Concept #12 ▶ That vs Which

When the information included is essential to the meaning of a sentence, we use "that" without commas.

When the information included is not essential to the meaning of a sentence, we use "which" with commas.

The shape that is red is called a "cube".		The shape, which is red, is a cube.
The tool that is completely silver is called a "wrench".		The tool, which is completely silver, is a wrench.
The animal that has big ears is an elephant.		The animal, which has a hump, is a camel.

* If the subject is a person, the word "who" is used in both cases. But commas are still used when the information is not essential.

Suggested Lesson Flow

Warm-up

Display the concept image and ask learners to predict the rule behind That vs Which: Understanding Essential and Non-Essential Information before reading the explanation.

Model

Walk through the Core Idea and the sections on Key Points, Summary. Pause after each part so students can restate the pattern in plain English.

Guided practice

Project two or three examples from the concept sheet and ask pairs to explain why each choice works, not just what the answer is.

Independent work

Assign the 24 practice items for quiet work, partner checking, and final feedback.

Closure

Ask students to create one new sentence or mini-example of their own that follows the same pattern.

Likely Learner Errors

- Learners may overgeneralize the first pattern they notice. Keep returning to Key Points, Summary and ask students to explain what changes from one example to the next.
- Long explanations can hide the signal word or structure. Have students underline the exact phrase that tells them which form, pattern, or response is needed.
- If students can choose an answer but cannot explain it, ask them to justify their choice using words taken directly from the concept sheet.

Differentiation and Delivery Notes

- Support: teach one section at a time, then send students back to the examples or the practice set so they can apply the same rule immediately.
- Pair work: let students compare answers aloud before you reveal the key. The explanation step is as important as the final answer.
- Extension: ask stronger students to write two fresh examples or a short dialogue that uses the same target language accurately.

Model Language from the Concept Sheet

- The shape that is red is called a "cube". Here, "that is red" is essential because it specifies which shape is being referred to.
- The tool that is completely silver is called a "wrench". "That is completely silver" is essential to identify the specific tool.
- The animal that has big ears is an elephant. "That has big ears" is essential to specify which animal.
- The book that has a blue cover is mine.
