The person comes before the task.

Caregiving English needs warmth and precision together. Speak directly to the person, explain what you can do, and distinguish an observation from an interpretation. Clear limits should come with a useful next step, not an abrupt dismissal.

Ask before helping

Explain the proposed support in ordinary language and listen to the response. A task on the plan does not make the person invisible or remove the need to follow the actual consent process.
"Would you like help now, or would you prefer a few quiet minutes first?"

Describe rather than diagnose

Keep the person's words separate from what you observed. Report changes through the appropriate route without inventing a cause or treating an incomplete description as proof that nothing is wrong.
"She said she felt more tired; I noticed two pauses during our conversation."

Name your role accurately

Assignments, training, and local rules determine what a worker can do. The fictional reminder-only assignment in this book does not authorize medication administration or dose advice.
"I can help you contact the nurse, but I cannot decide a replacement dose."

Close the communication loop

A sent message is not always an accepted handoff. Identify the unresolved issue, responsible person, next contact, and any urgent route. Record what actually happened, including uncertainty.
"The coordinator has the transport query; no booking has been confirmed."

Professional boundaries

People, schedules, care plans, and incidents are fictional. This book teaches workplace English, not clinical care, medication instructions, capacity assessment, or professional certification. Follow the actual care plan, consent and privacy requirements, training, employer procedures, and qualified clinical advice. For urgent or emergency concerns use the appropriate local service and procedure without waiting for a routine callback. The cited England/UK sources do not establish universal rules.

LESSON 01 / CONFIRMING THE VISIT AND THE CARE PLAN

Clarify scheduled support, acknowledge an unmet expectation, and request authorization without promising an unassigned service.

> The appointment is real; the transport is unconfirmed
> Caregiver Maya arrives at 9:00 for a two-hour visit with Mr. Ellis. Her assignment lists breakfast support and light household tasks. He expects her to drive him to a 10:00 appointment, but transport is not listed and she has no authorization to provide it. The coordinator is available by phone. Maya must establish the discrepancy, contact the coordinator with the client involved as appropriate, and continue agreed support within her role. Neither a phone message nor a request for help confirms a transport booking.

People: Mr. Ellis, Client; Maya, Caregiver.

C Phrases that move the work forward

Introduce the visit

Good morning, Mr. Ellis. I am here for your nine-to-eleven visit.

Invite clarification

What were you expecting for your appointment this morning?

Name the discrepancy

Transport is not listed in the assignment I have.

Offer a next step

I can contact the coordinator now to check the arrangement.

Report without blame

There is a difference between the expected support and my recorded assignment.

Clarify responsibility

Who is confirming the transport arrangement?

Avoid a false promise

I cannot confirm a driver until the coordinator verifies the booking.

Repeat key details

Let me check: the appointment is at ten, and transport is still unconfirmed.

Confirm the plan

My assignment lists breakfast support and light household tasks.

Acknowledge the impact

I understand that getting there at ten matters to you.

Explain the boundary

I do not have authorization to drive you.

Ask to include the client

Would you like to be part of that conversation?

Check the status

Has transport actually been booked, or only requested?

Check access needs

Please confirm any access requirements through the agreed process.

Continue agreed support

While we clarify that, would you like help with breakfast?

Record the outcome

I will record the request, who was contacted, and the confirmed response.

Precision in real exchanges

Purpose: Acknowledge the impact
Useful wording: I understand that getting there at ten matters to you.

Purpose: Name the discrepancy
Useful wording: Transport is not listed in the assignment I have.

D Choose the response that fits

Choose one response for each situation. Preserve the facts, the decision boundary, and the purpose of the exchange.

1. Which statement is both helpful and accurate?

A. My arrival proves transport is included.

B. Your appointment must be wrong.

C. I will drive you before asking anyone.

D. Transport is not in my assignment; I can call the coordinator to check it now.

2. Which record would overstate progress?

A. Transport confirmed, when only a message has been sent

B. Transport requested; coordinator contacted

C. Appointment reported for 10:00

D. No transport authorization available to Maya

3. A colleague needs the term for this meaning: The planned length of a visit or service. Which term fits?

A. scope of duties

B. scheduled duration

C. personal care

D. contact route

4. Rebuild the exchange from "The appointment is real; the transport is unconfirmed". Mr. Ellis: "Could you take me this once? It is only a short drive, and I do not want to lose the appointment." Maya: [missing response] Mr. Ellis: "All right. Please explain that the appointment is at ten. I would rather speak to the coordinator with you than repeat everything later." Which response belongs in the gap?

A. I do not have transport authorization. I can help contact the person who can resolve the request, but I cannot make a private driving arrangement outside my assigned role.

B. I will explain that distinction to the care coordinator. The appointment time and pickup time are separate, and any access arrangements need to be confirmed through the proper process.

C. Breakfast remains part of my scope of duties. We can continue that support with your agreement while the office checks the transport, without marking the additional request as settled.

D. I understand the unmet expectation. We should clarify what was discussed without assuming you misunderstood. Getting to the appointment matters, and I want the coordinator to check the arrangement directly.

Answers and explanations, page 123

One useful distinction

An appointment time is not a transport booking. A transport request is not authorization for the caregiver to drive. Keep the appointment, departure arrangements, transport provider, and booking status distinct when asking the coordinator to resolve the discrepancy.

02 Maya: Good morning. My [1] _____ is for breakfast support and light household tasks from nine until eleven. I do not have transport listed, but I can check that with the coordinator now.

03 Mr. Ellis: I mentioned the appointment when someone called last week. I understood that the visit would include getting me there, not just making breakfast.

04 Maya: I understand the [2] _____. We should clarify what was discussed without assuming you misunderstood. Getting to the appointment matters, and I want the coordinator to check the arrangement directly.

05 Mr. Ellis: Could you take me this once? It is only a short drive, and I do not want to lose the appointment.

07 Mr. Ellis: All right. Please explain that the appointment is at ten. I would rather speak to the coordinator with you than repeat everything later.

08 Maya: Of course. We can give a clear [4] _____ of the details together: appointment at ten, visit from nine to eleven, and no confirmed transport information in my assignment.

09 Mr. Ellis: Does that mean nobody has booked a car? There might be something in the office records that neither of us can see.

10 Maya: Exactly. The [5] _____ may be elsewhere. I will ask what is actually arranged rather than tell you that nothing exists when I have not checked.

11 Mr. Ellis: Ten is when I need to be at the appointment, not when a car should collect me. Please make that clear when we call.

13 Mr. Ellis: What happens to breakfast while we are sorting this out? I have not eaten yet, and I still want the agreed help.

14 Maya: Breakfast remains part of my [7] _____. We can continue that support with your agreement while the office checks the transport, without marking the additional request as settled.

15 Mr. Ellis: Please keep me on the call. Last time, I heard someone was dealing with it but never got a pickup time or a driver's name.

16 Maya: We will ask for the responsible person and the [8] _____ for the response. If an arrangement changes, we need the actual details, not just an assurance that the request was passed on.

17 Mr. Ellis: Thank you. I can explain what I was told last week, and you can explain what is on your assignment this morning.

18 Maya: That will help us report the [9] _____ fairly. I will keep your account separate from what the current record says, so the coordinator can reconcile them.

19 Mr. Ellis: Please put the outcome in the notes as well. The next person should not have to start the same conversation from the beginning.

20 Maya: I will update the [10] _____ with the request, contact, and confirmed response. Until we have that response, I will describe transport as unconfirmed rather than booked.

Return to the case

Choose one answer per question. Use the case facts and keep any uncertainty or limits intact.

1. What does a read-back help establish?

A. Shared understanding of the appointment and transport status
B. Automatic permission to drive
C. A guarantee of arrival time
D. Clinical suitability for all transport types

2. Which question is most useful?

A. Who will confirm the arrangement and contact Mr. Ellis?
B. Can we assume any relative will drive?
C. Can the transport request be omitted from the record?
D. Does breakfast support include every possible errand?

Answers and explanations, page 126

Listen for the distinction

Correct the ten gaps. Read back nine-to-eleven visit, ten-o-clock appointment, and unconfirmed transport as separate facts.

A boundary needs a useful next step

An unexpected limit can sound like abandonment. Acknowledge the practical consequence, explain the assignment plainly, and identify who can clarify the arrangement. Avoid blaming the client for expecting something that may have been discussed elsewhere.

F Say it / transfer to a new case

Clarify a different unassigned errand

A 14:00-15:00 visit includes household support. The client expects a parcel pickup, which is not assigned. The coordinator can clarify it; no pickup has been booked.

Complete the four gaps. With a partner, read alternate roles, then switch. Studying alone, read both roles and pause before each response.

LESSON 02 / CONSENT, CHOICE, AND RESPECTFUL ASSISTANCE

Offer support without pressure, respect a changed preference, and record the agreed timing without judgment.

Ten quiet minutes before choosing clothes

Caregiver Imani has thirty minutes left in her visit with Ms. Hale. Support with choosing and arranging clothes is included in the plan, but Ms. Hale declines help now and asks for ten quiet minutes before a visitor arrives. There is no immediate safety concern in this scenario. Imani should acknowledge the choice, explain the remaining time, and agree whether to ask again later. A listed task is not permission to override the person. The record should describe what was offered, chosen, and actually provided rather than label the client difficult.

People: Ms. Hale, Client; Imani, Caregiver.

Read the record

Choose one answer per question using the facts above.

1. What does Ms. Hale request?

A. Ten quiet minutes before help is discussed again
B. Immediate help despite her refusal
C. Cancellation of all future care
D. A change to her visitor's identity

2. How much scheduled visit time remains after ten minutes?

A. Twenty minutes
B. Ten minutes
C. Forty minutes
D. No time

3. Which fact is explicitly supplied?

A. Her visitor can automatically consent for her.
B. Clothes must be arranged despite refusal.
C. There is no immediate safety concern in this scenario.
D. Ms. Hale cannot make decisions.

D Choose the response that fits

Choose one response for each situation. Preserve the facts, the decision boundary, and the purpose of the exchange.

1. Which record is most accurate?

A. Clothes support offered; Ms. Hale requested a ten-minute pause and agreed to a later offer.
B. Client was difficult and wasted ten minutes.
C. All future clothes support permanently refused.
D. Consent assumed because the task was listed.

2. Which reply avoids pressure?

A. I will begin after ten minutes because you have agreed to the pause.
B. I will prepare the clothes during your quiet time so we can catch up.
C. I will ask your niece to persuade you before my visit ends.
D. I will pause; would you like me to ask again in ten minutes?

4. Rebuild the exchange from "Ten quiet minutes before choosing clothes". Ms. Hale: "I know you have a list. But when I say not now, will the notes say I was being difficult? That worries me." Imani: [missing response] Ms. Hale: "That would help. I still want to choose my own clothes. Having someone here should not mean everything gets decided for me." Which response belongs in the gap?

A. Yes, that is a clear privacy preference. I will not use the pause to start the task anyway. Let me know if you want to change that arrangement.

B. We can agree on that reoffer. There are thirty minutes left in my visit, so twenty will remain afterward. I want you to know the timing without feeling rushed.

C. I will allow that processing time. A quiet pause can be part of respectful communication. There is no need to repeat the same question every minute while you are deciding.

D. I can use neutral wording in the record. I will describe what I offered and what you requested, rather than give you a negative label for making a choice.

Answers and explanations, page 128

2. Which timing statement is correct?

D. Twenty scheduled minutes remain after the agreed ten-minute pause.

Answers and explanations, page 131

Listen for the distinction

Correct the ten gaps. State thirty minutes left, ten minutes requested, and twenty remaining without implying an automatic extension.

Respect does not depend on agreement

A worker may feel pressure to complete every listed task. Use an adult-to-adult tone and separate the service schedule from the person's choice. A preference that differs from yours is not evidence that the person cannot decide.

F Say it / transfer to a new case

Respond to a request for a shorter pause

There are twenty-five minutes left. The client requests five quiet minutes and agrees to a later offer of help with a coat. No immediate safety concern is supplied.

Complete the four gaps. With a partner, read alternate roles, then switch. Studying alone, read both roles and pause before each response.

Rebuild the exchange

Choose the missing response. Read the completed three-turn exchange aloud, changing roles on the second reading.

1. Rebuild the exchange from "Ten quiet minutes before choosing clothes". Ms. Hale: "And if I agree later but then want you to stop, can I say so? Some days I change my mind halfway through." Imani: [missing response] Ms. Hale: "Thank you. A quiet ten minutes is all I am asking for. I do not want to spend it explaining why I need it." Which response belongs in the gap?

A. Yes. You can withdraw consent. Tell me if you no longer want the help, and I will respond to that rather than assume an earlier yes lasts regardless of what you say.

B. I will. Your answer to this offer is the relevant verbal agreement we are discussing. I will not treat another person's opinion as permission to ignore what you have just said.

C. Of course. I will respect that preference and will not start arranging them. Would you like me to ask again after ten minutes, or would you prefer not to discuss clothes today?

D. I will allow that processing time. A quiet pause can be part of respectful communication. There is no need to repeat the same question every minute while you are deciding.

