond the documented term.

04 Briefing and language checks

Talent, Contracts, and Approvals

04

A Briefing checks / page 31

1. When does the full review window end?

B. Wednesday at 10:00

Forty-eight elapsed hours after Monday at ten ends Wednesday at ten in the same time zone.

2. What must the complete package include here?

A. The main film and vertical version

The fictional terms explicitly require both versions in the complete review package.

3. What does silence mean under these terms?

A. It is not deemed approval.

The briefing expressly states that silence is not deemed approval under this agreement.

D Language checks / page 36

1. Which client update is accurate?

C. Approval is pending; the full window ends Wednesday at 10:00, after Tuesday's target.

The actual window and pending decision must remain visible despite the earlier delivery target.

2. Which calculation follows the stated terms?

B. Monday 10:00 plus 48 elapsed hours equals Wednesday 10:00.

The case defines continuous elapsed hours starting from confirmed complete-package receipt.

3. Which action is supported?

A. Ask whether an accelerated review can be agreed without assuming acceptance.

An acceleration request is legitimate, but the requested change requires an actual agreement or decision.

4. What should the approval record identify?

A. The particular version, decision, recipient, and timestamp

Version-specific evidence prevents approval of one submission from being applied indiscriminately to another.

04 Conversation answers

Talent, Contracts, and Approvals

E Dialogue gaps

Pages 37-38

1. talent agreement. Turn 2. Talent agreement supplies the actual review terms; the delivery target does not replace those terms or establish approval.

2. complete submission. Turn 4. Complete submission includes both the main film and vertical version, satisfying the stated package requirement for starting this review.

3. elapsed hours. Turn 6. Elapsed hours run continuously from Monday at ten to Wednesday at ten under the fictional agreement.

4. review window. Turn 8. Review window is the allowed assessment period; it does not prevent an earlier response, but no early approval is guaranteed.

5. deemed approval. Turn 10. Deemed approval would arise only under specified terms; this agreement expressly does not treat silence as approval.

6. talent representative. Turn 12. Talent representative is the appropriate contact for the review request; asking for acceleration does not establish its acceptance.

7. consolidated notes. Turn 14. Consolidated notes combine feedback into a coordinated set, helping the team plan a revision without inventing approval.

8. Picture lock. Turn 16. Picture lock fixes the picture-editing stage for subsequent work; it does not itself satisfy the separate talent approval requirement.

9. approval tracker. Turn 18. Approval tracker records submissions, versions, recipients, timing, and decisions so responsibility remains clear throughout the process.

10. approval record. Turn 20. Approval record documents the actual decision on identified material; it replaces speculation based on deadlines or informal impressions.

Producer: "The full window ends on Friday at 14:00."

Twenty-four elapsed hours after Thursday at fourteen hundred ends Friday at fourteen hundred.

3. Friday at 09:00

Coordinator: "The earlier client target is Friday at 09:00."

Friday at nine is the desired delivery target, not the end of the agreed review window.

4. approval

Producer: "Silence is not deemed approval."

The supplied terms expressly exclude treating silence as an approval decision.

05 Briefing and language checks

Distribution and Windowing

A Briefing checks / page 40

1. Which offer has the larger headline fee?

B. A, at $30,000

Offer A explicitly states thirty thousand dollars, exceeding B's twenty-two thousand.

2. Which offer is narrower in stated territory and duration?

D. B: United States, six months

Offer B is limited to the United States and six months under the supplied terms.

3. Can both be accepted unchanged without examining overlap?

C. No; A's exclusive rights overlap B's proposed use.

A's worldwide exclusive video-on-demand scope includes the United States advertising-supported use proposed by B.

D Language checks / page 45

1. Which comparison captures the main trade-off?

A. A pays more for broader, longer exclusive rights; B pays less for narrower, shorter nonexclusive rights.

The complete comparison includes scope, duration, and exclusivity alongside the headline fee.

2. Why does B's nonexclusive wording not solve the conflict?

B. It does not override the exclusivity A would receive in the overlapping scope.

A separate nonexclusive grant cannot by itself defeat an overlapping exclusive commitment to another party.

3. Which statement is unsupported?

B. Net receipts are exactly $30,000 under A.

The missing deductions and delivery costs prevent treating the headline fee as established net receipts.

4. Which next step is a proposal rather than an agreement?

B. Ask A to consider a defined AVOD carve-out.

Asking for a carve-out starts a negotiation but does not establish acceptance or available rights.

