

Go to work, go home

Teaching guide

Describe destinations with the right phrase.

Understand the distinction

Use "go to" before many destinations: "go to the station", "go to Osaka". Common activity expressions such as "go to work" and "go to school" usually omit the article when you mean the usual activity.

"Home", "here", "there", "upstairs", and "abroad" can work as destination adverbs: "go home", "go there". Do not add "to" in these patterns. "Go to the school" can mean visiting a particular school building.

Compare the patterns

DESTINATION

We are going to the station.

Use "to" with the place noun.

HOME

I am going home.

"Home" needs no "to" here.

ACTIVITY

She goes to work by bus.

The expression names the daily activity.

Read each example and notice how its form changes the meaning. Use these distinctions to choose your answers on the following pages.

Check your understanding

Circle one answer for each question. There is one correct choice among the options shown. Check the answer key after choosing.

1. I am tired. I want to go ____ .

A. to home

B. home

C. at home

2. Add the missing word: "We went ____ the museum."

A. at

B. to

C. in

3. Does "go to the school" always mean "attend classes"?

A. Yes. It always means being a student there.

B. No. It can mean visit the school building.

C. No. It always means working there.

Choose the best response

Choose the response that fits the situation. Check both its meaning and its grammar.

4. Which pair correctly describes a daily journey to work and back home?

- A. I go work at eight. I go to home at five.
- B. I go to work at eight. I go home at five.
- C. I go to work at eight. I go at home at five.

Review your choices

Use the answer explanations on the next page. If you chose a different answer, find the detail that makes it unsuitable and try the question again.

Practice online

The web lesson gives feedback for the option you select and lets you try again. No written response is required.

Answers and explanation

1. B. home

"Home" is a destination adverb here.

A: "Go home" does not take "to" in this meaning.

C: "At home" describes a location; "go home" describes movement.

2. B. to

"Museum" is a noun naming a destination.

A: "Go to" names the destination; "at" describes location.

C: Use "to" for this destination after "went".

3. B. No. It can mean visit the school building.

The article can highlight a particular place rather than the routine activity.

A: Someone can go to the school to visit its building without attending classes.

C: The phrase alone does not tell us the purpose of the visit.

4. B. I go to work at eight. I go home at five.

"Go to work" uses "to"; "go home" does not.

A: Use "go to work" and "go home".

C: "At home" describes location; movement home uses "go home".

A practical teaching sequence

1. Notice (2 minutes)

Read the comparison examples with the learners. Point out the meaning and form that distinguish each pattern.

2. Choose (4 minutes)

Learners select one option for each of the three checks. Keep the answer key covered. Use the selected option's explanation rather than presenting a generic model as feedback.

3. Apply (5 minutes)

Which pair correctly describes a daily journey to work and back home?

Learners choose the response that fits this situation. All responses in this activity are multiple choice; do not replace the choices with a written-answer task.

4. Review (3 minutes)

Compare selected options with the key. Use the option-specific notes to explain why a distractor does not fit. Let learners change their selection and try again.

Scope of the answer key

Each question has one correct option among the choices shown. This does not mean that every other way to express the idea is wrong. Preserve the qualifications in the teaching notes.

Feedback criteria

Check both grammatical form and the stated situation. A correct option answers this question; four correct choices do not certify a learner's overall proficiency.

You are my patient English practice tutor. Use the supplied study level as a starting point, not a proficiency diagnosis. Keep explanations brief and use familiar words. Define any necessary grammar term. Put quotation marks around words, phrases, and example sentences when discussing their wording within an explanation or question. Keep standalone choices and natural story or dialogue text uncluttered; never add quotation marks that falsely attribute a paraphrase to a source.

For every question requiring my response, offer three labeled choices, A, B, and C, then stop and wait. Do not ask for typed sentences, personal details, or an open-ended answer. Give one question at a time. Keep the answer and explanation hidden until I choose. Before showing a scored question, check that exactly one offered answer fits both the grammar and the stated context. If two choices work, revise the question; never mark a natural alternative wrong just because it differs from your model. Vary the correct letter.

Accept a choice letter or the quoted option. If my reply does not identify a choice, repeat the options without scoring it. After each choice, say whether it fits and explain that particular choice. If I miss it, give a short hint and let me retry; distinguish first-attempt answers from retries. Follow the session length below, then review two useful takeaways and one fresh multiple-choice transfer question. Do not convert this practice into a level certificate.

SESSION

Prepare a 15-minute extension for this lesson: two minutes noticing an example, three minutes guided comparison, six minutes of branching dialogue choices, and four minutes reviewing why options fit. Supply a simpler version with shorter sentences and a harder version with less scaffolding, while preserving the same facts and target distinction. Keep every student answer multiple choice. Provide a small bank of six original questions with exactly one correct option each, realistic distractors, and explanations for all options. Keep a teacher-only answer key after the student material. For feedback, distinguish a meaning problem from a grammar problem and accept alternative natural expressions in discussion. This is a materials-preparation task, so produce the complete teacher plan and student bank now; the one-question-at-a-time rule applies when running it with a learner.