A. visit window
B. escort
C. contingency arrangement
D. IADLs

2. A colleague needs the term for this meaning: A decision made with appropriate communication or practical assistance. Which term fits?

A. consent
B. verbal agreement
C. supported choice
D. time remaining

3. Rebuild the exchange from "The appointment is real; the transport is unconfirmed". Mr. Ellis: "Does that mean nobody has booked a car? There might be something in the office records that neither of us can see." Maya: [missing response] Mr. Ellis: "Ten is when I need to be at the appointment, not when a car should collect me. Please make that clear when we call." Which response belongs in the gap?

A. Of course. We can give a clear read-back of the details together: appointment at ten, visit from nine to eleven, and no confirmed transport information in my assignment.
B. That will help us report the service discrepancy fairly. I will keep your account separate from what the current record says, so the coordinator can reconcile them.
C. I will update the visit record with the request, contact, and confirmed response. Until we have that response, I will describe transport as unconfirmed rather than booked.
D. Exactly. The booking confirmation may be elsewhere. I will ask what is actually arranged rather than tell you that nothing exists when I have not checked.

4. Rebuild the exchange from "Ten quiet minutes before choosing clothes". Ms. Hale: "After the ten minutes, I think finding the cardigan will be enough. I can decide about the rest when you ask me." Imani: [missing response] Ms. Hale: "Good. Let us take the quiet time now, and then you can check with me again before touching the clothes." Which response belongs in the gap?

A. I can use neutral wording in the record. I will describe what I offered and what you requested, rather than give you a negative label for making a choice.

B. We can agree on that reoffer. There are thirty minutes left in my visit, so twenty will remain afterward. I want you to know the timing without feeling rushed.

C. I will allow that processing time. A quiet pause can be part of respectful communication. There is no need to repeat the same question every minute while you are deciding.

D. That would be partial support. We can confirm it then, and I will be honest about the remaining visit time rather than promise an extension that has not been authorized.

LESSON 03 / REPORTING A CHANGE WITHOUT DIAGNOSING

Attribute the client's words, describe a change from usual behavior, and seek the appropriate response without diagnosing.

> During a routine visit, caregiver Luis hears Ms. Chen say, "I feel more tired than yesterday." At 9:20, he notices that she stops twice while describing breakfast, which is unusual during his visits. He contacts nurse Jo through the local reporting procedure. He has no clinical diagnosis and has not measured vital signs. No emergency signs are specified in this fictional brief; that is not proof that the person is safe. Any urgent or emergency concern must follow the local urgent route without waiting for routine reporting.

People: Luis, Caregiver; Jo, Nurse receiving the report.

Choose one answer per question using the facts above.

1. Which statement comes directly from the client?

A. I feel more tired than yesterday.
B. She has a diagnosed infection.
C. Her vital signs are normal.
D. She is safe to wait indefinitely.

2. What did Luis observe?

A. A measured temperature change
B. Two pauses while Ms. Chen described breakfast at 9:20
C. A confirmed cause of tiredness
D. A complete clinical examination

3. What must happen if an urgent concern arises?

A. Treat the fictional absence of emergency details as proof of safety.
B. Use the appropriate local urgent or emergency route without waiting for routine reporting.
C. Wait until the end of the shift regardless.
D. Diagnose the cause first.

Which response belongs in the gap?

A. Thank you. That gives an objective description of the pauses and an attributed account of how she feels. Do you know when the tiredness actually began?

B. Record those as unmeasured, not normal. A blank measurement field cannot support reassurance, and you should not invent a reading to make the record look complete.

LESSON 04 / BOUNDARIES AROUND MEDICINES AND CLINICAL QUESTIONS

Explain a reminder-only role, acknowledge a medication question, and help obtain qualified advice without recommending a dose.

A missed dose needs qualified advice

Mr. Ahmed tells caregiver Rosa that he missed a medicine dose and asks whether to take twice as much now. Rosa does not know the medicine, strength, prescribed schedule, or when the missed dose was due. Her fictional assignment permits reminders only, not administering medicines or recommending doses. The care plan names a nurse contact for medication questions. Rosa should explain her role and help seek timely qualified advice through the plan. She must not guess a dose, turn a missed dose into a refusal, or delay an urgent response for routine contact.

People: Mr. Ahmed, Client; Rosa, Caregiver.

1. What does Rosa's assignment permit?

A. Recommending replacement doses
B. Administering any requested medicine
C. Changing the prescription
D. Reminders only

2. What information is missing?

A. The existence of a nurse contact
B. The fact that a question was asked
C. Rosa's reminder-only role
D. Medicine details and the relevant dose timing

3. What is the appropriate communication response?

A. Explain the limit and help contact the qualified advice route in the plan.

Mr. Ahmed tells caregiver Rosa that he missed a medicine dose and asks whether to take twice as much now. Rosa does not know the medicine, strength, prescribed schedule, or when the missed dose was due. Her fictional assignment permits reminders only, not administering medicines or recommending doses. The care plan names a nurse contact for medication questions. Rosa should explain her role and help seek timely qualified advice through the plan. She must not guess a dose, turn a missed dose into a refusal, or delay an urgent response for routine contact.

Choose one answer per question. Use the case facts and keep any uncertainty or limits intact.

1. What would justify a universal missed-dose rule here?

A. Nothing in the supplied facts
B. The client's confidence
C. The caregiver's familiarity with another medicine
D. A short visit duration

2. What if the usual nurse contact is unavailable?

A. Wait indefinitely regardless of urgency.
B. Use another client's medicine instructions.
C. Use the approved alternative or urgent route appropriate to the concern.
D. Invent a replacement prescription.

Answers and explanations, page 141

Listen for the distinction

Correct the ten gaps. Preserve the missed-dose question without recommending doubling, skipping, or any other dose change.

A helpful limit is more than a refusal

People may ask a trusted worker for an immediate answer. Acknowledge the concern, make the professional boundary understandable, and offer the approved route to advice. Avoid either guessing to seem helpful or leaving the person with only a curt disclaimer.

F Say it / transfer to a new case

Route a question about a changed label

A reminder-only worker notices that the client reports different directions on a new dispensing label. The worker has not verified the difference. The plan names the supplying pharmacy as the advice contact.

Complete the four gaps. With a partner, read alternate roles, then switch. Studying alone, read both roles and pause before each response.

Rosa: [missing response] Mr. Ahmed: "What if nobody answers? Can we check the backup contact now rather than wait without a plan?" Which response belongs in the gap?

A. I will not. Administration has not happened through me. My note will describe the reported missed dose, the contact attempt, and any actual response, according to the recording procedure.

B. I cannot turn that into a rule for your missed dose. The right response depends on the medicine and circumstances, and those have not been established in our conversation.

C. Yes. We can ask about the dosing interval or any other unclear wording, and repeat the instructions back. Clarifying professional advice is different from making up the advice ourselves.

D. That is a clinical question, and I cannot decide the dose. My assignment covers reminders only, but I can help you reach the nurse named in your care plan.

A. duration

A. dosage form
B. medication reminder

I would rather not have someone sorting things behind me while I am trying to relax." Imani: [missing response] Ms. Hale: "My niece sometimes says I should accept whatever help is offered. She means well, but I want you to ask me directly." Which response belongs in the gap?

A. Your independence matters. I can help with an agreed part of the task, such as finding the cardigan, without taking over decisions you want to make yourself.
B. We can agree on that reoffer. There are thirty minutes left in my visit, so twenty will remain afterward. I want you to know the timing without feeling rushed.
C. Yes, that is a clear privacy preference. I will not use the pause to start the task anyway. Let me know if you want to change that arrangement.
D. I can use neutral wording in the record. I will describe what I offered and what you requested, rather than give you a negative label for making a choice.

Rosa: [missing response] Mr. Ahmed: "Thank you for explaining the difference. Let us contact the nurse now, with the question and the medicine information ready for them." Which response belongs in the gap?

A. I will not. Administration has not happened through me. My note will describe the reported missed dose, the contact attempt, and any actual response, according to the recording procedure.

B. I cannot turn that into a rule for your missed dose. The right response depends on the medicine and circumstances, and those have not been established in our conversation.

LESSON 05 / MEALS, PREFERENCES, AND UNRESOLVED RESTRICTIONS

Acknowledge a food preference, explain an unresolved restriction, and offer an approved alternative without pressure.

Offer a choice without guessing about restrictions

Ms. Park declines plain oatmeal and asks caregiver Daniel for filled dumplings. Her fictional plan approves specified plain oatmeal and yogurt with berries; the yogurt meal is available. The dumpling product and preparation have not been checked against her documented dietary restrictions. The coordinator can arrange that clarification. These approvals apply only to this supplied plan, not to other people or products. Daniel must respect her preference without guessing suitability, changing ingredients, or recording food as eaten merely because he offered it.

Choose one answer per question using the facts above.

1. Which alternative is approved and available in this plan?

A. Yogurt with berries
B. Filled dumplings
C. Any similar product

2. What is known about the dumplings?

A. They have been checked against all restrictions.
B. Their filling alone determines suitability.
C. A family comment replaces the plan check.
D. They are requested but their suitability is unconfirmed.

3. What must Daniel avoid?

A. Offering the approved yogurt meal
B. Guessing suitability or pressuring the client to eat

Acknowledge the preference

I understand that you do not want oatmeal today.

Keep the offer voluntary

Would you like the yogurt meal while we check your other request?

Avoid a diagnosis

I will not guess why a restriction is in the plan.

Ask the coordinator

Can you clarify this request through the appropriate process?

Respect a refusal

I will not pressure you to choose an option you do not want.

Clarify the full preparation

Does the confirmation cover how the food is prepared as well?

Check the record

I will use the current plan, not an older menu I remember.

Record actual intake

I will record what was actually eaten, not what was offered.

Offer the known alternative

The yogurt with berries is available and included in your plan.

Name the uncertainty

I cannot yet confirm whether these dumplings meet the recorded restrictions.

Explain the check

We need this product and preparation checked against your plan.

Separate two facts

The dumplings are unlisted; that does not mean they are permanently prohibited.

Avoid an improvised substitute

I cannot assume a different ingredient solves the problem.

Keep terms distinct

A preference is different from an allergy or a prescribed restriction.

Report a change

I will report a relevant change in appetite through the agreed route.

Close the request accurately

The dumpling request remains unconfirmed until the appropriate clarification is received.

Precision in real exchanges

Purpose: Name the uncertainty
Useful wording: I cannot yet confirm whether these dumplings meet the recorded restrictions.

Purpose: Avoid a diagnosis
Useful wording: I will not guess why a restriction is in the plan.

D Choose the response that fits

Choose one response for each situation. Preserve the facts, the decision boundary, and the purpose of the exchange.

1. Which offer is appropriate?

A. Your approved yogurt meal is available; would you like it while we check the dumplings?

B. I will prepare the yogurt first and record that you agreed.

C. We can approve the dumplings by checking their name alone.

D. Yesterday's oatmeal choice means you want it today too.

2. Which record would be inaccurate?

A. Ate the yogurt meal, when it was only offered

B. Declined oatmeal today

C. Requested dumplings; suitability unconfirmed

D. Yogurt meal available under the plan

3. A colleague needs the term for this meaning: A person's stated liking or choice concerning food. Which term fits?

A. appetite

B. food preference

C. meal plan

D. cross-contact

4. Rebuild the exchange from "Offer a choice without guessing about restrictions". Ms. Park: "Could you simply change one ingredient? People often make a small change to a recipe when someone has a dietary requirement." Daniel: [missing response] Ms. Park: "I appreciate that explanation. I mainly want something different today, not an argument about whether I am being sensible about breakfast." Which response belongs in the gap?

A. I will explain the request and the unresolved dietary restriction question. We will preserve your choice and use the actual response, without claiming that an unconfirmed alternative has already been approved.

B. A substitution might not address the actual restriction. I do not have enough information to choose one safely, and I should not invent an adjustment just because it sounds reasonable.

C. Yes, the preparation method may be relevant. I will make sure the request describes the food accurately rather than ask for approval of one ingredient while leaving the finished meal unclear.

D. The relevant label verification needs to match the actual requirements. A general comment that a label looks fine does not tell us which restrictions were checked or by whom.

Answers and explanations, page 143

One useful distinction

Dislike, allergy, intolerance, and swallowing difficulty are not interchangeable. Use the actual recorded information and the person's words. Recognizing these terms does not authorize a caregiver to diagnose a problem or change a clinically directed restriction.

F Check accuracy and scope

A family claim is not verified permission

Return to the case

Caregiver Nadia receives a call from an unfamiliar woman who introduces herself as June, the niece of a person she names as a client. June asks what happened during the visit. Nadia cannot access the contact record at that moment and cannot verify identity or permission to receive information. The coordinator can handle the request through the approved process. Nadia should not disclose visit details or confirm a care relationship merely because the caller knows a name. She can explain the process and offer the appropriate route without accusing June of dishonesty.

Choose one answer per question. Use the case facts and keep any uncertainty or limits intact.