05 Conversation answers

Distribution and Windowing

E Dialogue gaps

Pages 46-47

- 1. license fee. Turn 2. License fee is the payment for defined permission; the larger amount must be read beside the rights requested.
- 2. rights grid. Turn 4. Rights grid maps medium, territory, period, and exclusivity, making both the proposed grants and existing limitations visible.
- 3. nonexclusive license. Turn 6. Nonexclusive license does not demand sole use for B, but it cannot override exclusive rights granted separately to A.
- 4. exclusive license. Turn 8. Exclusive license reserves its specified use under the agreement, creating the overlap problem with B's proposed simultaneous grant.
- 5. carve-out. Turn 10. Carve-out is an explicit exception to a broader restriction; it would need A's actual agreement rather than an internal assumption.
- 6. rights reversion. Turn 12. Rights reversion concerns when granted rights return or expire under the actual agreement, which must be verified rather than assumed.
- 7. net receipts. Turn 14. Net receipts require the agreement's defined deductions and relevant costs; the headline fee alone does not establish that amount.
- 8. Advertising-supported VOD. Turn 16. Advertising-supported VOD refers to on-demand viewing funded by advertising and should not be silently expanded to every ad-supported distribution format.
- 9. delivery specification. Turn 18. Delivery specification defines required materials and technical formats, allowing the team to assess work rather than assume equal delivery burdens.
- 10. distribution window. Turn 20. Distribution window organizes the period and sequence of permitted releases, connecting the deal to future exploitation choices.

Audience Metrics and Performance

A Briefing checks / page 49

1. What is Period B's completion rate?

B. 60%

Twelve hundred complete plays divided by two thousand eligible starts equals sixty percent.

2. What happened to complete-play count?

A. It rose from 800 to 1,200.

The briefing supplies eight hundred complete plays in A and twelve hundred in B.

3. What is not supplied?

D. Spend and business-outcome data

The record explicitly leaves spending and business outcomes outside the available figures.

D Language checks / page 54

1. Which summary is accurate?

B. Complete plays rose 50%, but completion rate fell 20 percentage points.

Complete plays rose from 800 to 1,200, while the rate fell from 80% to 60%.

2. Which denominator produces the stated Period B completion rate?

C. 2,000 eligible starts

This report explicitly divides complete plays by eligible starts, not by reach.

3. Which claim requires additional evidence?

A. Cost per completed view improved.

Cost per completed view requires spend data, which the briefing does not supply.

4. Which diagnostic addresses retention?

C. Inspect the playback retention curve for drop-off points.

A retention curve shows how viewing continues across the timeline and can locate drop-off patterns.

06 Conversation answers

Audience Metrics and Performance

E Dialogue gaps

Pages 55-56

1. complete play. Turn 2. Complete play is a playback reaching the end; its count rose from eight hundred to twelve hundred.

2. completion rate. Turn 4. Completion rate divides complete plays by eligible starts, giving eighty percent before and sixty percent afterward.

3. eligible start. Turn 6. Eligible start is the defined playback-event base for this rate; changing that base would change the measure.

4. reach. Turn 8. Reach is estimated distinct accounts here; it should not be silently relabeled as verified individual human viewers.

5. repeat play. Turn 10. Repeat play is another playback event and does not necessarily add a new distinct audience member.

6. retention curve. Turn 12. Retention curve shows continuation through the video timeline and can reveal where viewing falls away.

7. measurement methodology. Turn 14. Measurement methodology defines how the metrics were produced, supporting comparable interpretation across periods rather than assumed equivalence.

8. cost per completed view. Turn 16. Cost per completed view needs spend as well as completions; the provided data contains no spending figure.

9. business outcome. Turn 18. Business outcome concerns a commercial result beyond exposure; the audience figures alone do not establish sales impact.

10. benchmark. Turn 20. Benchmark is the defined reference or objective for judging performance; different goals may lead to different interpretations of the mixed results.

Seventy percent minus sixty percent is an absolute ten-percentage-point decline.

Sponsorship, Brand Safety, and Integration

A Briefing checks / page 58

1. What is already approved?

D. One ten-second product mention

The briefing approves only the original ten-second mention, leaving the new request unresolved.

2. What is wrong with the proposed universal claim?

A. No supporting evidence is supplied.

The supplied facts do not support the assertion that the product works for everyone.

