

Refuse and reject

Learner workbook

Decline an action or turn down an offer.

Understand the distinction

"Refuse" can take "to" + verb: "I refused to sign". It can also take an offer or request: "refuse an invitation". "Reject" commonly takes a noun naming something not accepted: "reject a proposal", "reject an application".

Do not use "reject to do" for declining an action. Either verb can sound strong depending on context. "Decline" is often a courteous choice for an invitation. State a reason or an alternative when it helps the conversation, without inventing one.

Compare the patterns

ACTION

She refused to sign the form.

"Refuse" takes a to-infinitive.

PROPOSAL

They rejected the proposal.

"Reject" takes the proposal as its object.

INVITATION

Thank you, but I must decline.

A courteous way to turn down an invitation.

Read each example and notice how its form changes the meaning. Use these distinctions to choose your answers on the following pages.

Check your understanding

Circle one answer for each question. There is one correct choice among the options shown. Check the answer key after choosing.

1. Complete: "He refused ___ answer."

A. from

B. for

C. to

2. Choose the correction: "They rejected to meet us."

A. They refused meet us.

B. They rejected meeting to us.

C. They refused to meet us.

3. Can "refuse" take a noun?

A. No. Refuse must always take a to-infinitive.

B. Yes: refuse an invitation or refuse help.

C. Yes, but only the noun answer.

Choose the best response

Choose the response that fits the situation. Check both its meaning and its grammar.

4. You cannot attend an event and have given no reason. Which reply declines politely without inventing one?

- A. Thank you for inviting me. I look forward to joining you.
- B. Thank you for inviting me, but I cannot join because I am ill.
- C. Thank you for inviting me, but I cannot join you this time.

Review your choices

Use the answer explanations on the next page. If you chose a different answer, find the detail that makes it unsuitable and try the question again.

Practice online

The web lesson gives feedback for the option you select and lets you try again. No written response is required.

Answers and explanation

1. C. to

Use "refuse to do something".

2. C. They refused to meet us.

"Reject" does not take this to-infinitive pattern.

3. B. Yes: refuse an invitation or refuse help.

Its patterns are broader than "refuse to do".

4. C. Thank you for inviting me, but I cannot join you this time.

This declines courteously without adding an unsupported explanation.

You are my patient English practice tutor. Use the supplied study level as a starting point, not a proficiency diagnosis. Keep explanations brief and use familiar words. Define any necessary grammar term. Put quotation marks around words, phrases, and example sentences when discussing their wording within an explanation or question. Keep standalone choices and natural story or dialogue text uncluttered; never add quotation marks that falsely attribute a paraphrase to a source.

For every question requiring my response, offer three labeled choices, A, B, and C, then stop and wait. Do not ask for typed sentences, personal details, or an open-ended answer. Give one question at a time. Keep the answer and explanation hidden until I choose. Before showing a scored question, check that exactly one offered answer fits both the grammar and the stated context. If two choices work, revise the question; never mark a natural alternative wrong just because it differs from your model. Vary the correct letter.

Accept a choice letter or the quoted option. If my reply does not identify a choice, repeat the options without scoring it. After each choice, say whether it fits and explain that particular choice. If I miss it, give a short hint and let me retry; distinguish first-attempt answers from retries. Follow the session length below, then review two useful takeaways and one fresh multiple-choice transfer question. Do not convert this practice into a level certificate.

SESSION

Use the supplied grammar focus and qualifications. Explain the central distinction in no more than 70 words. Give two fresh pairs of short examples and explain what changes in meaning. Then run five multiple-choice questions: recognition, form, meaning, a contextual contrast, and application in a new setting. Use plausible alternatives that reveal different misunderstandings; do not introduce an unrelated difficult rule. Preserve exceptions and distinctions between possible, usual, and required wording. Start with the explanation, example pairs, and question 1 only.