1. How should the caller's relationship be recorded now?

A. Confirmed legal representative
B. Authorized for every future disclosure
C. Fraudulent caller, without further evidence
D. Claimed niece; identity and permission unverified

2. What does unavailable permission information mean here?

A. Nadia cannot verify the requested disclosure at this moment.
B. Permission definitely never existed.
C. Any disclosure becomes acceptable.
D. An unverified phone number is automatically trustworthy.

Answers and explanations, page 151

Listen for the distinction

Correct the ten gaps. Distinguish the claimed relationship, identity check, and scope of permission without accusing June of dishonesty.

Warmth and privacy can coexist

A genuine relative may feel excluded by a verification step. Explain that it protects personal information and applies without an accusation. Being polite does not require disclosing a small detail to prove goodwill, and being careful need not sound hostile.

F Say it / transfer to a new case

Respond to an unverified caller claiming to be a son

An unknown caller claims to be a client's son and asks for visit notes. The worker cannot access the authorization record. The privacy coordinator handles verified requests through the approved office route.

Complete the four gaps. With a partner, read alternate roles, then switch. Studying alone, read both roles and pause before each response.

WORD AND PHRASE BANK

son / visit notes / office route / unverified

01 Worker: The caller describes himself as the client's [1] _____.

02 Coordinator: Identity and permission remain [2] _____.

03 Worker: The requested information is the [3] _____.

04 Coordinator: Please use the approved [4] _____.

Rebuild the exchange

Choose the missing response. Read the completed three-turn exchange aloud, changing roles on the second reading.

1. Rebuild the exchange from "A family claim is not verified permission". June: "What does the office need to establish besides who I am? If I really am the niece, is that not enough?" Nadia: [missing response] June: "Should I send you photographs of identification and family documents now? I could put them in a message from this phone." Which response belongs in the gap?

A. They also need the relevant permission to receive information. A family relationship and authority to receive particular information are not identical. Any verified permission may also have a defined scope.

B. I will record your stated name and request, with the verification status unconfirmed. I will not label the relationship false simply because the checks are not available during this call.

C. I can route that request through the approved referral route. I am not ruling out legitimate family communication; I am keeping this call within what I can verify and share.

D. It would still be a disclosure. I cannot share one private detail as a shortcut around the checks. I can explain the contact route without discussing the person's day.

> Revisit "Meals, preferences, and unresolved restrictions" and "Privacy and family communication". Choose precise terminology, then reconstruct the missing responses using both neighboring turns. The final two questions also revisit earlier conversations.

1. A colleague needs the term for this meaning: A documented limit on particular foods, ingredients, or intake. Which term fits?

A. ingredient list

B. food safety

C. substitution

D. dietary restriction

2. A colleague needs the term for this meaning: A relationship stated by someone but not yet verified. Which term fits?

A. care relationship

B. claimed relationship

C. confidentiality

D. need-to-know basis

3. Rebuild the exchange from "A missed dose needs qualified advice". Mr. Ahmed: "All right. The care plan has the number we normally use. I would like help making the call because I sometimes lose track of the question." Rosa: [missing response] Mr. Ahmed: "Please say I missed it. I did not decide against taking it, and I do not want the nurse to hear that I refused." Which response belongs in the gap?

A. Yes. We can ask about the dosing interval or any other unclear wording, and repeat the instructions back. Clarifying professional advice is different from making up the advice ourselves.

B. I can help you reach that contact and explain the question clearly. The prescriber or another appropriate medicines professional may need to advise through the agreed route.

C. I cannot turn that into a rule for your missed dose. The right response depends on the medicine and circumstances, and those have not been established in our conversation.

D. That is a clinical question, and I cannot decide the dose. My assignment covers reminders only, but I can help you reach the nurse named in your care plan.

Review 3 / Meaning and context / continued

4. Rebuild the exchange from "A family claim is not verified permission". June: "I would prefer a clear next step, then. Can I contact the coordinator through the office number I normally use?" Nadia: [missing response] June: "All right. Please pass on that I asked for an update and would like the relevant permissions checked, not ignored." Which response belongs in the gap?

A. Use the office's verified published details and its secure channel for the request. The coordinator can explain the checks and the appropriate response without my disclosing visit information here.

B. I cannot access the contact record at this moment. That does not mean permission never existed or that anyone made an error; it means I cannot verify it now.

C. It would still be a disclosure. I cannot share one private detail as a shortcut around the checks. I can explain the contact route without discussing the person's day.

D. Please do not send unnecessary documents to me. Data minimization means using only the information needed through the approved route, not gathering extra sensitive material on an improvised channel.

Separate completed tasks from pending work, name the responsible person, and check that the next worker understands the handoff.

> Completed support and one unresolved arrangement

> At 11:00, caregiver Erin finishes a visit. Breakfast support and laundry are complete. A transport query for tomorrow at 10:00 remains pending with coordinator Dev, who is responsible for arranging transport. Incoming caregiver Mateo starts at 15:00. Erin prepares a factual handoff through the approved record and communication route. She must not mark transport complete or transfer booking responsibility to Mateo merely because he is next on the schedule. The handoff should identify the relevant time, current status, responsible person, and route for any further update.

State completed support

Attribute the status

Can you repeat the unresolved item and who owns it?

Preserve history

Report only known facts

Purpose: Name responsibility
Useful wording: Dev, the coordinator, is arranging transport.

Purpose: Avoid a false transfer
Useful wording: This note does not assign the booking to you.

D Choose the response that fits

Choose one response for each situation. Preserve the facts, the decision boundary, and the purpose of the exchange.

1. Which handoff is accurate?

A. Everything complete, including an unconfirmed booking

B. Mateo must arrange transport because he receives the note

C. Appointment today at 15:00

D. Breakfast and laundry complete; transport pending with Dev for tomorrow at 10:00; Mateo starts at 15:00.

2. What should a later confirmation do to the record?

A. Erase the fact that transport was pending at 11:00.

B. Pretend the booking existed before confirmation.

C. Change every appointment time to the confirmation time.

D. Add a traceable update showing the actual new status and time.

3. A colleague needs the term for this meaning: The person taking the next relevant assignment or shift. Which term fits?

A. care diary

B. incoming worker

C. responsibility transfer

D. appointment date

4. Rebuild the exchange from "Completed support and one unresolved arrangement". Erin: "Exactly. I do not want two people arranging different cars or each assuming that the other has taken responsibility simply because the note was forwarded." Mateo: [missing response] Erin: "I will record the time of this status as eleven. If a confirmation arrives later, it should not make the earlier note look inaccurate." Which response belongs in the gap?

A. Let us keep any responsibility transfer explicit. Unless the actual assignment changes through the proper process, the booking remains with Dev and I use the designated route for updates.

B. Yes, include the appointment date and ten o'clock time. My fifteen-hundred start is a separate fact; neither the start nor the appointment time tells us the pickup time.

C. That preserves source attribution. It also lets the next worker distinguish a coordinator confirmation from a client's expectation or a message that only says the request was sent.

D. Specific completion evidence is more useful. List the two completed tasks accurately and keep the transport query separate, rather than make a broad statement the record cannot support.

> One useful distinction

> Complete the handoff is not the same as complete every outstanding task. Mateo needs to know about the pending transport query, but Dev retains responsibility for arranging it unless an actual authorized reassignment occurs.

01 Erin: Mateo, I am finishing at eleven. Breakfast support and laundry are complete. There is one transport question that needs to stay visible in the handoff.

02 Mateo: Please give me the [1] _____ separately from the completed work. I start at fifteen hundred and need to know the current status before my visit, not assume every item is settled.

03 Erin: The appointment is tomorrow at ten. Dev, the coordinator, is arranging transport, but I do not have a confirmed booking in the record.

04 Mateo: So Dev is the [2] _____, and I need awareness of the unresolved query. Receiving your message does not mean I should independently make a second booking.

05 Erin: Exactly. I do not want two people arranging different cars or each assuming that the other has taken responsibility simply because the note was forwarded.

09 Erin: I wrote tomorrow in my first note. I will add the actual date before saving it; that wording will be unclear if someone reads it another day.

11 Erin: There is no pickup time to report yet. I should not copy ten into that field just to avoid leaving something blank.

13 Erin: I will list breakfast support and laundry, not all needs met. That broader phrase would make the transport question sound settled too.

14 Mateo: Specific [7] _____ is more useful. List the two completed tasks accurately and keep the transport query separate, rather than make a broad statement the record cannot support.

15 Erin: If Dev sends a booking confirmation, the person receiving it should add the details using the required process, including the source and time.

16 Mateo: That preserves [8] _____. It also lets the next worker distinguish a coordinator confirmation from a client's expectation or a message that only says the request was sent.

17 Erin: Can you repeat the important points so I know I have not left the responsibility or timing unclear before I finish this handoff?

18 Mateo: For [9] _____: breakfast and laundry are complete; transport for tomorrow at ten is pending with Dev; I start at fifteen hundred and use the approved update route.

19 Erin: That is correct. I will put the same facts in the approved record and identify the designated escalation contact if the unresolved issue needs further attention.

09 Mr. Reed: Please do not tell me to call my daughter as if she is automatically available. She has work, and nobody has asked her about today.

11 Mr. Reed: I can cope with an honest still checking. What I cannot cope with is no news. When will someone actually call me?

12 Hana: Dispatch has made an [6] _____ for nine ten. That is the next communication time, not a promise that the visit or a backup will arrive by nine ten.

13 Mr. Reed: So I should receive an update by then even if they do not yet have a confirmed replacement. That distinction was not clear to me before.

14 Hana: Correct. A [7] _____ or an honest pending status is more useful than silence. The update should explain what is known, what remains open, and what action is continuing.

15 Mr. Reed: Please record my complaint as well. This keeps upsetting my breakfast arrangements. It is the uncertainty about support, not just one late journey.

16 Hana: I will pass that [8] _____ through the service process, including the effect you have described. Recording dissatisfaction does not replace the immediate work to address today's delayed support.

17 Mr. Reed: And if a more urgent problem comes up before nine ten? I do not want the scheduled callback to become a reason nobody responds.

18 Hana: An urgent [9] _____ needs the appropriate local response without waiting for that callback. The communication timetable must not override the service's urgent or emergency procedure.

19 Mr. Reed: Please record the original nine o'clock expectation, arrival estimate, unconfirmed backup, and next contact.

20 Hana: I will record those facts and support the agreed [10] _____. The visit is delayed, cover is unconfirmed, Owen is coordinating the response, and dispatch will update you by nine ten.

F Check accuracy and scope

A late visit needs a clear update and an active response

Return to the case

At 8:50, caregiver Hana learns that her planned 9:00 visit to Mr. Reed will be delayed. Dispatch estimates arrival between 9:30 and 9:45 but cannot guarantee it. Mr. Reed planned breakfast support for 9:00. Dispatcher Owen is checking an approved backup arrangement and will update the client by 9:10. Hana calls to explain the delay and report the effect on the planned support. No backup is yet confirmed. Neither a callback promise nor an estimated arrival removes the need for the appropriate prompt response to any urgent concern.

Choose one answer per question. Use the case facts and keep any uncertainty or limits intact.

1. What should a failed call be recorded as?

A. A contact attempt, not a completed client update
B. Client fully informed
C. Complaint resolved
D. Visit completed

2. What if an urgent welfare concern becomes apparent?

A. Wait because an update is already promised.
B. Treat the ETA as proof that no harm is possible.
C. Ask the client to diagnose the problem first.
D. Use the appropriate urgent response without waiting for the routine 9:10 update.

Answers and explanations, page 161

Listen for the distinction

Correct the ten gaps. Separate arrival at nine thirty to nine forty-five from the update due by nine ten.

An apology needs usable information

A frustrated person may be asking for reliability rather than an argument about blame. Name the missed expectation, explain what is known, and identify the person handling the next step. Avoid vague reassurance or making the client organize an unverified substitute.

F Say it / transfer to a new case

Keep a later visit estimate separate from its update

At 13:40, a 14:00 visit is delayed. Arrival is estimated between 14:20 and 14:35. Dispatcher Tia is checking approved cover and will update the client by 13:55; cover is not confirmed.

Complete the four gaps. With a partner, read alternate roles, then switch. Studying alone, read both roles and pause before each response.

That distinction was not clear to me before." Hana: [missing response] Mr. Reed: "Please record my complaint as well. This keeps upsetting my breakfast arrangements. It is the uncertainty about support, not just one late journey." Which response belongs in the gap?

A. Owen in dispatch is checking an approved backup arrangement. It is not confirmed yet. Looking for cover and having someone assigned are different stages, and I will not blur them.

B. Dispatch has made an update commitment for nine ten. That is the next communication time, not a promise that the visit or a backup will arrive by nine ten.

C. Yes, and I am sorry. Dispatch has reported a service delay. The current arrival estimate is between nine thirty and nine forty-five, rather than the scheduled nine o'clock start.

D. Correct. A revised estimate or an honest pending status is more useful than silence. The update should explain what is known, what remains open, and what action is continuing.

> Revisit "A handoff the next person can use" and "Delays, complaints, and reliable follow-up". Choose precise terminology, then reconstruct the missing responses using both neighboring turns. The final two questions also revisit earlier conversations.