3. Where should the endorsement disclosure be addressed in this case?

D. Clearly in the video, not only in its description

The scenario requires clear in-video disclosure; a description-only approach can be missed by viewers.

D Language checks / page 63

1. Which statement describes the time change accurately?

D. The proposed mentions total twenty-five seconds, fifteen more than approved.

Ten plus fifteen equals twenty-five seconds of mentions, not the entire program or an approved revision.

2. What does a clear disclosure not accomplish by itself?

D. It does not substantiate the universal product claim.

Disclosure addresses the relationship, while a factual product claim still needs its own supporting evidence.

3. Which response respects both the relationship and the review?

D. We can assess the extra mention, but the wording, disclosure, cost, and timing need approval.

The bounded response offers a path forward without inventing approval or accepting an unsupported claim.

4. Which disclosure approach fits the stated video endorsement?

D. A clear disclosure within the video, reviewed in context

Viewers need to encounter an understandable disclosure with the endorsement, not merely in internal or easily missed material.

07 Conversation answers

Sponsorship, Brand Safety, and Integration

E Dialogue gaps

Pages 64-65

1. integration plan. Turn 2. Integration plan defines the original sponsored arrangement; it currently includes one ten-second mention, not the proposed additional segment.

2. scope change. Turn 4. Scope change adds work or output beyond the existing agreement; the extra mention cannot be treated as already approved.

3. universal claim. Turn 6. Universal claim extends the assertion to everyone, a breadth not supported by any evidence supplied in this scenario.

4. testimonial. Turn 8. Testimonial represents an actual person's experience or view; changing the grammar must not invent an experience the host did not have.

5. disclosure. Turn 10. Disclosure identifies the relevant commercial relationship; it needs to be clear in the video endorsement rather than solely in the description.

6. clear and conspicuous. Turn 12. Clear and conspicuous means readily noticeable and understandable in context, not hidden, fleeting, or dependent on opening a description.

7. Substantiation. Turn 14. Substantiation is the evidence supporting a factual claim; disclosing sponsorship does not supply that evidence.

8. editorial fit. Turn 16. Editorial fit assesses how the extra mention works with the program's purpose, tone, and audience rather than only its paid duration.

9. approval chain. Turn 18. Approval chain identifies the authorized reviews needed for the new script and commercial arrangement before commitment.

10. audience trust. Turn 20. Audience trust depends on truthful, identifiable commercial content; careful review supports both the production and the sponsor relationship.

3. twenty

Account lead: "The proposed mention time would total twenty seconds."

Eight approved seconds plus twelve requested seconds totals twenty proposed seconds.

4. substantiation

Crisis Response and Public Statements

A Briefing checks / page 67

1. Which fact is verified?

A. Filming at Studio C paused at 09:20.

The brief verifies the pause, location, and time while leaving cause, injury status, and restart unresolved.

2. Which claims must be removed from the draft?

A. Contractor blame and the unsupported no-injury claim

Neither contractor responsibility nor absence of injury is supported by the supplied facts.

3. What does 11:00 represent?

D. The next public update

Eleven o'clock is the communication commitment, not a guarantee of operational or investigative completion.

D Language checks / page 72

1. Which holding statement fits the facts?

B. Filming at Studio C paused at 09:20 following a technical interruption. We are assessing the situation and will update at 11:00.

The supported statement uses the verified pause and timing while avoiding unsupported cause, injury, or restart claims.

2. What does unverified injury information justify saying?

D. Injury reports have not yet been verified.

Lack of verification supports only the stated uncertainty, not either a positive or negative injury finding.

3. Who may release the statement under the local process?

C. The designated spokesperson, using the approved version

The briefing assigns public release to the designated spokesperson and the approved text.

4. If a published factual claim proves wrong, what is appropriate?

D. Acknowledge and correct the error visibly through the authorized process.

Accurate correction must repair the record transparently rather than hide a substantive published error.

1. holding statement. Turn 2. Holding statement provides a brief verified update while open questions are checked; it must not invent a complete explanation.

2. verified fact. Turn 4. Verified fact has adequate confirmation; here the pause, location, and time are established while other claims remain unresolved.

3. causal claim. Turn 6. Causal claim explains why an event occurred; proximity to equipment does not establish responsibility for the interruption.

