Concept #08 ► Expressing Optimism/Pessimism

We use different words and different verb styles when we are positive (optimistic) or negative (pessimistic).

WHICH TWIN...?

When I marry Sarah, I will build her a house! (Close to 100% certainty)
When — marry— will

If I marry Sarah, I will build her a house! (Around a 50% certainty)
If — marry— will

If I (ever) married Sarah, I would build her a house! (Perhaps a 1% certainty)
If — married— would

I have a chance!

I have no chance!

Core Idea

In English, we use different words and verb styles to express different levels of certainty or optimism about future events. This image illustrates how to convey optimism and pessimism through different grammatical structures. Let's break down these concepts with detailed explanations, examples, and relevant grammar nomenclature.

Quick reference

Optimism: High Certainty (Close to 100%)	When: Subordinating conjunction
Neutral: Moderate Certainty (Around a 50%)	If: Subordinating conjunction
Pessimism: Low Certainty (Perhaps a 1%)	If: Subordinating conjunction

Key Points

Optimism: High Certainty (Close to 100%)

Structure: When - Simple Present - will + Base Form

- Grammar Nomenclature:
- When: Subordinating conjunction
- Simple Present: Used to indicate a future event that is seen as certain
- will + Base Form: Simple future tense
- Explanation: This structure is used when we are almost certain that something will happen in the future. The use of "when" indicates a high degree of certainty, and "will" is used to indicate a future action.
- Example Sentence: When I marry Sarah, I will build her a house.
- Additional Examples:
- When it stops raining, we will go for a walk.
- When he finishes his homework, he will play video games.
- When they arrive, we will start the meeting.

Neutral: Moderate Certainty (Around a 50%)

Structure: If - Simple Present - will + Base Form

- Grammar Nomenclature:

- If: Subordinating conjunction
- Simple Present: Used to indicate a possible future event
- will + Base Form: Simple future tense
- Explanation: This structure is used when we think something might happen, but we are not sure. The use of "if" indicates that there is a possibility, but it is not guaranteed. "Will" is still used to indicate the future action.
- Example Sentence: If I marry Sarah, I will build her a house.
- Additional Examples:
- If it stops raining, we will go for a walk.
- If he finishes his homework, he will play video games.
- If they arrive, we will start the meeting.

Pessimism: Low Certainty (Perhaps a 1%)

Structure: If - Simple Past - would + Base Form

- Grammar Nomenclature:
- If: Subordinating conjunction
- Simple Past: Used to indicate a hypothetical situation
- would + Base Form: Conditional mood
- Explanation: This structure is used when we think something is very unlikely to happen. The use of "if" combined with the past tense "married" shows that it is a hypothetical situation. "Would" is used to indicate what might happen in that unlikely scenario.
- Example Sentence: If I (ever) married Sarah, I would build her a house.
- Additional Examples:
- If it stopped raining, we would go for a walk. (But it's unlikely to stop raining.)
- If he finished his homework, he would play video games. (But he probably won't finish.)
- If they arrived, we would start the meeting. (But we don't expect them to arrive.)

Practice with Example Sentences

To get more comfortable with these structures, let's practice with a variety of scenarios.

Scenario 1: Traveling to Japan

- High Certainty: When I travel to Japan, I will visit Kyoto.
- Moderate Certainty: If I travel to Japan, I will visit Kyoto.
- Low Certainty: If I (ever) traveled to Japan, I would visit Kyoto.

Scenario 2: Buying a New Car

- High Certainty: When I buy a new car, I will choose a hybrid model.
- Moderate Certainty: If I buy a new car, I will choose a hybrid model.
- Low Certainty: If I (ever) bought a new car, I would choose a hybrid model.

Scenario 3: Learning a New Language

- High Certainty: When I learn Spanish, I will practice every day.
- Moderate Certainty: If I learn Spanish, I will practice every day.
- Low Certainty: If I (ever) learned Spanish, I would practice every day.

Tips for Non-Native Speakers

- Identify the level of certainty: Decide how certain you are about the event happening. This will help you choose the correct structure.
- Practice with different scenarios: Create your own sentences using different levels of certainty to get familiar with these structures.
- Pay attention to verb forms: Notice the changes in verb forms when switching from high certainty (present and future forms) to low certainty (past forms and conditional).

By understanding and practicing these structures, you can more accurately express your optimism or pessimism about future events in English.