1. A colleague needs the term for this meaning: The person finishing the relevant assignment or shift. Which term fits?

A. action owner

B. source attribution

C. closed-loop communication

D. outgoing worker

2. A colleague needs the term for this meaning: The agreed process for responding to a disruption. Which term fits?

A. update commitment

B. dispatch

C. contingency plan

D. service recovery

3. Rebuild the exchange from "A family claim is not verified permission". June: "I thought my number was already on the list. Can you look it up and tell me whether the office has made a mistake?" Nadia: [missing response] June: "Please ask the office to check. I would hate the note to say I am not her niece just because you cannot see the contact list." Which response belongs in the gap?

A. I cannot access the contact record at this moment. That does not mean permission never existed or that anyone made an error; it means I cannot verify it now.

B. It would still be a disclosure. I cannot share one private detail as a shortcut around the checks. I can explain the contact route without discussing the person's day.

C. Use the office's verified published details and its secure channel for the request. The coordinator can explain the checks and the appropriate response without my disclosing visit information here.

D. Please do not send unnecessary documents to me. Data minimization means using only the information needed through the approved route, not gathering extra sensitive material on an improvised channel.

Review 4 / Meaning and context / continued

4. Rebuild the exchange from "A late visit needs a clear update and an active response". Mr. Reed: "And if a more urgent problem comes up before nine ten? I do not want the scheduled callback to become a reason nobody responds." Hana: [missing response] Mr. Reed: "Please record the original nine o'clock expectation, arrival estimate, unconfirmed backup, and next contact." Which response belongs in the gap?

A. I will pass that complaint through the service process, including the effect you have described. Recording dissatisfaction does not replace the immediate work to address today's delayed support.

B. Yes, and I am sorry. Dispatch has reported a service delay. The current arrival estimate is between nine thirty and nine forty-five, rather than the scheduled nine o'clock start.

C. An urgent welfare concern needs the appropriate local response without waiting for that callback. The communication timetable must not override the service's urgent or emergency procedure.

D. No. The arrival window is an estimate, not a promise of the earliest time. I do not want to give you certainty that dispatch has not confirmed.

Count the change together

cash record

The cash record starts with the fifty dollars actually handed over; it provides a shared basis for checking spending and money returned, rather than relying on memory.

Mrs. Silva: Yes. We recorded fifty dollars before you left. Please use the cash record beside my shopping list, so we are both starting from the same amount.

itemized receipt

The itemized receipt identifies the purchases and their charges; the total of 34.70 must relate to the agreed shopping rather than an unexplained deduction from the client's cash.

Mrs. Silva: Let me see the itemized receipt. I want to check each purchase, not just the amount left over.

change

Expected change is fifty dollars less 34.70 spent, or 15.30; that calculation does not establish that the full amount has already been returned.

Mrs. Silva: The expected change is fifteen thirty. Please do not ask me to sign for that amount before it is checked and returned.

shortfall

The initial shortfall is two dollars between expected change of 15.30 and the 13.30 counted; it identifies a discrepancy without proving theft or its cause.

Mrs. Silva: Thank you. Calling it a shortfall does not tell us why it happened. Let us check the receipt and pouch before anybody starts accusing someone.

reconciliation

Reconciliation shows that 34.70 in supported purchases plus 15.30 in returned change equals the original fifty; finding the coin resolves this specific difference.

Mrs. Silva: I count fifteen thirty too. The reconciliation now balances: purchases and returned money add back to the fifty I gave you.

correction

A traceable correction preserves the relevant original entry and identifies the actual change under the recording process, instead of concealing the discrepancy or recording money never returned.

Mrs. Silva: If a number was already entered incorrectly, please make a traceable correction. Do not ask me to confirm the original figure just to make the sheet easier to finish.

Read the phrases aloud. Then complete the conversation on the following pages using the word bank.

Count the change together

Authorized shopping: $50 provided, $34.70 total agreed purchases, $13.30 initially counted remaining. Fictional process: keep client money separate, retain itemized receipts, reconcile together, record the actual return. No tips or personal purchases are permitted. 01 Niko: Here is your shopping, Mrs. Silva. Can we check the receipt and change together? I have spotted a difference in my first count.

02 Mrs. Silva: Yes. We recorded fifty dollars before you left. Please use the [1] _____ beside my shopping list, so we are both starting from the same amount.

03 Niko: The agreed items total thirty-four seventy, including all charges. No personal purchases are included, and I kept your money separate.

04 Mrs. Silva: Let me see the [2] _____. I want to check each purchase, not just the amount left over.

05 Niko: Of course. Fifty minus thirty-four seventy means fifteen thirty should remain. I have counted thirteen thirty so far, which is two dollars less than expected.

06 Mrs. Silva: The expected [3] _____ is fifteen thirty. Please do not ask me to sign for that amount before it is checked and returned.

07 Niko: I will not. I will recount the separate shopping pouch here with you. A difference needs checking and, if unresolved, reporting through our money-handling procedure.

08 Mrs. Silva: Thank you. Calling it a [4] _____ does not tell us why it happened. Let us check the receipt and pouch before anybody starts accusing someone.

09 Niko: There is a two-dollar coin inside the folded receipt. With that included, the full amount is fifteen dollars and thirty cents. Would you count it with me again?

10 Mrs. Silva: I count fifteen thirty too. The [5] _____ now balances: purchases and returned money add back to the fifty I gave you.

11 Niko: I will record the actual amount returned and the check we completed. The first count was short, but the final count is not; both should be described accurately if required by our process.

12 Mrs. Silva: That is fine. I would rather hear about a count being checked than find a tidy record that says something different from what actually happened.

13 Niko: Please check the items against our list too. Correct change would not make an unapproved purchase acceptable.

14 Mrs. Silva: The items match. You can put the change in my usual envelope now. I know you cannot keep a little of it as a tip under this arrangement.

15 Niko: Thank you. I will return all of it. Your shopping money is not available for my travel expenses or a personal purchase unless a different, properly authorized arrangement explicitly covers that.

16 Mrs. Silva: If a number was already entered incorrectly, please make a traceable [6] _____. Do not ask me to confirm the original figure just to make the sheet easier to finish.

17 Niko: Agreed. The record should show what you actually received, with the receipt attached through our approved process. I will not sign on your behalf or invent your confirmation.

18 Mrs. Silva: And if we had not found the coin, we would record the amount present and notify the office, rather than quietly call the missing money a fee.

19 Niko: Exactly. We would follow the discrepancy procedure promptly and keep the facts clear. I would not conceal it or make a private repayment arrangement to bypass that process.

20 Mrs. Silva: Then we agree: fifty provided, thirty-four seventy spent, fifteen thirty returned, and the initial two-dollar difference resolved by the recount. Thank you for checking with me.

Ask how to communicate

communication preference

The communication preference comes from Mr. Bell himself; hearing loss does not establish that shouting, written-only communication, or speaking to a relative would meet his needs.

Mr. Bell: Please face me and speak clearly at your usual volume. That is my communication preference. Shouting from the doorway makes the words harder to follow, not easier.

background noise

Background noise from the television is an identified barrier in this conversation; Mr. Bell agrees to reducing it rather than the worker changing his surroundings without asking.

Mr. Bell: Yes, please lower the background noise. Sit where I can see your face. You do not need to lean over me or use a childish tone.

plain language

Plain language expresses the confirmed times in understandable everyday wording; it does not omit the date or blur pickup time with appointment time.

Mr. Bell: That plain language helps. Please give me one detail at a time. I heard the seventeenth, but was the car coming at two thirty?

read-back

The read-back checks the specific date and times, allowing correction without treating a general yes or nod as proof that every detail was heard accurately.

Mr. Bell: Let me give a read-back: November seventeenth, pickup at one thirty, appointment at two fifteen. Have I got those in the right order now?

written confirmation

Written confirmation in the requested large-print format supports Mr. Bell's access to the details; providing any written text would not necessarily meet his stated need.

Mr. Bell: Yes, written confirmation in large print, please. Correct information in tiny writing is still hard for me to use.

consent

Consent to involve another person or share relevant information must follow the actual process; a visiting relative's presence does not automatically establish unlimited permission.

Mr. Bell: And ask for my consent before adding her to a discussion about my personal information. Her being in the house does not mean every conversation is for her.

Read the phrases aloud. Then complete the conversation on the following pages using the word bank.

17 Anika: I will record the agreed needs through our approved system so the relevant team can use them. The entry should describe what helps, not label you uncooperative when a message is unclear.

18 Mr. Bell: That sounds right. You can check with me again if the arrangement stops working. I might need something different in a noisier place or for a longer discussion.

No answer at the door

no response

No response describes the unsuccessful contact attempts; it does not establish that Ms. Webb is away, has refused care, or has been assessed as safe.

Ben: Report received at eight oh four: no response, not client out or care refused. We will follow her no-answer procedure now.

observation

The visible light is an observation, not proof of presence or wellbeing; the report should separate what Elena can see from conclusions she cannot support.

Ben: Keep that observation separate from a conclusion. I am checking the plan's response and contacts now, while you remain connected. This is not just a routine queued message.

access arrangements

Access arrangements define the authorized entry process in the actual plan; an unanswered visit does not itself authorize forced entry, a borrowed key, or an improvised method.

Ben: Follow the stated access arrangements. Do not put yourself at risk. If immediate danger or an emergency becomes apparent, use the local emergency route without waiting for our routine process.

unverified account

The neighbor's suggestion is attributed but unconfirmed; it should not replace direct contact or the prescribed welfare response, nor justify unnecessary disclosure of care details.

Ben: Record it as an unverified account, if relevant to the procedure. It is useful context, not confirmation that she is away or that today's support is unnecessary.

welfare response

The welfare response is the active action required by the person's no-answer plan; managing the worker's next visit does not establish that this client's situation is resolved.

Ben: I will coordinate your onward schedule and the welfare response separately. Receiving your call does not close this concern; I will confirm the next step.

Visit status

Visit status must distinguish arrival, attempted contact, and support actually delivered; a worker reaching the property does not mean the scheduled care tasks were completed.

Ben: Exactly. Visit status needs to remain accurate. Follow the service's recording process without inventing a refusal or recording the planned tasks as done.

Which response belongs in the gap?

A. I do not have transport authorization. I can help contact the person who can resolve the request, but I cannot make a private driving arrangement outside my assigned role.

A Correct. This is Maya's response in turn 6. It connects Mr. Ellis's preceding point with Mr. Ellis's follow-up. Transport authorization is missing; a short journey or urgent request does not supply it.

B Not here. This line belongs to turn 12, after Mr. Ellis says: "Ten is when I need to be at the appointment, not when a car should collect me. Please make that clear when we call." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

C Not here. This line belongs to turn 14, after Mr. Ellis says: "What happens to breakfast while we are sorting this out? I have not eaten yet, and I still want the agreed help." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

D Not here. This line belongs to turn 4, after Mr. Ellis says: "I mentioned the appointment when someone called last week. I understood that the visit would include getting me there, not just making breakfast." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

1. assignment

Turn 2. The assignment identifies Maya's allocated tasks; it does not include permission to provide transport.

2. unmet expectation

Turn 4. The expected transport has not been confirmed in the available assignment, and the impact deserves acknowledgment.

3. transport authorization

Turn 6. Transport authorization is missing; a short journey or urgent request does not supply it.

4. read-back

Turn 8. A read-back checks shared understanding of the time and unresolved arrangement without creating a booking.

5. booking confirmation

Turn 10. Booking confirmation would establish an accepted reservation; the current absence of information does not prove no booking exists.

6. care coordinator

Turn 12. The care coordinator is the available role responsible for clarifying relevant arrangements, not a presumed transport provider.

7. scope of duties

Turn 14. The scope of duties includes breakfast support while the separate transport request remains unresolved.

8. contact route

Turn 16. The contact route identifies how the responsible person will communicate a confirmed response or further update.

9. service discrepancy

Turn 18. The service discrepancy is the difference between expected transport and the available assignment, not an established finding of fault.

10. visit record

Turn 20. The visit record should preserve the request, contacts, and actual outcome without converting pending work into completion.

F / Accuracy and scope

F1. What does a read-back help establish?

A. Shared understanding of the appointment and transport status

Repeating key details checks communication but does not supply missing service authorization.

F2. Which question is most useful?

A. Who will confirm the arrangement and contact Mr. Ellis?

Identifying the responsible contact makes the unresolved arrangement actionable without inventing a provider.

1. 15:00

Caregiver: This visit ends at 15:00.

Turn 1. The stated one-hour visit runs from 14:00 to 15:00.

2. parcel pickup

Client: The extra request is a parcel pickup.

Turn 2. The new expectation concerns a parcel, not an appointment journey.

3. coordinator

Caregiver: I will clarify the request with the coordinator.

Turn 3. The coordinator is identified as the appropriate person to clarify the unassigned request.

4. unconfirmed

Caregiver: The pickup is currently unconfirmed.

Turn 4. No pickup has been booked, so completion or confirmation would overstate the facts.