4. unverified report. Turn 8. Unverified report is information not yet confirmed; it does not establish either an injury finding or the absence of injuries.

5. welfare update. Turn 10. Welfare update concerns affected people and must use verified information within the relevant authorization and privacy limits.

6. restart authorization. Turn 12. Restart authorization permits resuming activity; the scheduled public update does not supply that permission or a restart time.

7. designated spokesperson. Turn 14. Designated spokesperson is the person authorized under this local process to release the approved public statement.

8. incident timeline. Turn 16. Incident timeline orders relevant events and their support, helping the team distinguish verified times from rumors and later interpretations.

9. correction. Turn 18. Correction acknowledges and repairs a factual error; a silent replacement would conceal the earlier incorrect public claim.

10. approval version. Turn 20. Approval version is the specific text cleared for release, preventing an obsolete or unsupported draft from becoming the public statement.

Loudness is not the peak reading

E Extended conversation

Pages 76-77

1. integrated loudness. Turn 2. Integrated loudness measures the program over the relevant duration in LUFS; the supplied -19 reading is four loudness units above this delivery's -23 target.

2. true peak. Turn 4. True peak is measured in dBTP and addresses peak level rather than average program loudness; -0.2 dBTP exceeds the stipulated -1 dBTP ceiling by 0.8 dB.

3. attenuation. Turn 6. Attenuation reduces the signal level; a uniform four-decibel reduction predicts a four-unit loudness decrease and a four-decibel peak decrease before final remeasurement.

4. headroom. Turn 10. Headroom is the remaining level margin below the applicable limit; a predicted -4.2 dBTP is 3.2 dB below this -1 dBTP ceiling.

5. channel mapping. Turn 14. Channel mapping assigns the intended audio to delivery channels; a loudness pass does not prove that left, right, or other required tracks are correctly assigned.

6. QC report. Turn 18. The quality-control report records the tested file, measurements, specification, and remaining findings; results for an earlier version do not establish the delivered version's status.

F Transfer exchange

Subtracting three decibels from the initial minus-one peak predicts minus four dBTP.

3. 2

Supervisor: The predicted peak is 2 decibels below the ceiling.

Minus four is two decibels below the specified minus-two maximum.

4. remeasure

Captions that preserve the meaning

E Extended conversation

Pages 79-80

1. reference master. Turn 2. The reference master is the identified picture and sound version used for caption review; using an earlier edit could produce incorrect timing and content judgments.

2. constant offset. Turn 4. A constant offset is the same timing difference at checked points; three matching observations suggest it but do not prove the entire file shares it.

3. frame rate. Turn 6. The frame rate converts the observed frame difference into time: eight frames divided by twenty-five frames per second equals 0.32 seconds.

4. negation. Turn 10. Negation is the negative meaning carried here by 'not'; omitting it reverses the speaker's statement rather than merely shortening the sentence.

5. speaker identification. Turn 13. Speaker identification tells the viewer who speaks when that is not clear from the image and context; it should use established information without inventing or prematurely revealing identity.

6. sound cue. Turn 15. A sound cue represents relevant non-speech audio such as the audible doorbell driving the character's reaction; captions need more than spoken words when sound carries meaning.

F Transfer exchange

The caption is late relative to its speech, so the correction direction is earlier rather than later.

3. not

Editor: Restore the missing word not.

The supplied soundtrack includes not; omitting it falsely changes an unexpired permit into an expired one.

4. synchronization

The remaining cues have not been checked, so one timing observation cannot certify synchronization throughout the track.

E Extended conversation

1. hard out. Turn 2. The hard out is the fixed 20:10 ending in this plan; at 20:07 it leaves 180 seconds, not enough for the current 240-second sequence.

2. rundown. Turn 4. The rundown lists the ordered program items and durations; changing the interview from 120 to 90 seconds removes thirty seconds from its current total.

3. cutdown. Turn 6. The cutdown is the approved shorter package, sixty seconds instead of ninety; selecting it removes the remaining thirty seconds without inventing a live edit.

4. out cue. Turn 8. The out cue is the identifiable ending used to coordinate the next item; it must match the selected package rather than be guessed from its file name.

5. read-back. Turn 11. A read-back repeats the critical instruction so the sender can check understanding; here it should confirm the short package identifier and the revised item durations.

6. stand by. Turn 16. Stand by instructs the operator to prepare, not to start playback; a separate execution cue is needed under the agreed control-room procedure.