F / Rebuild the exchange

1. Rebuild the exchange from "The appointment is real; the transport is unconfirmed". Mr. Ellis: "What happens to breakfast while we are sorting this out? I have not eaten yet, and I still want the agreed help." Maya: [missing response] Mr. Ellis: "Please keep me on the call. Last time, I heard someone was dealing with it but never got a pickup time or a driver's name." Which response belongs in the gap?

D. Breakfast remains part of my scope of duties. We can continue that support with your agreement while the office checks the transport, without marking the additional request as settled.

A Not here. This line belongs to turn 12, after Mr. Ellis says: "Ten is when I need to be at the appointment, not when a car should collect me. Please make that clear when we call." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

B Not here. This line belongs to turn 6, after Mr. Ellis says: "Could you take me this once? It is only a short drive, and I do not want to lose the appointment." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

C Not here. This line belongs to turn 4, after Mr. Ellis says: "I mentioned the appointment when someone called last week. I understood that the visit would include getting me there, not just making breakfast." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

D Correct. This is Maya's response in turn 14. It connects Mr. Ellis's preceding point with Mr. Ellis's follow-up. The scope of duties includes breakfast support while the separate transport request remains unresolved.

A / Read the situation

A1. What does Ms. Hale request?

A. Ten quiet minutes before help is discussed again

Her stated preference concerns the timing of this task, not the entire care arrangement.

Return to the exercise, page 15

A2. How much scheduled visit time remains after ten minutes?

A. Twenty minutes

Thirty minutes remaining minus ten quiet minutes leaves twenty scheduled minutes.

Return to the exercise, page 15

A3. Which fact is explicitly supplied?

C. There is no immediate safety concern in this scenario.

The brief excludes an immediate safety concern but does not establish incapacity or substitute consent.

Return to the exercise, page 15

D / Response choices

D1. Which record is most accurate?

A. Clothes support offered; Ms. Hale requested a ten-minute pause and agreed to a later offer.

The factual record preserves the specific offer, response, and timing without a judgmental or exaggerated conclusion.

Return to the exercise, page 19

D2. Which reply avoids pressure?

D. I will pause; would you like me to ask again in ten minutes?

Permission to ask again is not permission to begin later, continue during the pause, or use a relative to pressure the person.

D3. A colleague needs the term for this meaning: A person's stated choice or favored way of doing something. Which term fits?

A. preference

A Correct. preference: A person's stated choice or favored way of doing something. The usual combination is "respect a preference".

B Not here. communication need: A requirement that helps a person understand or express themselves. The usual combination is "meet a communication need".

C Not here. decision-specific: Relating to the particular decision, not every possible choice. The usual combination is "use decision-specific language".

D Not here. independence: Doing or directing activities with the appropriate degree of support. The usual combination is "promote independence".

Return to the exercise, page 19

D4. Rebuild the exchange from "Ten quiet minutes before choosing clothes". Ms. Hale: "I know you have a list. But when I say not now, will the notes say I was being difficult? That worries me." Imani: [missing response] Ms. Hale: "That would help. I still want to choose my own clothes. Having someone here should not mean everything gets decided for me." Which response belongs in the gap?

D. I can use neutral wording in the record. I will describe what I offered and what you requested, rather than give you a negative label for making a choice.

A Not here. This line belongs to turn 10, after Ms. Hale says: "Could you wait in the sitting room? I would rather not have someone sorting things behind me while I am trying to relax." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

B Not here. This line belongs to turn 4, after Ms. Hale says: "Ask me again after the pause. I might just need help finding the blue cardigan, but I want to sit quietly first." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

C Not here. This line belongs to turn 16, after Ms. Hale says: "Thank you. A quiet ten minutes is all I am asking for. I do not want to spend it explaining why I need it." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

D Correct. This is Imani's response in turn 6. It connects Ms. Hale's preceding point with Ms. Hale's follow-up. Neutral wording reports the offer and response without turning a personal choice into criticism.

Return to the exercise, page 19

E / Conversation

1. preference

Turn 2. The preference concerns a quiet pause before clothing support, not a refusal of every service.

2. reoffer

Turn 4. A reoffer is a later invitation to accept help, not an assumption that the person will agree.

3. neutral wording

Turn 6. Neutral wording reports the offer and response without turning a personal choice into criticism.

4. independence

Turn 8. Independence includes directing the support and choosing clothes, not necessarily completing every movement without help.

5. privacy preference

Turn 10. The privacy preference specifies where the worker should wait and excludes continuing the task during the pause.

6. verbal agreement

Turn 12. Verbal agreement expresses the person's response to the specific offer; a relative's general opinion is not a substitute.

7. withdraw consent

Turn 14. Withdrawing consent changes the earlier agreement; the worker must follow the actual consent process rather than rely on an old yes.

8. processing time

Turn 16. Processing time allows the person space to respond and choose without repeated prompts or pressure.

9. partial support

Turn 18. Partial support covers only the agreed part of the task, such as finding one garment.

10. agreed pause

Turn 20. The agreed pause is ten minutes with permission to ask again afterward, not permission to begin the task automatically.

Return to the conversation, page 21

F / Accuracy and scope

F1. What does refusal alone establish here?

C. The offered help is not wanted at this moment.

The refusal concerns this offer and time, not a diagnosis or global decision-making ability.

Return to the exercise, page 23

F2. Which timing statement is correct?

D. Twenty scheduled minutes remain after the agreed ten-minute pause.

The pause uses ten of the thirty remaining minutes and does not automatically extend the visit.

F / Guided speaking

1. five

Caregiver: We will pause for five minutes.

Turn 1. The client requested a five-minute pause before another offer.

2. coat

Client: Please ask again about help with my coat.

Turn 2. The specified later offer concerns a coat, not all clothing tasks.

3. twenty

Caregiver: That leaves twenty scheduled minutes.

Turn 3. Twenty-five minutes remaining minus a five-minute pause leaves twenty.

4. neutral wording

Caregiver: I will record the offer and response using neutral wording.

Turn 4. Factual language records the specific choice without criticizing the person.

F / Rebuild the exchange

1. Rebuild the exchange from "Ten quiet minutes before choosing clothes". Ms. Hale: "And if I agree later but then want you to stop, can I say so? Some days I change my mind halfway through." Imani: [missing response] Ms. Hale: "Thank you. A quiet ten minutes is all I am asking for. I do not want to spend it explaining why I need it." Which response belongs in the gap?

A. Yes. You can withdraw consent. Tell me if you no longer want the help, and I will respond to that rather than assume an earlier yes lasts regardless of what you say.

A Correct. This is Imani's response in turn 14. It connects Ms. Hale's preceding point with Ms. Hale's follow-up. Withdrawing consent changes the earlier agreement; the worker must follow the actual consent process rather than rely on an old yes.

B Not here. This line belongs to turn 12, after Ms. Hale says: "My niece sometimes says I should accept whatever help is offered. She means well, but I want you to ask me directly." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

C Not here. This line belongs to turn 2, after Ms. Hale says: "Please leave the clothes for now, Imani. My visitor is coming later, but I would like ten quiet minutes before we do anything else." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

A / Read the situation

A1. Which statement comes directly from the client?

A. I feel more tired than yesterday.

The brief supplies a direct report of tiredness, not a diagnosis or measured assessment.

Return to the exercise, page 27

A2. What did Luis observe?

B. Two pauses while Ms. Chen described breakfast at 9:20

The observed event is the two pauses, with a stated time and context.

Return to the exercise, page 27

A3. What must happen if an urgent concern arises?

B. Use the appropriate local urgent or emergency route without waiting for routine reporting.

The routine reporting exercise does not replace timely local action for urgent or emergency concerns.

Return to the exercise, page 27

D / Response choices

D1. Which report is most precise?

A. At 9:20 she paused twice while describing breakfast and said she felt more tired than yesterday.

The precise account combines time, observable behavior, and attributed words without inventing a cause.

D2. How should missing vital signs be described?

The absence of measurements cannot be converted into normal findings or clinical clearance.

D3. A colleague needs the term for this meaning: When a change or symptom began, if known. Which term fits?

B. onset

A Not here. context: The circumstances in which an event happened. The usual combination is "provide relevant context".

B Correct. onset: When a change or symptom began, if known. The usual combination is "clarify the reported onset".

C Not here. unmeasured: Not measured; different from a normal result. The usual combination is "identify unmeasured information".

D Not here. SBAR: Situation, background, assessment, recommendation; a structured communication framework used in some services. The usual combination is "use the local SBAR format".

D4. Rebuild the exchange from "A precise report without an invented cause". Luis: "No. I know when we had the conversation, but I cannot say when she first started feeling tired or whether it changed overnight." Jo: [missing response] Luis: "She does not usually pause like that when we talk during my visits. I have not watched her continuously outside those visits, though." Which response belongs in the gap?

C. Then the onset is not established. Keep nine twenty as the observation time, rather than enter it as the start of the symptom.

A Not here. This line belongs to turn 4, after Luis says: "She said, I feel more tired than yesterday. While she was describing breakfast, she stopped twice. That was at nine twenty this morning." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

B Not here. This line belongs to turn 12, after Luis says: "I also have no temperature, pulse, or other measurements to report. Taking those measurements is not part of what I have done this morning." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

C Correct. This is Jo's response in turn 6. It connects Luis's preceding point with Luis's follow-up. Onset means when the change began; the time the worker noticed it does not automatically establish that.

D Not here. This line belongs to turn 8, after Luis says: "She does not usually pause like that when we talk during my visits. I have not watched her continuously outside those visits, though." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

1. reported symptom

Turn 2. The reported symptom is Ms. Chen's description of tiredness, which should remain attributed to her.

2. objective description

Turn 4. The objective description states the two pauses, their context, and the observation time without assigning a cause.

3. onset

Turn 6. Onset means when the change began; the time the worker noticed it does not automatically establish that.

4. baseline

Turn 8. The baseline is Luis's usual observation during visits, not a claim about every moment outside them.

5. diagnosis

Turn 10. A diagnosis is a clinical conclusion; Luis's observations do not establish a specific cause of the change.

6. unmeasured

Turn 12. Unmeasured describes missing measurements and must not be translated into normal or reassuring results.

7. urgent pathway

Turn 14. The urgent pathway addresses concerns requiring prompt action and is not replaced by a pending routine message.

8. clinical assessment

Turn 16. Clinical assessment is the relevant professional evaluation, not merely acknowledgment that the report arrived.

9. read-back confirmation

Turn 18. Read-back confirmation checks whether the instructions were understood accurately before they are recorded or acted upon.

10. contemporaneous note

Turn 20. A contemporaneous note preserves the actual observation and communication near the event, including limits and instructions received.

F1. Which time is established?

A. When Luis noticed the pauses

The brief gives an observation time, while the onset and assessment remain unspecified.

Communication receipt and clinical evaluation are separate stages with different meanings.

3. two

F / Rebuild the exchange

1. Rebuild the exchange from "A precise report without an invented cause". Luis: "I understand. Jo: [missing response] Luis: "Can you confirm that you have received this report? I also need the next instructions through our care procedure so I know what to record." Which response belongs in the gap?

D. Correct. Use the local urgent pathway when required, including emergency services where appropriate. Routine reporting and urgent response serve different needs; an earlier message does not remove that distinction.

A Not here. This line belongs to turn 10, after Luis says: "I nearly wrote coming down with something. Let me correct that: she reported tiredness and I noticed the pauses. I do not know the cause." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

B Not here. This line belongs to turn 18, after Luis says: "Please give me the next steps one at a time. I will repeat them back; if I miss a word, I want to check it now." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

C Not here. This line belongs to turn 2, after Luis says: "Jo, I am calling through the reporting line about Ms. Chen. I noticed a change during this morning's visit and want to pass on the exact information." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

D Correct. This is Jo's response in turn 14. It connects Luis's preceding point with Luis's follow-up. The urgent pathway addresses concerns requiring prompt action and is not replaced by a pending routine message.

D3. A colleague needs the term for this meaning: A qualified medicines professional. Which term fits?

D. pharmacist

A Not here. MAR: Medication administration record; may record different types of medicines support under the service's process. The usual combination is "record the actual support on the MAR".

B Not here. medication discrepancy: A difference between medicine information or records that needs clarification. The usual combination is "report a medication discrepancy".

C Not here. route of administration: How a medicine is taken or applied. The usual combination is "confirm the route of administration".

Could we just follow that advice and avoid bothering the nurse?" Which response belongs in the gap?

D. Those details matter, including the name, strength, and timing. We should give the professional accurate information, not rely on a tablet's color.

A Not here. This line belongs to turn 8, after Mr. Ahmed says: "I read somewhere that people sometimes take the next dose as usual. Could we just follow that advice and avoid bothering the nurse?" It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

B Not here. This line belongs to turn 10, after Mr. Ahmed says: "All right. The care plan has the number we normally use. I would like help making the call because I sometimes lose track of the question." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

C Not here. This line belongs to turn 2, after Mr. Ahmed says: "Rosa, I missed a dose of my medicine. Should I take twice as much now to make up for it? I do not want to get behind." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

3. strength

Turn 6. Strength identifies the amount of active ingredient per unit and is one relevant detail for qualified advice.

4. missed dose

Turn 8. A missed dose requires advice appropriate to the actual medicine and circumstances, which are not established here.

5. prescriber

Turn 10. The prescriber is an authorized clinical source; the actual advice route in this plan begins with the named nurse contact.

6. medication discrepancy

Turn 12. The medication discrepancy concerns the reported missed dose and relevant records, not an assumed deliberate refusal.

7. dosing interval

Turn 14. The dosing interval is the time between doses; unclear professional directions should be clarified rather than guessed.

8. out-of-hours contact

Turn 16. The out-of-hours contact is one possible designated alternative; the actual plan determines which backup route applies.

9. Administration

Turn 18. Administration is the actual giving or application of medicine under the appropriate role, not discussion or a telephone attempt.

10. follow-up instruction

Turn 20. A follow-up instruction must come from the appropriate professional and be understood accurately before it is recorded or followed.

Rosa: [missing response] Mr. Ahmed: "What if nobody answers? Can we check the backup contact now rather than wait without a plan?" Which response belongs in the gap?

C. Yes. We can ask about the dosing interval or any other unclear wording, and repeat the instructions back. Clarifying professional advice is different from making up the advice ourselves.

A Not here. This line belongs to turn 18, after Mr. Ahmed says: "Please do not mark medicine taken just because we discussed it or tried to call." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

B Not here. This line belongs to turn 8, after Mr. Ahmed says: "I read somewhere that people sometimes take the next dose as usual. Could we just follow that advice and avoid bothering the nurse?" It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

People often make a small change to a recipe when someone has a dietary requirement." Daniel: [missing response] Ms. Park: "I appreciate that explanation. I mainly want something different today, not an argument about whether I am being sensible about breakfast." Which response belongs in the gap?

B. A substitution might not address the actual restriction. I do not have enough information to choose one safely, and I should not invent an adjustment just because it sounds reasonable.

A Not here. This line belongs to turn 20, after Ms. Park says: "Let us ask about the dumplings. We can decide about yogurt after the response." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

B Correct. This is Daniel's response in turn 6. It connects Ms. Park's preceding point with Ms. Park's follow-up. A substitution changes the food or ingredient but does not automatically satisfy an unknown restriction.

C Not here. This line belongs to turn 14, after Ms. Park says: "Does preparation matter too? A package might not answer every question about the finished meal." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

1. food preference

3. substitution

Turn 14. The preparation method can affect whether the final food meets requirements; package information alone may be incomplete.

8. appetite

Turn 16. Appetite concerns desire to eat; rejecting one option does not by itself establish loss of appetite.

9. intake record

Turn 18. The intake record concerns actual consumption under the plan, not a meal that was merely offered or prepared.

10. dietary restriction

Turn 20. The dietary restriction must be understood and applied through the appropriate process rather than guessed from the request.

Return to the conversation, page 60

F / Accuracy and scope

F1. Which statement correctly describes these dumplings?

A. Unlisted and not yet confirmed suitable

Neither a familiar brand, a request, nor an improvised alteration supplies the missing product and preparation assessment.

Return to the exercise, page 62

F2. Which distinction matters?

B. Preference, allergy, intolerance, and clinical restriction have different meanings.

Accurate terminology prevents a preference or unsupported assumption from replacing the actual documented requirements.

Return to the exercise, page 62

F / Guided speaking

1. pasta

Worker: The available approved alternative is pasta.

Turn 1. This fictional plan identifies the specified pasta dish as approved and available, not every pasta product.

2. curry

Client: My requested unlisted dish is curry.

Turn 2. The person requests curry, while the two stated approved dishes are soup and pasta.

3. unconfirmed

Worker: Its suitability is currently unconfirmed.

Turn 3. The brief supplies no completed check of this curry against the person's actual plan.

4. consumption

Worker: Offering pasta does not establish consumption.

Turn 4. No eating has been recorded, so an offer cannot be reported as actual food intake.

F / Rebuild the exchange

1. Rebuild the exchange from "Offer a choice without guessing about restrictions". Ms. Park: "Does preparation matter too? A package might not answer every question about the finished meal." Daniel: [missing response] Ms. Park: "Please do not write that I have no appetite. I am hungry; I just do not want the first option you offered." Which response belongs in the gap?

A. Yes, the preparation method may be relevant. I will make sure the request describes the food accurately rather than ask for approval of one ingredient while leaving the finished meal unclear.

A Correct. This is Daniel's response in turn 14. It connects Ms. Park's preceding point with Ms. Park's follow-up. The preparation method can affect whether the final food meets requirements; package information alone may be incomplete.

B Not here. This line belongs to turn 6, after Ms. Park says: "Could you simply change one ingredient? People often make a small change to a recipe when someone has a dietary requirement." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

C Not here. This line belongs to turn 12, after Ms. Park says: "My relative said the label looked fine. Does that count as confirmation, or do we need someone to check it against my actual plan?" It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

D Not here. This line belongs to turn 20, after Ms. Park says: "Let us ask about the dumplings. We can decide about yogurt after the response." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

A / Read the situation

A1. What is unverified?

A. The caller's identity and permission to receive information

A claimed family relationship does not establish the caller's identity or disclosure authority.

Return to the exercise, page 65

A2. What is unavailable to Nadia?

A. The relevant contact record

The brief specifically says the contact record cannot be accessed at that moment.

Return to the exercise, page 65

A3. What is the appropriate next step?

B. Route the request through the coordinator's approved process without disclosing visit details.

The approved process can establish the relevant facts without premature disclosure or an unsupported blanket prohibition.

Return to the exercise, page 65

D / Response choices

D1. Which response is most appropriate?

D. I can explain the approved request route, but I cannot discuss personal information on this unverified call.

The response protects the information while preserving a usable route for legitimate communication.

Return to the exercise, page 70

D2. Which fact would not independently establish disclosure permission?

B. The caller knowing the person's full name

Knowing a name is compatible with many relationships and does not establish permission to receive private information.

D3. A colleague needs the term for this meaning: Establishing that a person is who they claim to be. Which term fits?

D. identity verification

A Not here. information incident: A possible or actual inappropriate handling of protected information. The usual combination is "report an information incident".

B Not here. next of kin: A family-contact description whose legal effect depends on the situation and jurisdiction. The usual combination is "clarify next-of-kin status".

C Not here. secure channel: A communication route approved for the relevant information. The usual combination is "use a secure channel".

D Correct. identity verification: Establishing that a person is who they claim to be. The usual combination is "complete identity verification".

Return to the exercise, page 70

D4. Rebuild the exchange from "A family claim is not verified permission". June: "Are you saying you do not believe me? I am only asking a family question, not trying to get hold of a whole medical file." Nadia: [missing response] June: "I am not asking for the whole record. Just whether she finished breakfast. Surely you can tell me that much?" Which response belongs in the gap?

A. No accusation is intended. Confidentiality applies to a short update as well as a large record. The coordinator can handle your request through the approved process.

A Correct. This is Nadia's response in turn 6. It connects June's preceding point with June's follow-up. Confidentiality protects personal information even when the request sounds ordinary or comes from a possible relative.

B Not here. This line belongs to turn 4, after June says: "I am her niece. I know her full name and address, and I have spoken to people at the office before." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

C Not here. This line belongs to turn 2, after June says: "Hello, my name is June. I am calling about my aunt. I would like to know how the visit went and whether everything was done." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

D Not here. This line belongs to turn 8, after June says: "I am not asking for the whole record. Just whether she finished breakfast. Surely you can tell me that much?" It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

E / Conversation

1. personal information

Turn 2. Personal information includes visit details and may include the fact of a care relationship, so verification must precede disclosure.

2. claimed relationship

Turn 4. A claimed relationship is the caller's account; knowing personal details does not independently verify identity or permission.

3. Confidentiality

Turn 6. Confidentiality protects personal information even when the request sounds ordinary or comes from a possible relative.

4. disclosure

Turn 8. A disclosure includes a small visit detail; its limited size does not remove the need for an appropriate basis.

5. contact record

Turn 10. The contact record is unavailable, so Nadia cannot confirm either existing permission or an error in the record.

6. verification status

Turn 12. Verification status remains incomplete; recording that fact does not deny the claimed family relationship.

7. permission to receive information

Turn 14. Permission to receive information is separate from identity and must cover the particular disclosure being requested.

8. Data minimization

Turn 16. Data minimization avoids collecting unnecessary personal material and leaves the required evidence to the approved verification process.

9. secure channel

Turn 18. A secure channel is the approved route for the relevant information, not any channel suggested during an unverified call.

10. referral route

F / Accuracy and scope

F1. How should the caller's relationship be recorded now?

D. Claimed niece; identity and permission unverified

The record should preserve the claim and uncertainty without granting authority or inventing dishonesty.

Return to the exercise, page 76

F2. What does unavailable permission information mean here?

A. Nadia cannot verify the requested disclosure at this moment.

An unavailable record leaves verification incomplete rather than proving permission absent or supplying it automatically.

Return to the exercise, page 76

F / Guided speaking

1. son

Worker: The caller describes himself as the client's son.

Turn 1. Son is the claimed relationship, not a verified authorization finding.

2. unverified

Turn 2. The necessary record is unavailable and the relevant checks are not complete.

3. visit notes

Worker: The requested information is the visit notes.

Turn 3. The supplied request concerns visit notes, which should not be disclosed prematurely.

4. office route

Coordinator: Please use the approved office route.

Turn 4. The brief identifies an approved office process for handling and verifying the request.

F / Rebuild the exchange

1. Rebuild the exchange from "A family claim is not verified permission". June: "What does the office need to establish besides who I am? If I really am the niece, is that not enough?" Nadia: [missing response] June: "Should I send you photographs of identification and family documents now? I could put them in a message from this phone." Which response belongs in the gap?

A. They also need the relevant permission to receive information. A family relationship and authority to receive particular information are not identical. Any verified permission may also have a defined scope.

A Correct. This is Nadia's response in turn 14. It connects June's preceding point with June's follow-up. Permission to receive information is separate from identity and must cover the particular disclosure being requested.

B Not here. This line belongs to turn 12, after June says: "Please ask the office to check. I would hate the note to say I am not her niece just because you cannot see the contact list." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

C Not here. This line belongs to turn 20, after June says: "All right. Please pass on that I asked for an update and would like the relevant permissions checked, not ignored." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

D Not here. This line belongs to turn 8, after June says: "I am not asking for the whole record. Just whether she finished breakfast. Surely you can tell me that much?" It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

A / Read the situation

A1. What is complete at 11:00?

B. Breakfast support and laundry

The brief explicitly confirms breakfast support and laundry, while transport remains pending.

Return to the exercise, page 81

A2. Who is arranging transport?

D. Coordinator Dev

Dev is the identified responsible coordinator, so the incoming worker does not automatically become the booking owner.

Return to the exercise, page 81

A3. When does Mateo start?

D. 15:00

The incoming caregiver's start is 15:00, distinct from tomorrow's 10:00 appointment.

Return to the exercise, page 81

D / Response choices

D1. Which handoff is accurate?

D. Breakfast and laundry complete; transport pending with Dev for tomorrow at 10:00; Mateo starts at 15:00.

The accurate version preserves task status, action ownership, and the distinct appointment and shift times.

Return to the exercise, page 86

D2. What should a later confirmation do to the record?

D. Add a traceable update showing the actual new status and time.

A later update should preserve the original history while adding the newly established information.

07 / Answers and explanations / continued

D3. A colleague needs the term for this meaning: The person taking the next relevant assignment or shift. Which term fits?

B. incoming worker

A Not here. care diary: A record of care events and relevant updates under local arrangements. The usual combination is "update the care diary".

B Correct. incoming worker: The person taking the next relevant assignment or shift. The usual combination is "brief the incoming worker".

C Not here. responsibility transfer: An explicit reassignment of responsibility, not an assumption based on a message. The usual combination is "confirm responsibility transfer".

D Not here. appointment date: The calendar date associated with the appointment. The usual combination is "confirm the appointment date".

Return to the exercise, page 86

D4. Rebuild the exchange from "Completed support and one unresolved arrangement". Erin: "Exactly. I do not want two people arranging different cars or each assuming that the other has taken responsibility simply because the note was forwarded." Mateo: [missing response] Erin: "I will record the time of this status as eleven. If a confirmation arrives later, it should not make the earlier note look inaccurate." Which response belongs in the gap?

A. Let us keep any responsibility transfer explicit. Unless the actual assignment changes through the proper process, the booking remains with Dev and I use the designated route for updates.

A Correct. This is Mateo's response in turn 6. It connects Erin's preceding point with Erin's follow-up. Responsibility transfer requires an explicit appropriate reassignment, not an inference from forwarding or reading a message.

B Not here. This line belongs to turn 10, after Erin says: "I wrote tomorrow in my first note. I will add the actual date before saving it; that wording will be unclear if someone reads it another day." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

C Not here. This line belongs to turn 16, after Erin says: "If Dev sends a booking confirmation, the person receiving it should add the details using the required process, including the source and time." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

D Not here. This line belongs to turn 14, after Erin says: "I will list breakfast support and laundry, not all needs met. That broader phrase would make the transport question sound settled too." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

E / Conversation

1. pending item

Turn 2. The pending item is tomorrow's transport query, separate from the two support tasks already completed.

2. action owner

Turn 4. The action owner is Dev because the scenario explicitly assigns the transport arrangement to the coordinator.

3. responsibility transfer

Turn 6. Responsibility transfer requires an explicit appropriate reassignment, not an inference from forwarding or reading a message.

4. timestamp

Turn 8. The timestamp identifies when the recorded pending status applied and helps distinguish it from later developments.

5. appointment date

Turn 10. The appointment date removes the changing reference of tomorrow when the record is read later.

6. status update

Turn 12. A status update should report confirmed new information; an empty pickup field must not be filled by copying a different time.

7. completion evidence

Turn 14. Completion evidence supports the particular finished tasks and does not establish that every need or unresolved arrangement is resolved.

8. source attribution

Turn 16. Source attribution identifies who supplied the new information so another worker can understand and verify the update.

9. closed-loop communication

Turn 18. Closed-loop communication checks understanding by repeating the relevant facts and allowing correction instead of assuming a message was understood.

10. acceptance of handoff

Turn 20. Acceptance of handoff acknowledges receipt and understanding of the relevant information, not completion of the pending transport arrangement.

Return to the conversation, page 88

F / Accuracy and scope

F1. Which statement confuses awareness with responsibility?

A. Mateo read the query, so he automatically owns the booking.

Receiving information does not itself create an authorized reassignment of the transport action.

Return to the exercise, page 92

F2. Which wording avoids time ambiguity in a real record?

B. The actual appointment date and time

An explicit calendar date and time remain interpretable when the record is read on a later day.

Return to the exercise, page 92

F / Guided speaking

1. meal support

Outgoing worker: The completed task is meal support.

Turn 1. The brief confirms meal support, not the equipment delivery arrangement.

2. Ana

Incoming worker: The query is pending with Ana.

Turn 2. Ana is the named coordinator responsible for the unresolved query.

3. Friday at 14:00

Outgoing worker: The delivery query concerns Friday at 14:00.

Turn 3. Friday at 14:00 is the relevant delivery time, distinct from the incoming shift.

4. 16:00

Incoming worker: My shift starts at 16:00.

Turn 4. The supplied incoming start is 16:00 and does not transfer arrangement responsibility.

F / Rebuild the exchange

1. Rebuild the exchange from "Completed support and one unresolved arrangement". Erin: "I will list breakfast support and laundry, not all needs met. That broader phrase would make the transport question sound settled too." Mateo: [missing response] Erin: "If Dev sends a booking confirmation, the person receiving it should add the details using the required process, including the source and time." Which response belongs in the gap?

D. Specific completion evidence is more useful. List the two completed tasks accurately and keep the transport query separate, rather than make a broad statement the record cannot support.

A Not here. This line belongs to turn 18, after Erin says: "Can you repeat the important points so I know I have not left the responsibility or timing unclear before I finish this handoff?" It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

B Not here. This line belongs to turn 10, after Erin says: "I wrote tomorrow in my first note. I will add the actual date before saving it; that wording will be unclear if someone reads it another day." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

C Not here. This line belongs to turn 16, after Erin says: "If Dev sends a booking confirmation, the person receiving it should add the details using the required process, including the source and time." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

D Correct. This is Mateo's response in turn 14. It connects Erin's preceding point with Erin's follow-up. Completion evidence supports the particular finished tasks and does not establish that every need or unresolved arrangement is resolved.

A / Read the situation

A1. What is the estimated arrival window?

D. 9:30-9:45

Dispatch supplies a range and explicitly does not guarantee the arrival.

Return to the exercise, page 95

A2. What is due by 9:10?

C. A client update from dispatch

The commitment concerns communication, not a guaranteed arrival or completed backup arrangement.

Return to the exercise, page 95

A3. What is the backup status at 8:50?

D. Being checked, not confirmed

The brief says dispatch is checking an approved arrangement and has not confirmed cover.

Return to the exercise, page 95

D / Response choices

D1. Which update is accurate at 8:50?

A. Arrival is estimated at 9:30-9:45; backup is being checked; dispatch will update by 9:10.

The accurate version preserves the estimate, pending backup, and separate communication commitment.

Return to the exercise, page 99

D2. What is wrong with saying a relative will cover?

D. No relative's availability, suitability, or authorization is established.

The proposed substitute is unsupported; the scenario does not establish who can provide authorized cover.

D3. A colleague needs the term for this meaning: Estimated time of arrival; not necessarily a guarantee. Which term fits?

B. ETA

A Not here. confirmed cover: An alternative arrangement verified as accepted and in place as specified. The usual combination is "distinguish confirmed cover from a request".

B Correct. ETA: Estimated time of arrival; not necessarily a guarantee. The usual combination is "update the ETA".

C Not here. revised estimate: An updated forecast based on new information. The usual combination is "communicate a revised estimate".

D Not here. missed visit: A planned visit that does not occur as arranged, as defined by the service. The usual combination is "report a missed visit".

Return to the exercise, page 99

D4. Rebuild the exchange from "A late visit needs a clear update and an active response". Mr. Reed: "I planned my morning around help at nine. A later time is not just a small change to the calendar for me." Hana: [missing response] Mr. Reed: "Is someone else coming instead? The last message I received said the office was looking into alternatives, but I never knew what that meant." Which response belongs in the gap?

B. I understand the service impact on your breakfast support. I will pass that on now so dispatch responds to the actual need rather than treats this only as a travel update.

A Not here. This line belongs to turn 8, after Mr. Reed says: "Is someone else coming instead? The last message I received said the office was looking into alternatives, but I never knew what that meant." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

B Correct. This is Hana's response in turn 6. It connects Mr. Reed's preceding point with Mr. Reed's follow-up. The service impact concerns the delayed breakfast support, not merely an internal scheduling inconvenience.

C Not here. This line belongs to turn 20, after Mr. Reed says: "Please record the original nine o'clock expectation, arrival estimate, unconfirmed backup, and next contact." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

D Not here. This line belongs to turn 2, after Mr. Reed says: "Hana, I was expecting breakfast support at nine. It is eight fifty now. Are you calling because the visit time is changing again?" It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

E / Conversation

1. service delay

Turn 2. The service delay means the planned nine-o'clock start will not be met and needs a clear early explanation.

2. arrival window

Turn 4. The arrival window is an estimated range, not a guarantee that the earliest time will be achieved.

3. service impact

Turn 6. The service impact concerns the delayed breakfast support, not merely an internal scheduling inconvenience.

4. dispatch

Turn 8. Dispatch is the named team coordinating the delayed visit and checking the appropriate alternative arrangement.

5. backup cover

Turn 10. Backup cover needs an appropriate verified arrangement; a relative cannot be treated as available or assigned without confirmation.

6. update commitment

Turn 12. The update commitment is to contact the client by nine ten, not to guarantee arrival or confirmed cover by then.

7. revised estimate

Turn 14. A revised estimate may report new timing, but it must remain qualified unless an actual commitment is confirmed.

8. complaint

Turn 16. The complaint concerns unreliable support and communication, and should be recorded without reducing it to a travel inconvenience.

9. welfare concern

Turn 18. A welfare concern requiring urgent action must use the appropriate response route instead of waiting for a routine update.

10. follow-through

Turn 20. Follow-through means carrying out the actual promised contact and actions, while preserving their status and avoiding unsupported assurances.

Return to the conversation, page 101

F / Accuracy and scope

F1. What should a failed call be recorded as?

A. A contact attempt, not a completed client update

An attempted call does not establish that the person received and understood the information.

Return to the exercise, page 104

F2. What if an urgent welfare concern becomes apparent?

D. Use the appropriate urgent response without waiting for the routine 9:10 update.

A scheduled communication update does not replace the appropriate timely action for an urgent concern.

Turn 2. The range is the arrival estimate, not a guaranteed start.

3. 13:55

Worker: Tia will provide the next update by 13:55.

Turn 3. The update commitment is 13:55 and is separate from the later arrival estimate.

F / Rebuild the exchange

1. Rebuild the exchange from "A late visit needs a clear update and an active response". Mr. Reed: "So I should receive an update by then even if they do not yet have a confirmed replacement. That distinction was not clear to me before." Hana: [missing response] Mr. Reed: "Please record my complaint as well. This keeps upsetting my breakfast arrangements. It is the uncertainty about support, not just one late journey." Which response belongs in the gap?

D. Correct. A revised estimate or an honest pending status is more useful than silence. The update should explain what is known, what remains open, and what action is continuing.

A Not here. This line belongs to turn 8, after Mr. Reed says: "Is someone else coming instead? The last message I received said the office was looking into alternatives, but I never knew what that meant." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

B Not here. This line belongs to turn 12, after Mr. Reed says: "I can cope with an honest still checking. What I cannot cope with is no news. When will someone actually call me?" It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

C Not here. This line belongs to turn 2, after Mr. Reed says: "Hana, I was expecting breakfast support at nine. It is eight fifty now. Are you calling because the visit time is changing again?" It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

3. Rebuild the exchange from "The appointment is real; the transport is unconfirmed". Mr. Ellis: "Does that mean nobody has booked a car? There might be something in the office records that neither of us can see." Maya: [missing response] Mr. Ellis: "Ten is when I need to be at the appointment, not when a car should collect me. Please make that clear when we call." Which response belongs in the gap?

D. Exactly. The booking confirmation may be elsewhere. I will ask what is actually arranged rather than tell you that nothing exists when I have not checked.

A Not here. This line belongs to turn 8, after Mr. Ellis says: "All right. Please explain that the appointment is at ten. I would rather speak to the coordinator with you than repeat everything later." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

B Not here. This line belongs to turn 18, after Mr. Ellis says: "Thank you. I can explain what I was told last week, and you can explain what is on your assignment this morning." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

C Not here. This line belongs to turn 20, after Mr. Ellis says: "Please put the outcome in the notes as well. The next person should not have to start the same conversation from the beginning." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

D Correct. This is Maya's response in turn 10. It connects Mr. Ellis's preceding point with Mr. Ellis's follow-up. Booking confirmation would establish an accepted reservation; the current absence of information does not prove no booking exists.

Imani: [missing response] Ms. Hale: "Good. Let us take the quiet time now, and then you can check with me again before touching the clothes." Which response belongs in the gap?

D. That would be partial support. We can confirm it then, and I will be honest about the remaining visit time rather than promise an extension that has not been authorized.

A Not here. This line belongs to turn 6, after Ms. Hale says: "I know you have a list. But when I say not now, will the notes say I was being difficult? That worries me." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

B Not here. This line belongs to turn 4, after Ms. Hale says: "Ask me again after the pause. I might just need help finding the blue cardigan, but I want to sit quietly first." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

D Correct. This is Imani's response in turn 18. It connects Ms. Hale's preceding point with Ms. Hale's follow-up. Partial support covers only the agreed part of the task, such as finding one garment.

3. Rebuild the exchange from "Ten quiet minutes before choosing clothes". Ms. Hale: "Could you wait in the sitting room? I would rather not have someone sorting things behind me while I am trying to relax." Imani: [missing response] Ms. Hale: "My niece sometimes says I should accept whatever help is offered. She means well, but I want you to ask me directly." Which response belongs in the gap?

C. Yes, that is a clear privacy preference. I will not use the pause to start the task anyway. Let me know if you want to change that arrangement.

A Not here. This line belongs to turn 8, after Ms. Hale says: "That would help. I still want to choose my own clothes. Having someone here should not mean everything gets decided for me." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

B Not here. This line belongs to turn 4, after Ms. Hale says: "Ask me again after the pause. I might just need help finding the blue cardigan, but I want to sit quietly first." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

C Correct. This is Imani's response in turn 10. It connects Ms. Hale's preceding point with Ms. Hale's follow-up. The privacy preference specifies where the worker should wait and excludes continuing the task during the pause.

D Not here. This line belongs to turn 6, after Ms. Hale says: "I know you have a list. But when I say not now, will the notes say I was being difficult? That worries me." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

4. Rebuild the exchange from "A missed dose needs qualified advice". Mr. Ahmed: "Please do not mark medicine taken just because we discussed it or tried to call." Rosa: [missing response] Mr. Ahmed: "Thank you for explaining the difference. Let us contact the nurse now, with the question and the medicine information ready for them." Which response belongs in the gap?

A. I will not. Administration has not happened through me. My note will describe the reported missed dose, the contact attempt, and any actual response, according to the recording procedure.

A Correct. This is Rosa's response in turn 18. It connects Mr. Ahmed's preceding point with Mr. Ahmed's follow-up. Administration is the actual giving or application of medicine under the appropriate role, not discussion or a telephone attempt.

B Not here. This line belongs to turn 8, after Mr. Ahmed says: "I read somewhere that people sometimes take the next dose as usual. Could we just follow that advice and avoid bothering the nurse?" It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

C Not here. This line belongs to turn 2, after Mr. Ahmed says: "Rosa, I missed a dose of my medicine. Should I take twice as much now to make up for it? I do not want to get behind." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

D Not here. This line belongs to turn 14, after Mr. Ahmed says: "If the nurse tells us something I do not understand, can you ask them to repeat it while I am still on the line?" It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

1. A colleague needs the term for this meaning: A documented limit on particular foods, ingredients, or intake. Which term fits?

D. dietary restriction

A Not here. ingredient list: The listed components of a food product. The usual combination is "check the ingredient list".

B Not here. food safety: Practices intended to prevent harm from food. The usual combination is "follow food safety procedures".

C Not here. substitution: Replacement of one food or ingredient with another. The usual combination is "verify a proposed substitution".

D Correct. dietary restriction: A documented limit on particular foods, ingredients, or intake. The usual combination is "verify a dietary restriction".

Return to the exercise, page 79

2. A colleague needs the term for this meaning: A relationship stated by someone but not yet verified. Which term fits?

B. claimed relationship

A Not here. care relationship: The fact that a person receives a particular care service. The usual combination is "protect the care relationship".

B Correct. claimed relationship: A relationship stated by someone but not yet verified. The usual combination is "record a claimed relationship".

C Not here. confidentiality: Protection of information from inappropriate access or disclosure. The usual combination is "maintain confidentiality".

D Not here. need-to-know basis: Access restricted to what is necessary for the relevant authorized purpose. The usual combination is "share on a need-to-know basis".

3. Rebuild the exchange from "A missed dose needs qualified advice". Mr. Ahmed: "All right. The care plan has the number we normally use. I would like help making the call because I sometimes lose track of the question." Rosa: [missing response] Mr. Ahmed: "Please say I missed it. I did not decide against taking it, and I do not want the nurse to hear that I refused." Which response belongs in the gap?

B. I can help you reach that contact and explain the question clearly. The prescriber or another appropriate medicines professional may need to advise through the agreed route.

A Not here. This line belongs to turn 14, after Mr. Ahmed says: "If the nurse tells us something I do not understand, can you ask them to repeat it while I am still on the line?" It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

B Correct. This is Rosa's response in turn 10. It connects Mr. Ahmed's preceding point with Mr. Ahmed's follow-up. The prescriber is an authorized clinical source; the actual advice route in this plan begins with the named nurse contact.

C Not here. This line belongs to turn 8, after Mr. Ahmed says: "I read somewhere that people sometimes take the next dose as usual. Could we just follow that advice and avoid bothering the nurse?" It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

D Not here. This line belongs to turn 2, after Mr. Ahmed says: "Rosa, I missed a dose of my medicine. Should I take twice as much now to make up for it? I do not want to get behind." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

4. Rebuild the exchange from "A family claim is not verified permission". June: "I would prefer a clear next step, then. Can I contact the coordinator through the office number I normally use?" Nadia: [missing response] June: "All right. Please pass on that I asked for an update and would like the relevant permissions checked, not ignored." Which response belongs in the gap?

A. Use the office's verified published details and its secure channel for the request. The coordinator can explain the checks and the appropriate response without my disclosing visit information here.

A Correct. This is Nadia's response in turn 18. It connects June's preceding point with June's follow-up. A secure channel is the approved route for the relevant information, not any channel suggested during an unverified call.

B Not here. This line belongs to turn 10, after June says: "I thought my number was already on the list. Can you look it up and tell me whether the office has made a mistake?" It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

C Not here. This line belongs to turn 8, after June says: "I am not asking for the whole record. Just whether she finished breakfast. Surely you can tell me that much?" It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

D Not here. This line belongs to turn 16, after June says: "Should I send you photographs of identification and family documents now? I could put them in a message from this phone." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

1. A colleague needs the term for this meaning: The person finishing the relevant assignment or shift. Which term fits?

D. outgoing worker

A Not here. action owner: The person assigned responsibility for a particular action. The usual combination is "name the action owner".

B Not here. source attribution: Identifying where information came from. The usual combination is "retain source attribution".

C Not here. closed-loop communication: An exchange that checks receipt and understanding rather than assuming them. The usual combination is "use closed-loop communication".

D Correct. outgoing worker: The person finishing the relevant assignment or shift. The usual combination is "identify the outgoing worker".

Return to the exercise, page 106

2. A colleague needs the term for this meaning: The agreed process for responding to a disruption. Which term fits?

C. contingency plan

A Not here. update commitment: A promise to provide information by a stated time. The usual combination is "honor an update commitment".

B Not here. dispatch: The team coordinating worker schedules, travel, and service responses. The usual combination is "contact dispatch".

C Correct. contingency plan: The agreed process for responding to a disruption. The usual combination is "follow the contingency plan".

D Not here. service recovery: Actions to address the effects of a service problem. The usual combination is "coordinate service recovery".

3. Rebuild the exchange from "A family claim is not verified permission". June: "I thought my number was already on the list. Can you look it up and tell me whether the office has made a mistake?" Nadia: [missing response] June: "Please ask the office to check. I would hate the note to say I am not her niece just because you cannot see the contact list." Which response belongs in the gap?

A. I cannot access the contact record at this moment. That does not mean permission never existed or that anyone made an error; it means I cannot verify it now.

A Correct. This is Nadia's response in turn 10. It connects June's preceding point with June's follow-up. The contact record is unavailable, so Nadia cannot confirm either existing permission or an error in the record.

B Not here. This line belongs to turn 8, after June says: "I am not asking for the whole record. Just whether she finished breakfast. Surely you can tell me that much?" It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

C Not here. This line belongs to turn 18, after June says: "I would prefer a clear next step, then. Can I contact the coordinator through the office number I normally use?" It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

4. Rebuild the exchange from "A late visit needs a clear update and an active response". Mr. Reed: "And if a more urgent problem comes up before nine ten? I do not want the scheduled callback to become a reason nobody responds." Hana: [missing response] Mr. Reed: "Please record the original nine o'clock expectation, arrival estimate, unconfirmed backup, and next contact." Which response belongs in the gap?

C. An urgent welfare concern needs the appropriate local response without waiting for that callback. The communication timetable must not override the service's urgent or emergency procedure.

A Not here. This line belongs to turn 16, after Mr. Reed says: "Please record my complaint as well. This keeps upsetting my breakfast arrangements. It is the uncertainty about support, not just one late journey." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

B Not here. This line belongs to turn 2, after Mr. Reed says: "Hana, I was expecting breakfast support at nine. It is eight fifty now. Are you calling because the visit time is changing again?" It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

C Correct. This is Hana's response in turn 18. It connects Mr. Reed's preceding point with Mr. Reed's follow-up. A welfare concern requiring urgent action must use the appropriate response route instead of waiting for a routine update.

D Not here. This line belongs to turn 4, after Mr. Reed says: "Does that mean you will definitely be here at nine thirty? I need to know whether I can rely on the earliest time in that range." It addresses that point, not the missing turn in the supplied exchange.

Return to the exercise, page 106

Additional case 1 / Explanations

Extended conversation

1. cash record

Turn 2. The cash record starts with the fifty dollars actually handed over; it provides a shared basis for checking spending and money returned, rather than relying on memory.

2. itemized receipt

Turn 4. The itemized receipt identifies the purchases and their charges; the total of 34.70 must relate to the agreed shopping rather than an unexplained deduction from the client's cash.

3. change

Turn 6. Expected change is fifty dollars less 34.70 spent, or 15.30; that calculation does not establish that the full amount has already been returned.

4. shortfall

Turn 8. The initial shortfall is two dollars between expected change of 15.30 and the 13.30 counted; it identifies a discrepancy without proving theft or its cause.

5. reconciliation

Turn 10. Reconciliation shows that 34.70 in supported purchases plus 15.30 in returned change equals the original fifty; finding the coin resolves this specific difference.

6. correction

Turn 16. A traceable correction preserves the relevant original entry and identifies the actual change under the recording process, instead of concealing the discrepancy or recording money never returned.

Return to the conversation, page 109

Transfer exchange

1. 22.40

Client: The authorized purchases total $22.40 .

Turn 1. The supplied receipt total is twenty-two dollars forty, with no extra fees or spending to add.

Turn 2. The expected seven dollars sixty exceeds the initial five dollars sixty by two dollars.

3. 7.60

Client: The coin brings the returned amount to $7.60 .

Turn 3. The initial five dollars sixty plus the located two-dollar coin totals seven dollars sixty returned.

4. 30

Worker: Purchases plus returned change reconcile to the original $30 .

Turn 4. Twenty-two dollars forty spent plus seven dollars sixty returned equals the original thirty, with no other charges.

Return to the conversation, page 112

Additional case 2 / Explanations

Extended conversation

1. communication preference

Turn 2. The communication preference comes from Mr. Bell himself; hearing loss does not establish that shouting, written-only communication, or speaking to a relative would meet his needs.

2. background noise

Turn 4. Background noise from the television is an identified barrier in this conversation; Mr. Bell agrees to reducing it rather than the worker changing his surroundings without asking.

3. plain language

Turn 6. Plain language expresses the confirmed times in understandable everyday wording; it does not omit the date or blur pickup time with appointment time.

4. read-back

Turn 8. The read-back checks the specific date and times, allowing correction without treating a general yes or nod as proof that every detail was heard accurately.

5. written confirmation

Turn 10. Written confirmation in the requested large-print format supports Mr. Bell's access to the details; providing any written text would not necessarily meet his stated need.

6. consent

Turn 14. Consent to involve another person or share relevant information must follow the actual process; a visiting relative's presence does not automatically establish unlimited permission.

Return to the conversation, page 114

Transfer exchange

1. 10:15

Worker: The confirmed pickup is 10:15, not 11:15.

Turn 1. The supplied pickup time is ten fifteen, forty-five minutes before the eleven-o-clock appointment.

2. 6 June

Client: The appointment date is 6 June .

Turn 2. The stated date is the sixth of June; no other date is supplied or authorized by the exercise.

3. large print

Worker: The requested note format is large print .

Turn 3. Ms. Grant specifically requests large print, so written information alone does not establish that the format meets her need.

4. me

Client: Please address the discussion to me .

Turn 4. She asks to speak for herself; the relative's presence does not automatically transfer the conversation or confer disclosure permission.

Return to the conversation, page 117

Additional case 3 / Explanations

Extended conversation

1. no response

Turn 2. No response describes the unsuccessful contact attempts; it does not establish that Ms. Webb is away, has refused care, or has been assessed as safe.

2. observation

Turn 4. The visible light is an observation, not proof of presence or wellbeing; the report should separate what Elena can see from conclusions she cannot support.

3. access arrangements

Turn 6. Access arrangements define the authorized entry process in the actual plan; an unanswered visit does not itself authorize forced entry, a borrowed key, or an improvised method.

4. unverified account

Turn 8. The neighbor's suggestion is attributed but unconfirmed; it should not replace direct contact or the prescribed welfare response, nor justify unnecessary disclosure of care details.

5. welfare response

Turn 10. The welfare response is the active action required by the person's no-answer plan; managing the worker's next visit does not establish that this client's situation is resolved.

6. Visit status

Turn 14. Visit status must distinguish arrival, attempted contact, and support actually delivered; a worker reaching the property does not mean the scheduled care tasks were completed.

Return to the conversation, page 119

Transfer exchange

1. 16:00

Worker: My actual arrival was at 16:00 .

Turn 1. The worker reached the property at sixteen hundred; the later time identifies coordinator contact, not arrival.

2. unconfirmed

Coordinator: The neighbor's explanation remains unconfirmed .

Turn 2. A suggestion about visiting family has not been verified and cannot establish the person's whereabouts or welfare.

3. delivered

Worker: The planned care has not been delivered .

Turn 3. No entry or care occurred, so reaching the address cannot be recorded as providing the scheduled support.

4. emergency

Coordinator: Follow the no-answer procedure, without delaying an emergency response if required.

Turn 4. An urgent emergency route remains available when circumstances require it; routine coordination must not be used as a reason to wait.

All cases, organizations, figures, and conversations are fictional teaching material, not transcripts. Communication practice does not replace qualified advice or current workplace procedures.

Companion course

The website offers the eight-lesson course and related practice. This book can be used independently. No audio access or external account is needed for its exercises.

Listen carefully. Explain clearly. Follow through.

Eight lessons connect the care plan with everyday communication. Three additional conversations cover shopping money, accessible communication, and a visit with no answer at the door.

Confirming the visit and the care plan

An appointment time is not a transport booking. A transport request is not authorization for the caregiver to drive. Keep the appointment, departure arrangements, transport provider, and booking status distinct when asking the coordinator to resolve the discrepancy.

Consent, choice, and respectful assistance

Declining one offer now does not automatically cancel every later offer or the whole care plan. Ask about the specific task and timing. Respect the actual response; a convenient schedule does not turn refusal into consent.

Reporting a change without diagnosing

Not measured is not the same as normal. No emergency signs specified in a teaching brief is not a real clinical clearance. Report the actual known information and follow the local urgent pathway whenever the circumstances require it.

Boundaries around medicines and clinical questions

Reminding, administering, and recommending a dose are different actions. The fictional role permits only the first. Recognizing a label or medicine name does not supply clinical authority, and another worker may have a different authorized role.
